Bedayan's Mother Says He Changed

By GEORGE NEVIN
And BILL ROBERTS

Marcea Bedayan, mother of Brent William Bedayan, took the stand today to tell how her son changed from a young man for whom she had high hopes into the killer of three members of a Mill Valley family.

Bedayan, 22, is accused of setting fire to the home of Melvin and Ruth Schallock in Mill Valley, March 16, and then killing them and their 19-year-old son, Daniel.

Mrs. Bedayan described her son's activities during high school years and said she had high expectations for him immediately after his graduation in 1969.

But he began to change, she said, after his enrollment in psychology classes at the College of Marin and field training in psychology at the state mental hospital in Napa.

She said he became extremely unhappy and withdrawn after a patient who had become a close friend in Napa was transferred to southern California. Her son stayed alone in his room much of the time and could be heard crying, she said.

She also told of an altercation in the summer of 1972 when Bedayan was shooting basketball in the family yard with Daniel Schallock. Although no apparent fight took place, she said her son said, "He's fixed it so I can never come back to the house again."

Mrs. Bedayan also told the jury of an apparent suicide threat by her son in December 1972 which brought out claims by him that Dan Schallock was causing him pain in penis area and haunting him.

The final moments of life for the Mill Valley family were described from two vantage points Wednesday as the prosecution temporarily rested its case.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales questioned two criminalists and then told Judge Henry J. Broderick he was finished for the moment, but will call one or two more witnesses when they are available.

Then Deputy Public Defender Frank J. Cox began the defense case with testimony by a neighbor on what she heard of the Schallocks's last moments.

Fill Permit Cleared For Shopping Center

Permission Is Given By Federal Agency

By MARY LEYDECKER

The last hurdle blocking a fill permit for the proposed Ernest W. Hahn regional shopping center in Corte Madera apparently has been cleared as the project received a go-ahead from federal authorities.

In a letter received by Corte Madera town officials today, the federal Environmental Protection Agency withdrew objections made earlier to issuance of an Army Corps of Engineers' permit to fill the marshland.

Corte Madera officials said they believe this will lead to the granting of the needed permit.

Paul De Falco Jr., regional administrator for the federal agency, said the agency had reversed its stand on fill for the controversial project because of changes made by the developer.

He noted that the size of the project had been reduced from the original request for about 75 acres to about 45 acres. Further, he said two ponds in the north portion of the site now are not slated for fill, but will be left natural with surrounding open space.

Hahn has also given written assurance, De Falco said, that storm water runoff from Corte Madera through the site and from the project will receive treatment if necessary to meet federal water quality standards.

De Falco noted that a current "cease and desist order" against Corte Madera Sanitary District should not prevent adequate collection and treatment of sewage from the proposed shopping center.

Further, he said, the federal Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife and the California Department of Fish and Game have been working with Hahn "regarding mitigation measures" aimed at protecting

Religious Sect Is Facing Ouster—Anticommune Bid

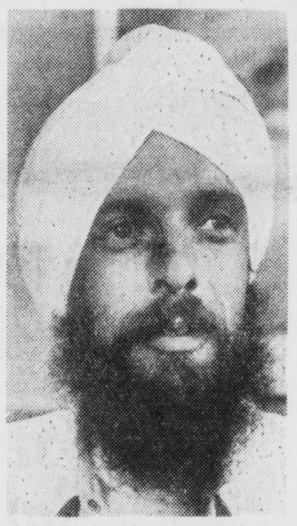
By NELS JOHNSON

A bid by the San Rafael city administration to outlaw communes within city limits may force a highly disciplined religious sect that strives to be "an asset to the community" to relocate.

About 25 men and women and 10 children who live in an Ashram, or yoga learning center at 16 Culloden Park Road, and practice Sikhism, a 500-year-old Indian religion, would be outlawed from living together under provisions of an ordinance unanimously recommended by the San Rafael Planning Commission.

The ordinance, intended to tighten municipal control of communes, would prohibit more than five unrelated people from living in a single-family residence and would require the Ashram to obtain a variance to remain, according to City Atty. Fred C. Robbins.

There is no guarantee a variance will be issued should the city council endorse the measure on Sept. 4, he said.



CLIFF SINGH LAMOUREAUX

KENNETH R. FRANKEL
'Roumiguiere sparked law'

The ordinance which would apply to these followers of the Sikh religion, would not, according to Robbins apply to such groups as the Dominican Sisters of San Rafael "because they are a religious group that falls within the First Amendment guarantees."

Robbins also said, "The council would not apply this to fraternal organizations."

Sikhism is based on three principles, or attitudes, according to Cliff Singh Lamoureaux, 33, director of the Ashram: "earning money righteously" without resorting to welfare or food stamps; "serving the community" by conducting yoga classes in local health facilities, hospitals and prisons, and sharing or working together conscientiously.

All who enter the immaculate, 25-room mansion on Culloden Park Road, a fashionable residential neighborhood, must remove their shoes. Men wear their hair, which they never cut, in turbans for cleanliness. Sex between unmarried members of the group is outlawed. Most are Caucasian.

The group is vegetarian, permits no alcohol, tobacco or illicit drugs in the house, and arises at 4 a.m. each day for four hours of exercise, meditation and chanting, Lamoureaux said. About half the members hold regular jobs, he added.

But the ordinance envisioned by the city would outlaw the communal lifestyle that is essential to the group's practice of religion.

The ordinance, which would define the term family as meaning "one or more persons, related by blood or marriage, or a group of not more than five persons, including servants, who need not be related," would provide fines of up to $500, or a six-month jail term, or both, for property owners who allow more than one such family to occupy a single family unit.

Kenneth R. Frankel of 260 Tiburon Boulevard, San Rafael, coowner of the towering home on Culloden Park Road, said that the ordinance is a "terrible attempt to legislate lifestyles," claimed the city has no commune problem, and charged the measure was sparked by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere.

Frankel, describing Roumiguiere as an "influence broker," claimed the supervisor

Integration Expert Will Guide Sausalito Schools

Donald W. Johnson of San Anselmo, credited two years ago with the successful integration of elementary schools in San Francisco, has been named superintendent of the Sausalito School District.

Trustees made the announcement Wednesday night after a special meeting behind closed doors. Johnson, 42, signed a three-year contract and will take over the $25,500-a-year post Sept. 1.

Since 1970, he has been director of desegregation and integration for San Francisco schools, a job that pays $600 more than his new position.

In 1968 he was named project coordinator of the National Teacher Corps Project in San Francisco and the following year was put in charge of the district's first attempts at integration at two elementary schools.

But in 1971 a U.S. District judge ordered all of the district's elementary schools integrated by the ollowing September, a task that observers predicted would be fraught with tension and confusion considering that Johnson had only four months to do it. The job was completed, according to reports, with far fewer problems than anticipated.

Johnson began his career in 1953 as an elementary school teacher in San Francisco's public schools but left to serve three years in the Army. He returned to teaching in 1956 and taught young children in San Francisco until three years later, when he received a Fullbright Scholarship to London, where he taught for a year.

After his return, he was named assistant principal at Anza Elementary School and later principal, a post he held from 1966 to 1969.

A native of San Francisco, he was graduated from Abraham Lincoln High School there. He received a bachelor's degree in education and a master's degree in educational administration from California State University in San Francisco.

Johnson and his wife, Alice, and their two children, Paul, 15, and Janine, 12, have lived in San Anselmo for the past two years.

Johnson replaces Lawrence A. Lindberg, who resigned as Sausalito superintendent to become superintendent of the Snoqualmie Valley School District near Seattle.

Citizen Protests Scuttle Levy On Mill Valley Sewer Service

Bowing to protest from angry citizens Wednesday night, the Mill Valley City Council killed its planned sewer service charges. (Another Mill Valley City Council story, page 11.)

After a public hearing on the charges produced nearly three hours of complaint from individual citizens and homeowner groups, the council decided not to submit a list of sewer charges to the county assessor for inclusion in November tax billings.

The council adopted sewer service charges in early June and planned to bill citizens in their regular tax statements. But to be included in the billings, a list of all charges had to be submitted by Friday.

The charges would have raised about $225,000 to be used to prevent infiltration of outside water into the city's sewer system. The outside water places an extra burden on the system's treatment plant during rainy months.

The council's 4-1 vote, with Councilman Robert E. Burton opposed, not to submit the list killed the charge for at least one year.

Councilman Robert E. Capron asked the council in place of the sewer charge to use federal monies allocated for treatment plant improvements to initiate the infiltration repairs.

He also recommended well-publicized public hearings on methods of raising the bulk of the $1.4 million needed to prevent infiltration.

The standing-room-only crowd in city hall scored the council for not providing adequate notice on imposition of charges which would have cost the average single family home owner $3.40 a month.

"We're on the edge of a cliff with a forest fire behind us. Why weren't we given a little more time to think about this?" asked one citizen who did not identify himself.

Only two persons spoke in favor of the sewer charge and

$1.5-Million Bond Ballot Asked For Petaluma Parks

A $1.5 million bond issue to support park development was approved by the Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission Wednesday night.

The commission will meet with the city council Monday at 7:30 p.m. to request a date be set. The council is also to consider putting a library bond issue on the Nov. 6 special election ballot.

Recreation Director James R. Raymond said the commission will oppose the Nov. 6 election date and ask that a special election be called later in the winter. Commissioners said it would be unwise to mix a bond issue with the statewide vote to lower property taxes.

Raymond said the bulk of the $1.5 million would be spent to develop Lucchesi Park. The remainder would be used for tennis courts and athletic facilities at other parks.

The commission also approved plans by the Petaluma Lions Club to add a large barbecue pit and picnic tables to McDowell Park. A sunshade would also be added to the concrete slab provided by the club last year.

Raymond said costs will total $2,600 with the club paying $1,400 and the city $1,200.

Wheat, Sugar Cost Show Up In Local Bread Hikes

Marin residents are going to have to pay more dough for their bread.

The price of a loaf was being marked up 2 cents today in many local stores and bakeries. And there were predictions the cost will rise even higher.

Bakerymen said they have been forced to hike their prices because of soaring costs of ingredients.

"I'm paying $1.60 to $2.00 more for 100 pounds of flour," said Paul R. Henderson, manager of the San Rafael French Bakery.

Henderson's goods still cost the same as they did a few weeks ago, but he said an increase is inevitable. "I don't know just how high prices will go because I can't get a firm contract from my supplier. Usually, I sign a six-month contract, but for the first time he can't tell me how much flour will cost until wheat prices stabilize.

"Right now, we're operating at a loss because we haven't passed the increases on to our customers."

A spokesman for Langendorf Bakeries in San Rafael said their bread is up 2 cents as of today. And other items, like cakes, doughnuts and cookies are going to cost more soon.

Dwain Leversee, owner of the Village Bake Shop in Larkspur, predicts he will have to add 12 cents to the price of a dozen doughnuts, bringing the cost to $1.56.

He also expects cakes to go up from $2.50 to $2.75.

Leversee said higher wholesale prices for jams, jellies, nuts, sugar and mixes are "hitting us hard."

"One kind of jam is up from $14 to $17 in the last couple of weeks."

In January, Fred Cassee, owner of Mill Valley's Locust Bakery, was paying $7.40 for 100 pounds of flour. Today, he is paying $17.50. And sugar which cost $10.50 a few months ago, now costs him $16.50.

Cassee has already raised the price of his doughnuts from $1.20 to $1.30 a dozen and expects that his other products will have to go up in the near future.

Ben Albrecht, president of Parisian Bakers Inc. of San Francisco, which supplies many Marin stores and restaurants, blamed the Nixon administration's export policies for the spiraling prices. "All this exporting wheat is killing us," Albrecht said, "There is a greater demand than supply."

Harmer May Run For Second Spot

Harmer said he would announce a decision after Labor Day. He was an unsuccessful candidate for attorney general in 1970.

Stork Outspeeds Highway Patrolmen

Their motto already is, "Can do!"

It was all in a day's work for the two at 2:09 a.m. Wednesday, as they answered a Nicasio family's distress plea on the Golden Gate Bridge — and delivered a healthy baby girl.

It all began about a half-hour earlier, when Judith Ann Faircloth of 1635 Merritt Drive told her husband, Ron, that she felt it was time they headed to the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco. With labor pains 21 minutes apart, she said her baby was on the way.

By the time the 28-year-old couple, and Faircloth's mother-in-law, Mrs. George Butterworth of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., made it to the freeway, however, the pains were coming three minutes apart.

Faircloth stepped on the gas at this point, and sped past the two cruising patrolmen on the Golden Gate Bridge. The officers unknowingly tried to pull the car to the curb for speeding until a sergeant at the bridge toll plaza yelled, "Hey! She's going to have a baby!"

After turning onto Park Presidio Boulevard, Fairclouth discovered that they werent' going to make it to the hospital. He pulled to the side of the road, and with Officer's Deutsch and Thomsen assisting, Mrs. Faircloth gave birth to a healthy 8-pound, 6-ounce Carley Ann.

The officers summoned an aumbulance, and the baby girl and mother were soon taken to the hospital.

Both are reported doing fine, despite the fact that the officers' expertise may be open to question. They did, after all, inform Mrs. Faircloth she had just had a fine looking son.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Leader Overboard

PRINCE FREDERICK, Md. (UPI) — Civil rights leader George A. Wiley, 42, is missing and presumed drowned in heavy seas of the Chesapeake Bay early today, despite rescue efforts by his 10-year-old son.

State police said Wiley fell through an unstable railing of his new 23-foot cabin cruiser late Wednesday and fell in the churning bay waters off Dares Beach, Md., about 40 miles east of Washington.

Wiley, who lived in Washington, was a founder and former executive director of the National Welfare Rights Organization and founder of the Movement for Economic Justice. He was formerly an associate chemistry professor at Syracuse University.

Police said his son, Daniel, told them Wiley lost his balance when the vessel pitched. The boy tried but failed to reach his father with a rope and an extra jacket and piloted the cruiser in circles for about 20 minutes looking for him.

Not Revolutionary

DETROIT (UPI) — Striking workers in the second day of a wildcat walkout at a key Chrysler Corp. plant said today "revolutionaries" whose aim is control of the auto plants were trying to take credit for the labor dispute.

Picketing workers said Douglas A. Fraser, the UAW vice president in charge of the Chrysler Department, had been misled by leaflets handed out at the plant gates into thinking revolutionaries were behind the walkout.

The mimeographed leaflets called on "workers and oppressed people of the world" to unite.

Skylab Pictures

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts, who took a couple of pictures Wednesday of the web spun by their spider-houseguest, point their cameras at the northeastern United States today to study the effects of strip mining on the environment.

The 25-minute 11,000 mile picture taking sweep from Montana to the South Atlantic Ocean was designed for Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma to evaluate the effects of strip mining in Ohio and Indiana and study the environmental changes in the Chesapeake Bay.

Berlin Escape

BERLIN (UPI) — Two East German engineers and their families tunneled beneath the Berlin Wall on July 27 and emerged through a drainage pipe in West Berlin, Western diplomatic sources said today.

Police confirmed that the nine refugees — the two engineers, their wives and five children — made the first successful escape across the wall since February, 1972.

The disclosure of the tunnel escape coincided with an announcement by the West German government it planned to crack down on professional refugee smugglers who charge up to $30,000 to sneak East Germans across the frontier.

Vietnam Charges

SAIGON (UPI) — A South Vietnamese government spokesman accused the Communists today of a major attack on the defense perimeter of the old imperial capital of Hue and said the Viet Cong were still trying to seize control of Highway 1 on the Central Coast where they are trying to establish an arms port.

The Communists countercharged that the government had opened a land grabbing offensive in the Central Highlands near Kontum, 270 miles north of Saigon, and had sent in seven infantry battalions, two tank battalions and two artillery batteries backed by planes.

Fighting was reported in all those areas.

Slaughter Denied

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A spokesman for the Palestinian guerrilla movement said today the "Seventh Suicide Squad," which claimed responsibility in a letter to two Beirut newspapers for last Sunday's Athens airport attack, was a "fictitious and nonexistent organization."

Spokesmen for various Palestinian guerrilla organizations have denied responsibility for the attack, in which three persons were killed and 55 persons wounded while they waited to board planes to New York and Geneva.

Gold Drops

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold dropped to its lowest price in three months today, and the U.S. dollar rode the other end of the seesaw to a slight recovery against most European currencies.

Most gold dealers attributed the fall in the price of gold to higher interest rates offered in many countries, including the United States, Britain and Holland.

Arms Accusation

GENEVA (UPI) — Sweden accused the United States and the Soviet Union today of developing a new generation of tactical nuclear weapons for battlefield use. Sweden demanded they be discontinued.

The Swedish negotiator at the Geneva Disarmament Conference, Mrs. Alva Myrdal, said the new weapons would "drastically aggravate the nuclear threat against non-nuclear weapon states everywhere."

The small nuclear weapons, Mrs. Myrdal said, would "affect the very premises on which adherence to the nuclear non proliferation treaty is based."

Bombers Strike

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — American B52s and F111 bombers bombed on two sides of Phnom Penh today in the most intensive strikes in a month, and the big B52s made a rare daylight strike against insurgents menacing government defense lines nine miles from Phnom Penh.

Ground fighting was reported light.

The U.S. Embassy denied that American aircraft were involved in a third bombing mistake Sunday which killed between 11 and 15 persons at the village of Veal Sbov, five miles south of the capital, and implied that this mistake was made by the Cambodian air force.

Irish Injuries

BELFAST (UPI) — Sixteen persons, all women and children, were injured in a bomb blast at an army barracks today, and police fired rubber bullets at hundreds of youths in a predawn riot in Belfast, the army said.

The violence coincided with demonstrations planned by Roman Catholics across Northern Ireland protesting the second anniversary of the British Army policy of placing terrorist suspects in internment camps without trial.

Police said rioters at Newry, 35 miles southwest of Belfast, set fire to at least six cars.

A GRAPE VETERAN — An unidentified United Farm Worker supporter sits bloodied on the ground at the Guimarra Vineyards near Lamont in Kern County, following a clash between pickets and sheriff's deputies. Meanwhile Wednesday, singer Joan Baez led a group of protesters at a peach orchard outside Fresno.

(UPI Telephoto)

Joan Baez Leads Table Grape Group

Two groups of singers — 200 pickets led by folksinger Joan Baez and 100 farmers and their wives standing in a nearby peach orchard — staged a musical duel in the agricultural country outside Fresno.

Miss Baez, accompanied on the picket line by Daniel Ellsberg of Pentagon Papers fame, led the supporters of Cesar Chavez in the protest song, "We Shall Overcome."

"You have to stand with us if the human race is to survive," Miss Baez told the farmers' wives. "We'll walk hand in hand," she added, beginning another chorus of the protest song.

"Not with you we won't," shouted one of the women in the orchard.

The folksinger and Ellsberg picketed in apparent violation of court orders limiting pickets, but sheriff's deputies declined to make any arrests.

Ellsberg, describing himself as a long-time admirer of Chavez, said he joined the pickets to protest the court orders, describing them as violations of the First Amendment rights of United Farm Workers Union members. The UFW and the Teamsters Union are engaged in an often-violent battle over the representation of California farm workers.

ITT Is Tied To Ecuador Cutoff

NEW YORK (UPI) — Business Week magazine said today the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. (ITT) managed to have over $415 million in U.S. aid witheld from Ecuador until the Latin American nation settled a claim for an exproriated ITT subsidiary.

The magazine said the subsidiary at issue was All American Cables and Radio, which operated in Quito. It was expropriated in 1971, and ITT at first demanded $1.2 million in restitution.

Eventually, the magazine said, the government came with $25,000 of agreeing on a settlement involving some $600,000 and valuable parcels of land. Business Week said ITT demanded that the U.S. government invoke rarely used sanctions, including cutting off loans and aid, to force the payment.

The magazine quoted unnamed "government officials" as saying Jack Neall, a now-retired ITT representative in Washington, "invoked the names of top Nixon administration figures to bend the bureaucrats to ITT's will" when the State Department was reluctant to cut off the funds.

"The net result of ITT's pressures was that $415.8 million of assistance...was held up for two years by AID," the magazine said. "And a $14.3 million Inter-American Bank loan was threatened with cancellation by U.S. members of the multination lending institution if Ecuador did not cave in on the mere $25,000 difference with ITT."

Business Week said Ecuador began going along with ITT's terms in January of 1972, paying the $600,000, but it decided to take back the land that was part of the deal.

Extra Water Is Part Of Plan

The Marin Municipal Water District's modified Sonoma-Marin aqueduct will be capable of bringing in more water than the amount needed for the limited growth proposed by the county-wide plan, the district board learned yesterday.

The $31 million pipeline, which probably will be presented to voters in a November bond election, will be able to carry 16,000 acre-feet of water annually, according to William R. Seeger, district general manager.

But, he told the board, the district has no plan to obtain more than the 13,400 acre-feet required to support the amount of new development the county plan calls for.

He said the district will contract for that amount — and no more — from the North Marin County Water District and Sonoma County Water Agency which will supply the water in the project's early stages.

Seeger said the larger capacity is needed since the district is contracting for "off peak" water which the nortern water agencies will provide during times when the demands on their system are lowest.

"We'll probably only be using the pipeline for nine months out of the year, so it has to be larger to bring in the amount of water we need during that period," he said.

A pipeline with a 13,400 acre-foot annual capacity would be incapable of bringing in that amount of water if only used for nine months, he explained.

Director L. Martin Griffin urged the district to complete cpntracts for the water quickly with North Marin and Sonoma so voters can be assured that the quantity will be consistent with the county-wide plan's growth limits.

Seeger pointed out that the aqueduct will not bring the full 13,400 acre-feet of water to the county right away, since it will be built in stages.

The first stage, between Hamilton Air Force Base and Highway 37, will tie into the North Marin system and provide 4,000 acre feet of water by the fall of 1974.

Stage one is basically the same as the north Marin intertie which voters approved in 1970 but which the district board has refused to build until the November election.

Yesterday several board members asked Seeger if it would be wise to start that pipeline now since it is not dependent on voter approval of the bond issue.

"I can see no advantage to going ahead now, since we couldn't start construction until next April," the general manager replied.

Stage two of the aqueduct is a pipeline from Hamilton to Freitas Parkway in Terra Linda and will increase the system's capacity to 8,000 acre feet a year through additional pumps and storage facilities.

Stage three, from Novato to Cotati, will make the pipeline capable of bringing in the full 13,400 acre feet a year and will be completed by the fall of 1979.

The fourth stage, from Cotati to the Russian River, will hook up the district's lines to its source of supply to assure water when it is no longer available from North Marin and Sonoma.

The board adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. At that time directors will have to decide whether to submit the entire project to voters in November or present it in several bond issues, each paying for one or more stages.

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

QUORUM — Agreed to amend district regulations to require three votes to pass any measure. Currently, district law states that a majority of a quorum — or two members — are sufficient to approve an action.

RENTAL — Agreed to rent part of its San Rafael yard property on Second Street to Ed Studley of Redding for a Christmas tree lot during December for $500 a month.

ATTORNEY — Hired San Francisco attorney Harold B. Lerner to handle condemnation actions. Lerner will be paid $75 an hour and a minimum of $150 for each condemnation.

BUDGET — Adopted a $7.8 million budget for 1973-74, including $6.3 million for district operations and the rest for capital improvements.

Nobel Considered On Student Work

MARIANNA, Ark. (UPI) — A recent college graduate is being considered for nomination for the Nobel Prize for his undergraduate research on cancer-causing viruses.

A committee of the National Institute for Cancer Research has notified Charles H. Allen of La Grange, Ark., he is under consideration for nomination for the biochemestry prize.

Dr. Jeff Schlom of Columbia University, a member of NICR, said Allen's work was "quite possibly the most important single development in cancer research in the last 20 years, almost inconceivable as the work of an undergraduate."

Allen was graduated from Rice University in Houston last spring.

Soviet, U.S. Trade Leaders To Confer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. and Soviet business leaders will meet in Moscow and Leningrad later this month, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said Wednesday.

A spokesman said a three-man U.S. mission will spend four days beginning Aug. 26 in the Soviet capital and two days in Leningrad discussing bilateral trade and industrial cooperation.

North California Hit By Tremblor

FERNDALE, Calif. (UPI) — A tremblor described as "the strongest quake I've felt in 14 years of living here" by Ferndale Chief of Police Charles Goff jarred residents from Fort Bragg to Eureka Wednesday.

The quake, which measured 4.75 on the Richter scale at the University of California in Berkeley, caused no reported major damage, but one motorist reported "objects rolling down a hillside"—apparently dirt and rocks.

Water Cut May Delay Landscaping

Marin Municipal Water District's moratorium on new connections may delay the state Department of Transportation's landscaping of San Rafael's Bellam Boulevard interchange for four years or more.

This was indicated in a letter by Jerry O'Shea, assistant district engineer for the department, to Charles J. Linthicum, senior planner for the City of San Rafael.

Linthicum, on instruction by the San Rafael Planning Commission, had written the Department of Transportation urging early landscaping of the interchange along with other locations along Highway 17 in Marin County.

In his reply, O'Shea wrote that the Bellam Boulevard planting has been scheduled for fiscal 1977-78. "We believe," he wrote, "(it) should be advanced to an earlier date," but:

"1. The highway planting program is being reduced and funds normally available are being directed toward routes on the interstate system.

"2. Of immediate concern to us is the Marin Municipal Water District's moratorium on new water meter installations. Until this conflict is resolved any planting projects requiring irrigation will have to be delayed."

MANSION — The old Babcock mansion at 16 Cullodon Park Road in San Rafael, now the home of followers of the Sikh religion, towers above the trees as two members of the sect relax outside. The 25-room mansion has become the target of a city ordinance some say is specifically intended to oust them from the premises in the single-family residential area.

Religious Sect Is Facing Home Ouster

does not like the sect next door and has embarked on a campaign to oust the group.

Roumiguiere denied the charge and declined comment on his neighbors, saying only that Frankel, who rents the home for $1,500 monthly, "is a big landlord charging a big rental that he is conerned about losing.

"The ordinance is designed to prevent communes from establishing in single-family neighborhoods, and I favor that," said Roumiguiere.

Frankel, backed by Lamoureaux, said the sect obviously has been singled out for elimination since there is "no commune problem at all in San Rafael."

Although the ordinance declares that it is aimed at eliminating the "numerous large congregations of unrelated children and adults presently occupying single family residential units throughout the City of San Rafael," city planners told the Independent-Journal they dod not know where such communes are.

"Fact is we have no list... We've had maybe four or five calls complaining over a number of years," said J. Stanley Ott, senior planner. Ott said the Sikhism sect on Culloden Park Road is one of "one or two" communes the city is specifically aware of.

City Mgr. William J. Bielser denied Frankel's claim that Roumiguiere had pressured city officials into drafting the ordinance, saying it was written two years ago, shelved, and recently resurrected. "I don't have the statistical information, but I am of the professional opinion the problem is sufficient to require regulation," Bielser said.

Frankel claimed the ordinance discriminates against low income groups who band together for economic reasons, and is inapplicable to the Ashram in any case.

"Large congregations of unrelated people do no more damage to density standards, health and safety or parking than large congregations of related people," he said.

Further, the ordinance makes no distinction between the sizes of houses or between sizes of lots, he said. "It gives no methods for determining the real intended occupancy of a dwelling but sets an artificial limit of five people."

The Culloden Park home has 25 rooms and eight bathrooms, he noted.

City officials pointed out that a legitimate complaint of some neighbors is the local parking situation. More than a dozen cars sometimes park on the grounds of the residence, although recent complaints have prompted the group to assign one member daily "to make sure cars are not parked out front on the road," according to Lamoureaux.

Frankel will take the matter to the Marin County Human Rights Commission at 8 p.m. today in the Civic Center, where commissioners have scheduled a public hearing on the ordinance. "There are serious questions as to the constitutionality of this thing," said Douglas H. Bosco, director of the county human relations department. "This ordinance infringes upon people's rights of association," he said.

Declared Frankel: "Many communes consider themselves families. They share as families, eat together as families, worship together as families, and they should have the same rights to live where they choose as any other type of family."

Bielser noted that, should the measure be approved by the city council, and a variance requested by the Ashram, a public hearing will be held to air the issue.

Traffic Plan Is Offered Board

A plan for parking and traffic circulation for the Schoonmaker development proposed for the northern Sausalito waterfront was presented Wednesday to the Sausalito Community Appearances Advisory Board.

All parking will be underground, beneath residential and commercial units, Steven Siskind, a designer and spokesman for the O-Meara-Chandler Corp., the project's developer, told the board.

A mini-bus system will be used inside the project and to carry persons into downtown Sausalito. All auto traffic will exit the development at its northern end on Harbor Drive and incoming traffic will enter at Napa Street, Siskind said.

An environmental impact report must be completed on revised plans for the project — which conforms to existing zoning — before it can be considered by the planning commission.

FILL

wildlife.

The proposed multimillion-dollar shopping center has received strong opposition by some Corte Madera residents, many of whom opposed filling the marshland and disturbing wildlife on the site east of Highway 101.

Others, however, had suggested a compromise, similar to the present proposal, in which some marsh would be saved but the project could go ahead, providing more sales tax revenue for the town.

Three Corte Madera councilmen facing a recall election, have been criticized for their support of the project.

Monday, though, the city council refused to allow limited dumping on fill on the site, with councilmen saying that they wanted permission in writing first.

(Councilman Edward W. Colthurst said today that he was incorrectly reported in an I-J account of that meeting as saying that he and one of Hahn's representatives, L. E. Oberkamper, had worked out a compromise that would have allowed limited fill dumping to begin.

(Colthurst said he had "never before even met Oberkamper," and the minutes of the meeting support his contention that he did not make such a statement.)

New Inmate At Quentin Stabbed

A newly arrived San Quentin inmate was stabbed and seriously wounded Wednesday, apparently the victim of a long-standing feud between rival Mexican-American gangs, according to a prison spokesman.

John Medina Jr., 43, was reported in serious condition today in the prison hospital with wounds in the neck, chest, and stomach. He had arrived at the prison Tuesday from the California Men's Colony in San Luis Obispo.

The spokesman said that one inmate was in custody today and that two weapons were found after the stabbing in the prison exercise yard.

BEDAYAN

California Department of Justice, Bedayan executed a precision plan to flush the Schallocks from their house and gun them down.

This is Travnikoff's account.

Walking along a patio to the east side of the dwelling, Bedayan shot two blasts through the second-story window of Daniel Schallock's bedroom.

Realizing their house was on fire and hearing the shots, the three Schallocks climbed out of Mrs. Schallock's first-floor bedroom window and began to walk along the west side of the house toward the front.

Bedayan, coming up behind them, first shot Daniel, then his parents, with bursts of semi-automatic fire from his powerful shotgun.

He then retraced his steps to the back of the house, broke a living room window to get in, then walked out the front door, returned with the second gasoline can and soaked the entryway and parts of the living room.

"He set it afire," concluded Travnikoff, "and departed the scene of the crime."

The second criminalist, Robert L. Baker, told how he detected blood on a jacket Bedayan wore and on the shotgun found in his apartment, but could not tell whose blood it was. He was Bales's last witness, save the one or two to be called later.

Defense attorney Cox's first witness, Lora M. Cook, described what she heard as the Schallocks were being shot.

"I was asleep very soundly," said the Schallock neighbor and friend for eight years, "when I heard someone yelling for help."

"Then there was running, the sound of someone running through bushes, and I got up and went to a window, but I couldn't see anything.

When the shooting first started — in three groups of several shots per group — Mrs. Cook said she thought it was firecrackers.

She testified she then heard her husband, Robert C. Cook, go out the front door to investigate the noises, and she tried to call him back, but he only told her, "Mel's house is on fire," and went on.

She hadn't even had time to call the fire department, she said, when her husband returned after a brief encounter with a gunman in the street in front of the Schallock house.

Then Lawrence B. Bochino, manager of the Mill Valley Tennis Club, took the stand and described Bedayan as Bochino knew him — a quiet but efficient lifeguard at the club pool for three summers.

"He was a very quiet person, reserved, polite and very thoughtful, and I must say respectful. He was never violent, and seemed very sincere about his work."

Bochino described Bedayan as "very much an introvert" but told Cox he seemed normal in all other respects. The manager said he would not have hesitated to hire Bedayan again.

But, Bochino said, a marked change came over Bedayan in the three months between his last day of work as a lifeguard in September 1972 and a one-day job he did for Bochino this January.

"Where he had always been comparatively neat and reserved, he seemed (in January) extremely nervous, unkempt, rather pale and under some kind of emotional stress," said Bochino.

But, the manager said, he did not ask Bedayan what was troubling him.

CHARGES

one received hearty boos from the audience.

Capron said the council could raise the needed money by imposing the sewer charge, floating a bond issue, shifting funds budgeted for other purposes or by a popular vote to increase the tax rate.

He said by delaying the work the city risks the start of improvements by the state water control board, per diem penalties for poorly treated effluents and the delay by the federal government of monies for the treatment plant improvements.

The council's action did not entirely kill the sewer charge, however. An ordinance must be introduced at a later meeting to repeal the ordinances which established the charges.

OBITUARIES

Merrold M. Campbell Dies At 63

Merrold M. Campbell, owner of Campbell-Bishop Chevrolet Co., died Wednesday in a local hospital after a long illness. He was 63.

He was born in Massena, Iowa and grew up there.

He worked for the Goodrich Tire Co. in Norfolk, Neb. From 1948 to 1952 he was general manager of the Lincoln-Mercury garage in Spencer, Iowa. He then took over the Ford dealership in Carroll, Iowa, in 1952.

He moved in 1957 to Los Gatos where he became general manager of Grant Bishop Chevrolet garage. He and Bishop formed a partnership, Campbell-Bishop Chevrolet, in May 1959 at 5880 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera. In 1968 he bought out Bishop and was the sole owner until recently when his son, Joe Campbell, started buying the business.

He was a member of Evening Shade Lodge No. 312, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of Spencer, Iowa; California Bodies Scottish Rite; Islam Temple of the Shrine; Marin Shrine Club; Royal Court Jesters No. 4; San Rafael Lodge No 1108, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and the Meadows Club.

In addition to his son, Joe, he is survived by his wife, Eloise Campbell of the home at 111 Lochinvar Road, San Rafael; another son, John Campbell of Santa Cruz; a daughter, Glennis Jones of Sausalito and two grandchildren.

Masonic funeral, under the auspices of Fairfax Lodge No. 556 Free and Accepted Masons, will be at 11 a.m. Saturday, at the Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo. Burial will be at Lewis Cemetery, Lewis, Iowa.

KENNETH PATRICK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Flags were lowered to half staff today in memory of the death of California Park Ranger Kenneth C. Patrick, the first ranger ever murdered in the line of duty.

Patrick, a former Arizona state trooper and the father of four boys, was shot Sunday morning, apparently by a poacher, in a remote section of Point Reyes National Seashore, the Interior Department said.

The flags were to remain at half staff for 24 hours.

Simultaneous services for Patrick were held today in California and in Arizona: a memorial service at St. Columba Episcopal Church in Inverness and funeral at Flagstaff followed by burial at Grand Canyon Cemetery, not far from where he once served as ranger at Grand Canyon National Park.

WILMA CLARK

Funeral for Wilma J. Clark of San Rafael will be at 2 p.m. Monday in the Faith Reform Church in Wisconsin Rapids, Wisc.

Mrs. Clark, a resident of San Rafael for seven years, died Tuesday in a San Francisco Hospital after a long illness. She was 63.

She was born in Cedar Grove, Wis. In 1932 she married Jack M. Clark, a neighbor for many years in the town of Vesper.

They lived in Wisconsin until 1943 where he worked first as a dealer and later a distributor for Westinghouse appliances.

He joined the army in the 1940s and she traveled extensively with him on assignments in this country and abroad.

They settled in San Francisco in 1965 and moved a year later to their home at 814 Butternut Drive, San Rafael.

Her husband, now a civilian employee of the Army, is technical director of the Computer Systems Command Support Group at the Presidio of San Francisco.

She is also survived by a daughter, Nancy Allen of Gallatin, Tenn.; two sons, Jack M. Clark Jr., stationed at Hickham Air Force Base in Hawaii, and William James Clark, serving with the Second Infantry Division in Korea, and by her parents, Christian and Sara Ter Maat of Hingham, Wisconsin.

EMMA LOESER

Emma C. Loeser of San Rafael, an eight-year resident of San Rafael, died Wednesday at a local hospital after a short illness. She was 80.

A resident of 14 Scenic Road, Miss Loeser is survived by two sisters, Mary Loeser and Johanna Rhoades.

Private funeral will be held tomorrow in San Rafael. Burial will be at Rockville Cemetery. Contributions to the Trinity Lutheran Church, San Rafael, are preferred by the family.

ALEXANDER GEMMELL

Alexander D. Gemmell, a 17-year San Rafael resident, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness. He was 57.

He was born in Oakland and lived there until coming to Marin. He served in the Pacific with the Marine Corps in World War II.

Gemmell was employed by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. in San Francisco.

Survivors include his wife, Dolores, a daughter, Susan Shirley of Illinois, a son, Ronald D. Gemmell of San Rafael; two brothers, Joseph Gemmell of Oceanside and Ronald H. Gemmell of Arlington, Va., and three grandchildren.

Funeral will be Friday at 1 p.m. at the Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

LITTLE ONES HAVE TROUBLES

Melissa Ernst, 20 months old, expresses unhappiness over the plight of her pal from next door in Goshen, Ohio. The horse, claimed by its owners Mr. and Mrs. Dale Corman to be the world's smallest, has developed an allergy to people. A veterinarian has ordered it confined to an air-conditioned van. The tiny pony, 13½ inches high when born May 17, has attracted too many sightseers.

Annexation Of Tract Is Supported

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission Wednesday approved a proposal that the Country Club tract off San Pedro Road be annexed to the city of San Rafael.

The vote was 3-to-0 with commissioners Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., Roy Farrington Jones and Anold M. Baptiste approving annexation. Commission Lawrence Mulryan was absent and Jan van Dyk abstained because he had not heard arguments during a public hearing last month.

The Country Club tract, named for a golf club which once occupied the property, includes 800 people living in 260 residential units, many of them large, expensive homes.

The total assessed valuation of the land and improvements is $4 million, according to Tracy Friedman, assistant executive officer to the commission. (This would give the property a market value of approximately $16 million).

The annexation was requested by some residents who said the area needs city services, especially fire protection. Not all the residents, however, have seemed to favor the annexation.

The matter next will go to the San Rafael City Council, and ultimately to an election by the area's 500 registered voters.

The annexation could be killed immediately, however, if written protests are received from property owners representing 50 per cent of the area's assessed valuation.

U.S. Crime Panel Urges Banning Handguns By '83

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans maintain a national arsenal of some 30 million privately-owned handguns, and these should be outlawed by 1983, a federal advisory commission recommended today.

A report entitled "A National Strategy to Reduce Crime" said, "Americans are accumulating handguns at a rate estimated at 1.8 million weapons a year. The national arsenal of privately owned handguns is estimated to be as high as 30 millions."

The National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, which issued the 318-page report, recommended that existing federal, state and local laws relating to handguns be strenuously enforced. It further recommended that states undertake publicty campaign to educate the public fully about laws regulating the private possession of handguns.

On the subject of drugs, the report recommended that education begin in the home before the child enters school, and school teachers should receive special training in drug education and prevention.

The commission was created by the Justice Department in 1971 under a $1.75 million grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. It was charged with developing a blueprint for crime reduction programs for state and local governments and private citizens.

The commission said the 1968 Federal Gun Control Act encourages states to enact their own legislation to control firearms, but that Congress and the states have been slow to act in this area.

It urged enactment of state legislation providing a prison term of up to 25 years for committing a felony while in possession of a handgun.

The commission cited statistics showing that during 1971 approximately 9,000 persons in the United States, including 94 police officers, were murdered with handguns.

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, commenting on the report, said, "The federal government is neither endorsing nor opposing the hundreds of specific standards and goals contained in this report, though we naturally agree with its overall objectives."

Among those serving on the 22-member commission were Philadelphia District Attorney Arlen Spector; Rev. Leon Sullivan, a Philadelphia civil rights leader; Edward M. Davis, Los Angeles police chief; Judge Joe Frazier Brown, executive director of the Texas Criminal Justice Council; Washington Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson; William R. Reed of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, and Judge Peter J. Mcquillan of the New York Criminal Court.

Bomb Blast Hits Italian Prison

ROME (UPI) — A bomb exploded early today at the main entrance of Queen of Heaven prison where rioting prisoners battled guards with rocks, clubs and fire hoses for 24 hours late last month.

Police said the bomb, which contained a small amount of TNT, destroyed the wood and bronze door but there was no attempt to enter the prison. No one was injured.

Police said there was no indication of the motive for the attack, but they theorized it might have been in protest of disciplinary action against the prisoners who rioted July 27.

Plea Denied

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Judge Humberto Batista did not believe Amadeu Pinto's plea of self defense and sentenced him to three months in jail. Pinto told the judge he had acted in self defense when he beat up Alice de Castro. Pinto is 23. The woman is 76.

KTIM Broadcaster, Friend Terrorized

A part-time disc jockey for KTIM-FM in San Rafael and a companion suffered a half hour of terror Wednesday at the hands of two gunmen who forced their way into the broadcaster's Tamalpais Valley home, sheriff's deputies reported.

John F. Larosa, 30, told police he was awakened by a knock on the door at about 3 a.m. Two men standing outside asked if he was John and, when Larosa answered yes, they demanded he give them "the stuff."

When Larosa asked what stuff they meant, deputies reported, one of the men pulled a silver revolver from his waistband and cracked Larosa in the head with the gun.

The men then forced their way into the house and threatened to kill Larosa and Joann Dunbar, 42, deputies said.

Police reported that Larosa, who broadcasts on station KTIM under the name of Jonathan, was knocked around and generally terrorized for 30 minutes before one of the attackers suggested to his accomplice that they had better leave.

On the way out, police said, the gunman fired a shot into the house but the bullet missed Larosa and Miss Dunbar. Larosa, who also works as a real estate salesman, drove to Marin General Hospital to be treated for bruises, then called sheriff's deputies, officers reported. Miss Dunbar was not harmed.

Larosa described the men as in their early 30s, and told investigators he had never seen them before they appeared at his door.

Public Tenants Union Gets Official Status

The Marin County Housing Authority Commission has recognized the Marin County Public Housing Tenants Union as official representative for those in public housing throughout the county.

The action came Tuesday after the union, which has been inactive for the past several years, reported that it now has 107 active members from all the authority's housing projects and from leased housing.

The vote was 3-1, with Commissioner Rogers Jones dissenting and Philip S. Ehrlich Jr. and Harold A. Strouss absent, according to Wallace K. Shepherd, authority executive director.

The move to recognize the old tenants union was a blow to a new Marin-city based group which had hoped to represent tenants. The Marin City Tenants Association, formed last month, had not yet made a bid for official recognition by the authority but had indicated its intent to do so.

The group already has brought a class action suit, charging the authority with illegal eviction procedures which has resulted in an injunction preventing the authority from evicting tenants until the legal questions are resolved.

Shepherd said the authority board decided to recognize the tenants union "because it is broadly based and represents all tenants."

He said the Marin City group is not representative and that five of its 11-member board of directors do not live in public housing.

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, chairman of the union, said the group has been designated a nonprofit corporation by the state and is now seeking to join the national tenants organization.

In other business, the commission decided that tenants need not be moved during the remodeling of 150 Marin City public housing units.

Shepherd said persons living in units to be renovated can remain in them during the remodeling or move to other units which have already been completed.

He said the modernization will begin immediately.

The board also agreed to send a member of the tenants union and Susan Wiley, the authority's community services coordinator, to the National Tenants Organization conference in Chicago Aug. 30-Sept. 1.

Gasoline Stations Still Daytime-Only Creatures

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Little change was noted this week in the California State Automobile Association's weekly forecast of gasoline availability in California and Nevada.

The report, covering the period through Aug. 16, cites near-normal gasoline supplies for daytime drivers in most areas by continues to warn travelers who must travel at night or on Sundays.

The report repeated the familiar advice to keep tanks at least half full and fill up whenever possible.

Supplies in metropolitan San Francisco are near normal but warnings were still issued for suburban areas where substantial night and Sunday closings are reported.

Interstate 5 and Highway 99 continue to have good daytime supplies but few stations are reported open at night, especially north of Sacramento.

Eastbound traffic on Interstate 80 and Highway 50 should have no problems during daylight but few stations are open at night in the Sacramento area.

State To Repair Island Garrison

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The state probably will begin about $200,000 in repairs to the historic West Garrison on Angel Island within the next few months, according to Robert B. Hatch, superintendent of District Two of the state parks system.

Hatch said that the money recently was appropriated by the California Legislature and will pay for reroofing and weatherproofing the buildings.

The repairs will keep the buildings from deteriorating further while state park officials debate whether they want to completely restore the garrison to turn it into an historical museum complex.

"There's a philosophical argument going on right now in the department about whether we want to go into total reconstruction," said Hatch. "It would be extremely costly, as any construction is on the island."

The West Garrison, built in the late 1860s, includes a military warehouse, officers' and a general's quarters, mule barns, an old schoolhouse and an early torpedo station.

Hatch said that the heyday of the complex was during the Spanish-American War when many soldiers were stationed at the garrison before shipping out to battlegrounds.

Hatch said that instead of totally restoring the complex he has recommended refurbishing the hospital on the main approach to the West Garrison where visitors could view a scale model of the garrison before wandering into it.

The state might also put stock in the mule barns and pipe in music, Hatch said.

"With our previous track record on restoration, it's unlikely that we'd start any other major projects in the garrison in the near future," said Hatch. "There's just too much competition right now from environmental concerns for our money."

One reason the buildings are deteriorating is that the state cannot keep visitors to the island from going through them.

"We've cabled the buildings off, put signs on them and nailed boards over the door, and people keep pulling the boards off. We just can't keep them out."

The garrison which faces the Golden Gate Bridge is not the only part of the island undergoing change. At the North Garrison, a more recently built complex on Winslow Cove, an Army Reserve unit is tearing down World War II buildings to make way for a public beach and picnic area.

Hours Change

Forest Knolls Branch of the Marin County Library will be open Tuesdays from 6 to 9 p.m., instead of 2 to 5 p.m. starting Aug. 21. The Thursday schedule will remain 2 to 5 p.m., according to Bruce D. Bajema, county librarian.

Signups Slated For New Drake Students

Students new to Sir Francis Drake High School who were not registered last spring, should register from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Aug. 27 or 28 at the school in San Anselmo.

School will begin with an orientation program for all new students from 8:30 a.m. to 12:35 p.m., Sept. 11 and distribution of program cards for students already registered from 1 to 4 p.m., according to Edward Neumeier, district information officer.

TWO VIEWS OF CAMBODIA AS END OF BOMBING NEARS

U.S. Experiment Collapses; Who Will Be The Winners?

By JOSEPH C. HARSCH

An experiment in American foreign policy seems to be drawing to a less than successful close in Cambodia — but the results may be manageable.

That depends on who gets what out of the gradual collapse of the American experiment.

The American operating assumption has been that Cambodia must be in friendly, or at least neutral hands if a non-Communist South Vietnam is to survive. But right now the local Communist-supported forces of the Khmer Rouge are closing in all around Phnom Penh, almost without effort. The will of the Cambodians themselves to keep out of Communist hands is singularly lacking, or ineffective. Only American bombs seem to be staving off the collapse of the Lon Nol regime. And those bombs must stop by edict of the United States Congress, on Aug. 15.

That arbitrary cut-off date is a bitter disappointment to the Nixon administration which had counted on a Cambodian bombing deadline of not earlier than Sept. 1.

IN THEORY, Henry Kissinger was going to work out by Sept. 1 various arrangements under which Prince Norodom Sihanouk would return to Phnom Penh, would preside over a coalition and neutralist government, and would be able to give some protection to the endangered delta flank of the Saigon government.

Dr. Kissinger does have some residual bargaining power with Hanoi. Only Washington can provide the kind of economic aid which could revive the economy of North Vietnam. And it has something else more important in the long run working for its purpose. The Chinese government in Peking is no more anxious to see Hanoi become the master of all of Indochina than is Washington.

THE REAL QUESTION about Indochina ever since World War II has been whether it would be a united and strong entity. That was the dream of Vietnamese communist leader Ho Chi Minh and continues to be the dream goal of his successors in Hanoi.

But a united Indochina could play as important a role in southeast Asia as Tito's Yugoslavia has played in Communist Europe. It would be economically strong and could be politically and militarily important.

It was fear of precisely this which drew the United States into 20 years of entanglement in the jungles of Indochina. At the outset Washington was determined not to allow Indochina to become an outpost in southeast Asia of a monolithic Communist bloc.

But patterns in the Communist world have shifted and now the questions are: Who would control a united Indochina if it ever did come into being? Would it be Russia or China? Would it play the same kind of independently roving role which Marshal Tito has played so skillfully in Europe?

The last thing in the world Peking would want would be the Russians combined with a strong and united Indochina. Perhaps their ideal would be an Indochina in their own pocket. But could they count on being accepted in Hanoi as number one big brother? Small countires almost always want a remote protector against the big neighbor.

FROM THE CHINESE point of view a fragmented Indochina is the safest solution, Chinese diplomacy has always sought just that kind of protection for China's frontiers. It loves friendly but weak neighbors. So Peking is Dr. Kissinger's natural ally in trying to save an independent South Vietnam and prevent Hanoi from getitng control of Cambodia. But would they really be able to control a government which was largely dominated by the successful local Communist forces?

We all know by now, or should, that communism has never successfully resisted nationalism. In theory, all Communists live in harmonious brotherhood. In practice the two bitterest enemies in the world today are the Russian and Chinese Communists. There is no certainty that a local Communist victory in Cambodia will in fact mean Cambodia coming under Hanoi's control. It just might work the other way. We are, it seems going to have a chance to find out — very soon.

Smell Of Corruption Hangs Over Stricken Land

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — The poison of corruption that is like a moral smog in the atmosphere of this capital hangs heavy over the tragedy of Cambodia. However much the decision-makers may be singed by the failures of a policy doomed to failure from the start, the real victims are the peasants who once lived a comfortable life in what was a green oasis.

For all the B-52 sorties, the economic aid, the masterminding of the bombing attacks by American specialists, the Lon Nol government could not be propped up with sufficient muscle to negotiate even if the Communist Khmer Rouge had been interested in negotiating. The end is near, and it will be a bitter defeat for American policy, with so much suffering inflicted on helpless people.

The Congress adjourned with a resolution showing deep dutrust of President Nixon's intentions. While the Constitution gives the President authority to call Congress back into session, the resolution provides that congressional leaders may bring about a recall. Not unprecedented, such a resolution is nevertheless rare.

A STRONG SUSPICION that the President intended to continue the bombing after the Aug. 15 deadline was the reason for the resolution. The compromise pried out of the White House for a cutoff by mid-August was hardly a triumph of statesmanship. Congressional leaders were convinced the President would veto an immediate halt as he threatened to do.

A potent advocate of the resolution was majority leader Mike Mansfield, who has had a long, continuing relationship with Cambodia and the deposed ruler, Prince Norodom Sihanouk. Mansfield is going to China during the recess, hoping to see Sihanouk in Peking. The prince believes he will be restored to power by the Khmer Rouge when Phnom Penh falls and the fighting ends.

In the embittered controversy over the secret bombing, Sihanouk had an ambivalent role. Documents are in existence showing he knew of the bombing and made no protest so long as it was confined to the areas in Cambodia where the North Vietnamese had sanctuaries from which to attack South Vietnam. When Mansfield saw Sihanouk in 1969 the prince gave him a hint of his attitude.

The majority leader also expects to renew his relationship with China's Premier Chou En-lai. With the encouragement of Henry A. Kissinger, the President's adviser on national security, Mansfield will be the first member of Congress to go to China on his own and not as a member of a bipartisan group. Aware of the strains that Watergate and the President's other troubles have put on relations with the People's Republic, he believes he can contribute to a sense of continuity so essential to Peking.

Among far-out types Mansfield is considered a laughable figure. Certainly he is not in the arm-twisting, head-knocking tradition of Lyndon Johnson, who ruled the Senate like Little Caesar. But he has been deeply angered by what has happened in Cambodia, and beware the anger of a compassionate man!

WHAT IS HARD to understand is how the administration walked into the Cambodian trap. The argument is that if it were not for the Aug. 15 deadline Sihanouk, with China's backing, would have been ready to negotiate a peace settlement with Lon Nol. But would the Khmer Rouge and their North Vietnamese advisers been willing to go along with this? No one will ever know the answer to that question.

Almost without exception, news correspondents have given a picture of negligent, incompetent leadership in Phnom Penh; military commanders without ability or capacity to inspire their men to fight; the rich ignoring all responsibility and now in these last days sending their money out of the country. Latest news stories tell of the frantic struggle for scarce places on planes still flying out of the capital. The mass of the people, perhaps up to half — refugees suffering from hunger, disease and the threat of annihilation from American bombs — will endure as best they can the final collapse.

Melvin R. Laird, looking blandly innocent on television, can say that, yes, he and the President ordered the secret bombing in 1969. But he had nothing to do with falsifying the records, which was merely Pentagon bookkeeping. Where the blame lies must seem scarcely to matter, with so much obscured by the fog of suspicion and distrust.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Rationality Vanishes In 'Security' Spending

It started out as a little matter of some $30,000. That is how much the General Accounting Office reported, in response to an inquiry last spring, had been spent from public funds on President Nixon's San Clemente home.

This week, the figure has grown to about $10 million — at San Clemente, Key Biscayne, and on Grand Cay in the Bahamas, a home where the President is often a guest but which is owned by his friend, Robert Abplanalp.

THIS INVESTMENT of public money on private property has been principally in the name of security — to protect the President and his family. It has included such things as fences, walls, and bullet-proof glass. But it also has included such things as landscaping, swimming pools, and entire houses.

Most of the $10 million worth of improvements (some of which might be doubtful improvements from the standpoint of a private owner) were done at request of the Secret Service, according to Arthur Sampson of GSA. The Secret Service is charged with protecting the President.

Protection for the President certainly is not to be dismissed as unnecessary — not since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and of his brother Robert, who was only a candidate for President.

It would seem, however, that "security" has taken some strange shapes in the improvements to the President's estates. Perhaps the Secret Service got carried away.

THAT IS NOT too hard to understand. We had a demonstration right here in Marin County of how the need for security can lead from one thing to another.

After the shoot-out at the Marin County Civic Center in August, 1970, in which Judge Harold J. Haley was killed, there was immediate demand for greater security measures. The need was all too obvious.

The board of supervisors started out by buying $28,266 worth of metal detectors and walkie-talkies, and beefing up the force of sheriff's deputies on Civic Center guard duty.

But within a few months, $4,720 more of metal detectors were purchased. Then two fences were built, at cost of about $10,000. Then grillwork was installed on the Civic Center balcony, for another $35,000. More sheriff's officers were hired. Bullet-proof glass was installed in courtrooms.

Within a year, $400,000 of the taxpayers' money had been spent on security measures at the Civic Center.

THE FACT IS that in recent years there have been great fears for both public and private security — and not without reason.

But when such fears become the excuse for spending $10 million of public money on improvements to private property, rationality has vanished somewhere along the line — even if the property is that of the President of the United States.

After all, the President does not require estates (safe or unsafe) in both California and Florida and a hideaway in the Bahamas.

Lower Rates Would Attract Youth To Golf

As an avid golfer, having played all courses mentioned in Mr. Lent's article, I can appreciate what the courses are doing to "plant the seeds of golfing desire" in the county's youth.

I have a 15-year-old son who went through the free instructions at San Geronimo a few years ago as well as having private lessons from a local pro. To this extent, I feel the courses are doing a great job to acquaint young people with the game of golf. However, I feel the courses really fall down on the job when these same youngsters wish to continue playing at the mentioned courses at a price they can afford.

To my knowledge, only the Mill Valley course presents an opportunity for young people to play the course at an attractive rate of 50 cents each Monday (except holidays) up to noon. All other Marin County courses charge young players the same weekday rates as adults playing the course. . .

As a suggestion, Youth Days can possibly be set up at the various Marin courses during the summer months. In effect, lower rates for juniors will be set for only one weekday at each of the various courses. I recognize the courses require income at fees that enable them to meet expenses. However, by attracting many young people for one day at lower rates, the revenues generated will probably be more than the usual play at regular fees. Also, how about the additional revenues to snack bars for cokes, hot dogs, candy bars, etc. that will result from heavier play.

As indicated, the courses are doing a great job to get the youth of Marin County interested in golf. Now let them present opportunities to enable them to take advantage of the instructions and grow with the game.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

A worker has more leisure time than ever before but his boss is putting in longer hours than ever.

In recent years the average employe has gained the equivalent of 19 days off a year due to holidays, longer vacations and shorter work days. But bosses continue to labor longer at doing less work.

Executives are reluctant to take a day off. Somebody might discover that nobody misses 'em.

A shopper seeking assistance in a department store approached a gent who was standing around looking official. "Do you work here?" she asked. "No," the fellow replied. "I'm an executive."

Fifty Million Frenchmen Entitled To See Their Bomb

WASHINGTON — "There has been a lot of misinformation in the press as to why New Zealand has raised such strong objections to the French holding their atomic tests in the Pacific," Anthony Cubert-Jones, a New Zealander, told me. "We are not against France having an atomic bomb. As a matter of fact, we welcome it. The French deserve a bomb. They've earned it."

"Then what is your objection?" I asked.

"We feel that by holding their tests in the Pacific, the French are cheating their own citizens."

"I don't understnand."

"THE FRENCH TAXPAYER has paid a billion dollars to have his government develop an atomic bomb. But he has been unable to see what he's getting for his money. All he can do is read in the newspapers that France has set off a bomb in the atoll of Mururoa. He has to take the French government's word that the explosion was a success. We New Zealanders feel this is very unfair to French citizens who have paid for it but get none of the joy of actually seeing an atomic bomb go off."

"But what's the solution?"

"I think the French should hold their atomic tests in France so everyone can see them."

"Are you suggesting the next atomic explosion take place over Paris?"

"Now you're being ridiculous. You know it's infeasible to hold atomic blasts in a large city. What I have in mind is that the experiments take place in either Burgundy or Bordeaux. The French could clear away 20 or 30 miles of vineyards, build a testing complex and send up the bomb in a balloon to explode over the countryside. The mushroom cloud would be visible for hundreds of miles and could be witnessed by millions of Frenchmen. Can you imagine how proud the French would be to see their own bomb, made in France by Frenchmen, floating over the Eiffel Tower?"

"WOULDN'T THERE be some health hazards?" I asked.

"The French have assured us that there is no danger from their experiments on the Mururoa atoll so I'm sure the same would be true if they blasted away in France."

"I wonder why the French never thought of it?"

"I suppose they thought those of us who live in the Pacific should get the benefit of their bomb. Perhaps they believed it would help tourism in Tahiti. I can't speak for their thinking, but if I were a Frenchman, I'd be damned mad that I didn't get the fallout from a bomb I paid for with my hard-earned francs."

"Why do you think Pompidou insisted the explosion take place in Micronesia instead of Burgundy or Bordeaux?"

"This is only conjecture on my part, but I suspect he was afraid the thing wouldn't go off. It would have been very embarrassing if he told everyone in France he was going to explode his bomb in Burgundy, and the thing pfffft. Can you imagine the disappointment of the vine growers in the area?"

"IS IT TOO LATE to persuade the French to move their future tests to France?"

"All of us in the Pacific hope not. As a matter of fact, Australia, New Zealand and Japan have offered to pay for shipping everything back to France, including all the technicians and military personnel. We would hate to see them go, but it is our belief that the French will never believe they have a sufficient deterrent unless they can see it explode with their own eyes."

"Then New Zealanders and Australians harbor no bitterness toward the French?"

"Of course not. Have you ever met a Frenchman you didn't like?"

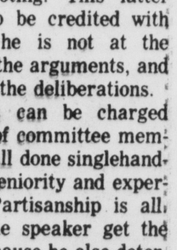
Packing Of Committees Erodes System's Integrity



By EARL G. WATERS

There is no constitutional provision for the system. It need not exist. But the theory is that it permits far more searching review of proposed law changes than would be possible if all measures were simply dumped into one big hopper and voted upon by the full body without screening.

For the system to work well, the members should be persons with expertise in the field assigned, or possessed with a keen interest which motivates them to more than average knowledge of the subjects.

In Congress, where seniority rules, committeemen presumably gain proficiency by length of service and the chairmen are the most senior.

IN ANY EVENT, the system cannot work unless the committeemen work at it. They must not only familiarize themselves with the proposals and their ramifications; they must attend meetings, listen to the arguments, and participate in the deliberations.

On the premise that this is done, the rest of the members place great reliance upon committee actions and recommendations. They expect the committees to table unnecessary proposals and refer for further study those which fail to provide satisfactory solutions. They also expect the committees to submit to the full body proposals warranting the consideration of all the members.

The committee system has been zealously protected by the members over the years. They resist motions to withdraw bills from committee. Such motions are viewed as bypassing committees and a frontal attack upon the system. Occasionally, in the Assembly, bills are withdrawn by the membership, but the Senate honors an unwritten rule against it.

But the strength of the committee system in the Assembly has been suffering from lack of attendance and the practice of proxy voting. This latter permits a member to be credited with voting even though he is not at the meeting, doesn't hear the arguments, and contributes nothing to the deliberations.

This inattentiveness can be charged partly to the method of committee member selection. This is all done singlehandedly by the speaker. Seniority and expertise are incidental. Partisanship is all. Those who support the speaker get the favored spots. And because he also determines what bills go to what committee, he often dictates the fate of legislation beforehand.

NOT SATISFIED with this vast power to rig committees with those with whom he has predetermined understandings on various issues before the Legislature, Speaker Bob Moretti has invented a new wrinkle. Finding things not going exactly the way he planned, he has taken to enlarging committee memberships. Thus, by adding new members to a committee, he can load the dice to produce his desired result.

Moretti recently chose this means of springing loose various gambling measures bottled up by a 3-to-2 vote in the Constitutional Amendments Committee. The speaker has added two more members with the expectation the vote will now be 4-to-3 in favor of the bills.

The American people are repulsed by those who want to change the rules in the middle of the game. President Roosevelt found this out when he attempted to pack the Supreme Court. Such actions negate any reason for rules and wipe out the structural fiber of the system.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

AUG. 9, 1963

The infant son of President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy died of a lung disease less than three days after birth.

Rep. Donald H. Clausen, R-First District, announced the Navy would move out of the Tiburon Naval Net Depot and it would be taken over by the Interior Department for west coast oceanographic headquarters.

20 YEARS AGO

Aug. 9, 1953

Jane Russell and Marilyn Monroe in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" topped the film bill at the Tamalpais Theater in San Anselmo.

A petition backing a site near the Corte Madera Wye for the Marin County Fairgrounds was ready for presentation to the county board of supervisors.

"The man who has everything he wants has learned to do without some things."

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Who shoots at the mid-day sun, though he be sure he shall never hit the mark; yet sure he is, he shall shoot higher than he who aims at a bush. — Philip Sidney.

But he would never believe that Providence had sent a few men into the world, ready booted and spurred to ride, and millions ready saddled and bridled to be ridden. — Richard Rumbold.

Panel Again Rejects Plan Of Taco Bell

A planned Taco Bell restaurant at Novato Square should be redesigned, the Novato Plan Review Committee insists.

Committee members, who had rejected the standard mission-type Taco Bell building at a previous meeting, reconsidered the matter at the request of the Novato City Council.

The committee suggested a building that would be in harmany with other buildings in Novato Square and the nearby Civic Center, Planning Director Brian W. Mattson reported.

Ben Ostlind of San Rafael, owner of the parcel, has appealed rejection of architectural plans to the city council.

The Novato Plan Review Committee also:

ELM COURT — Approved revised architectural and landscape plans for a 14-unit apartment project at the end of Elm Court, adjoining Novato Creek, submitted by Frank Fonseca.

Growers Deny A Bread Shortage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The wheat growers Wednesday took issue with a warning by the baking industry that Americans will run out of bread unless the administration limits wheat exports.

On Tuesday, Richard W. Daspit, president of the American Bakers Association, wired President Nixon that unless he protects U.S. wheat reserves by limiting exports, "bread will disappear across most of the United States by next June."

One Wednesday, Ray Davis, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, wired President Nixon that growers are harvesting a record wheat crop and that the next harvest could easily be 10 per cent bigger.

Governor's Mansion Site Bill To Floor

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill requiring the proposed governor's mansion to be built in downtown Sacramento instead of the suburban Carmichael site chosen by Gov. Ronald Reagan has advanced to the Assembly floor.

The bill (AB1241) by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, cleared the Ways and Means Committee Wednesday on a minimum 11-7 vote which generally split along party lines.

Package For Elderly Care Reaches Senate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly-passed package to upgrade health care for elderly Medi-Cal patients and give nursing homes a $40 million rate increase has advanced in the Senate.

The Health and Welfare Committee Wednesday approved the three bills carried by Assemblyman Leo McCarthy, D-San Francisco on a series of 7-0 votes and forwarded them to the Finance Committee. The Reagan administration opposed two of the bills.

The package was developed by the special Joint Committee on Aging which held hearings earlier into charges that aged Medi-Cal recipients failed to receive proper care at some nursing homes.

The lone bill (AB1601) supported by the administration was designed to prohibit kickbacks from nursing homes to persons or agencies who refer patients to them.

Under the biggest measure (AB1602), nursing homes reimbursed by Medi-Cal would be allowed to increase their rates from $16.97 a day per patient to $18.01 —for an overall first-year increase of about $40 million in state and federal funds.

The nursing home industry has contended current fee limits were too low to provide the type of care required by the state. As a consequence, some nursing homes have refused to accept Medi-Cal patients.

The administration opposed the measure on the basis of cost impact.

Another bill (AB1600) would establish civil fines of up to $5,000 for state-licensed nursing home and extended care facilities treating Medi-Cal patients which violated two proposed new health protection regulations.

A new "Class A" violation would present an "imminent danger" to patients or guests resulting in a "substantial probability of death or physical harm." A "Class D" violation would be one that has a "direct or immediate" relationship to the patients' health, safety or security.

The state Health Department would define what constituted the proposed new violations and administer the revision.

SACRAMENTO SUMMARY

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Governor

Agri — Told 1,400 4-H leaders from northern and central California at a conference in Davis that the state's farming industry should not be blamed for high prices.

Seed Saving

TRACY, Calif. (UPI) — Sugar beet growers now use 1½ to 2½ pounds of seed an acre, compared with 20 pounds in former years. Agronomist Alex Lang says seeds have been improved to assure germination and to resist plant diseases.

Worse Mail Service Is Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Letter Carrier's Union local president predicts that postal service in the San Francisco Bay Area will get worse within a year.

Speaking Wednesday at a congressional hearing, president Donald Hackett said employe morale was at an all-time low because of "slave driver" working conditions imposed by the U.S. Postal Service.

"There has been an appalling deterioration of service," said Hackett, who represents 17,600 postmen in the area.

(In San Rafael, however, Asst. Postmaster Edgar Fisher said that postal service in Marin and Southern Sonoma is in "very good shape" with better than 95 per cent of the mail receiving overnight delivery in the Bay Area.

(He said that since mail from Marin and Southern Sonoma is no longer sent to San Francisco for sorting the service is "greatly improved" and he foresaw no deterioration.)

Norm Reith, a Bank of America assistant vice president, complained that mail between San Francisco and Sacramento takes from two to four days.

Guido Alasia, district manager for the service, held that the area's service in this area "is the best and most efficient in Post Office history."

Faculty Clubs Bar Bill Gains

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation greatly easing the requirements for campus faculty clubs at the University of California to obtain liquor licenses was unanimously approved Wednesday by the Senate.

Under the bill by Sen. Robert Stevens, R-Los Angeles, faculty clubs would be eligible to apply for a license if they had been in existence for five years and had a membership of 300. Currently, they must have been established for 35 years and have 750 members.

The bill (SB1192) which would affect faculty clubs at UCLA and UC campuses at Santa Barbara, Irvine and Riverside, went to the Assembly In a 28-0 vote.

Sculpture Planned With POW Bracelets

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — More than 6,000 prisoner of war bracelets will be melted down and molded into a memorial to Vietnam war POWs next week at the Spokane Steel Foundry.

John Penold, foundry owner, said Wednesday he received the pattern for the mold this week from sculptor Harold Balasz. The bracelets were collected by Mrs. Ellen Ewing of Spokane.

New England Death Penalty Bill Gains

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts House gave initial approval Wednesday to legislation that would make the death penalty mandatory for persons found guilty of first degree murder.

The bill was approved on a 130-89 roll call vote after an hour of debate.

State Revokes Garage License

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The five-month-old Bureau of Automotive Repair has revoked its first license which authorizes garages to certify car antipollution devices.

After an administrative hearing, the Arco Service station owned by Donald F. McMullen in Pittsburg was found to have falsely certified a car's pollution control equipment, the bureau said Wednesday.

Its license as a motor vehicle pollution control device installation and inspection station was subsequently revoked, effective July 22, the bureau said.

STORY OF KILLING — Seventeen-year-old Elmer Wayne Henley told reporters early today how he shot and killed Dean Corll, 33, at the man's suburban Houston home to keep himself from being sexually molested, slaughtered, and dumped in a makeshift grave. He led police to a shed where they dug up eight bodies, reportedly victims of Corll.

Richardson Acts To Aid Office Image

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson said Wednesday he has ordered Justice Department employees to report any conversations about department matters with outsiders, including congressmen.

"Only news media representatives are excluded" from the requirement, he said, outlining his policy of clearing the department of public suspicion that it was politically influenced.

In a major speech to the Assembly of the American Bar Association, Richardson said his first duty as a new attorney general "is to do what I can to eliminate the causes of distrust, having taken office in the midst of the darkening cloud of suspicion and distrust engendered by Watergate." He became attorney general May 25.

He had directed that no key position be headed by a person "who is perceived to be an active political partisan," and said he was considering establishing an inspector general's office in the department "to assure that those who have the public trust are consistently worthy of the trust."

Stating that one way to restore confidence in government following the Watergate scandal was to ensure freedom of the press, Richardson said he was initiating a government-wide study of the Freedom of Information Act for the guidance of both the executive branch and Congress.

Richardson said he was concerned about the department's relationship with the news media and about First Amendment guarantees, and was considering a set of guidelines to require his specific approval before a newsman can be questioned, served with a subpoena or made a defendant in any federal court proceeding.

He cited departmental guidelines issued in 1970 by then Attorney General John N. Mitchell which required the attorney general's approval before a subpoena can be issued to a representative of the news media.

Mill Valley Orders Slide Repaired

A contract for $146,363 to repair slide damage to Vista Linda Drive was awarded Wednesday night by the Mill Valley City Council. (Another Mill Valley City Council story, page 1.)

Maggiora and Ghilotti, a Corte Madera construction firm, was low bidder and received the contract for street repairs to begin immediately.

Residents of the area had warned the council that two homes might be lost if construction is delayed until after the rainy season starts.

The council also approved several agreements with property owners in the area to use their land during street repairs. Residents have been forced to drive on a fire trail to and from their homes.

Dr. Yen M. Jew, of 340 Vista Linda Drive, refused to sign an agreement allowing the city to use his property during the construction and his attorney, Richard A. Williams, became engaged with councilmen in angry verbal jousting over the agreement.

The council instructed City Atty. Leland H. Jordan to seek a court order for immediate possession of the Jew property for construction easement during the repair.

Williams told the council he would cooperate with the city in the matter but would not submit to an agreement which did not provide total replacement of his client's home should slippage occur during construction on the street.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

MILLER — Postponed until Aug. 15 action on the plans and call for bids on the Miller Avenue improvement project.

REQUEST — Approved a request by Douglas P. Ferguson that the city begin condemnation proceedings for a sewer line.

TENNIS — Issued a building permit to the Scott Valley Swimming and Tennis Club.

RESOLUTIONS — Approved resolutions for stop signs at Azalea Drive and Aster Court and at Azalea Drive and Hollyhock Court.

MEETING — Adjourned to its next meeting Aug. 15 when it will meet in closed session at 8 p.m. in the city manager's office preceding a regular meeting at 9 p.m. in city hall.

Pressure On Agnew To Halt Probe?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Maryland contractor under investigation along with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew contacted a "close associate" of Agnew's this year to urge that the Vice President use his influence to stop the inquiry, the Washington Post reported today.

Quoting "informed sources," the newspaper identified the contractor as Lester Matz, a Baltimore County consulting engineer. It did not identify the "close associate."

The Post said Matz reportedly told the intermediary that the continuing federal inquiry was bound to affect Agnew and that it should be stopped. It said he did not, however, threaten to supply information about Agnew to federal investigators if the probe continued.

Agnew was asked during his news conference Wednesday whether "anyone either directly or indirectly threatened to drag you into this unless you helped to kill the Baltimore County investigation."

Agnew answered: "I am not going to respond to that question at this time because it is premature for me to make such judgements. If you say with a direct contact to me, I would say no. I don't want to make any assertions in a matter this sensitive that I am absolutely not sure are accurate, and I am not going to foreclose the possibility that such things may have happened. Neither am I going to assert at this moment that they did."

"Did anyone ask you to kill the investigation in Baltimore County?" Agnew was asked.

"No, no one asked me to do it," he replied.

Parcel Drivers Win Pay Boost

BURLINGAME (UPI) — Fifteen hundred United Parcel Service drivers in Northern and Central California have ratified a new 33-month contract.

The Western Conference of Teamsters announced Wednesday 24 locals approved the pact, which calls for 95 cents an hour in pay hikes during the nearly three years it will be in force.

The pay hikes include 35 cents retroactive to July 1 and 30 cents each on July 1, 1974, and July 1, 1975, plus an 8 to 11 cents cost-of-living clause pegged to federal inflation figures. The drivers also get an additional holiday, increased company pension contributions and improved health and insurance benefits.

Army Recruiting Plan In Touble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army has failed to reach its recruiting goals in all six months since the draft ended.

The Pentagon said Wednesday the Army filled only 76 per cent of its recruiting goal in July.

And 35 per cent of those who did enlist were black, almost three times the black proportion of the population.

Officials said the proportion of recruits with low intelligence scores rose to 31 per cent last month, the highest figure in the four years for which records were immediatly available. This is almost double the Army's goal of taking no more than 18 per cent of low scorers in tests.

Rusk Is Good After Surgery

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UPI) — A Mayo Clinic spokesman said Wednesday former Secretary of State Dean Rusk was in satisfactory post-operative condition at Rochester Methodist Hospital.

Mayo Clinic surgeons performed vascular surgery on Rusk Wednesday for the excision of a moderately sized abdominal aortic aneurysm.

The spokesman said the operation was a normal one and there were no complications. He said Rusk, now a professor at the University of Georgia, probably will be hospitalized for 10 days to two weeks.

Bodies Unearthed In Grisly Murder Case

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jail trustees gouging through three lime soaked graves Wednesday night unearthed the bodies of eight young men apparently the victim of a "perverted, sadistic clown" who sexually molested them and buried them in a boat shed during the last two years.

Police said they expected to find more bodies in the muggy boat shed today.

Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, led police to the scene Wednesday after he said he shot and killed Dean Corll, 33, at the man's suburban Pasadena, Tex., home to prevent him from sexually assaulting and killing him and two companions. Corll is suspected of the mass killings.

Henley said the four had a party and sniffed acrylics out of a bag.

"He woke us up and was tying us up and handcuffing us," Henley told reporters while sitting handcuffed in a patrol car near where the inmates were digging up the remains. "He said he was going to kill us all, but first he was going to have his fun.

"I talked to him and told him I would do the killing if he would let me up and let me go."

Henley said he was released and soon grabbed Corll's .22-caliber pistol and shot him. He called police and told them of Corll's alleged sexual attacks and burial ground.

"At first it was just this guy's word," Pasadena detective David Mullican said. "Then we started out and found eight bodies.

"A guy like this is a perverted, sadistic clown. Evidently he tried to cover up the activity by burying them. We're going to check into his Pasadena back yard too."

One of the bodies is believed to be that of a boy missing since 1971. He was 13 years old when he disappeared. A bicycle, matching the one owned by the missing boy, was found leaning against the boat shed, where drydocked boats were kept by owners who didn't plan to use them for several months.

Police believed the victims were murdered in Pasadena, on Houston's southeast side, and the bodies carried to the boat shed on the southwest side, a distance of 15 miles.

India's Economy 'Passing Phase'

NEW DELHI (UPI) —Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today broke her long silence on India's faltering economy and said, "it is a passing phase."

"There is no cause for panic," Mrs. Gandhi told a military rally. "We are going through a difficult period, but it is a passing phase.

"The country is in the midst of a big struggle and its future depends on our success in this struggle," Mrs. Gandhi said.

Douglas Planning A Trip Into China

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, who urged recognition of Red China more than 20 years ago, will visit Peking. Douglas planned to come here today from his home in Goose Prairie, 50 miles away, and then fly to Hong Kong.

Mrs. Douglas, who will accompany him, said they will enter the People's Republic of China shortly after their arrival at Hong Kong.

Murder Charge In Sex Scandal

MADRID (UPI) — Colin Levy, the London taxi driver who was involved in a British sex scandal, has been charged with trying to kill his wife.

A British embassy spokesman said Levy was charged Tuesday. He was arrested in mid-July after allegedly trying to run down his wife, Norma Levy, in a car.

His wife allegedly earlier had relations with a British government official who resigned after the matter was disclosed.

Women Gaining Jobs As Campus Officials

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women are making small but significant inroads into the administrative operations of state and land-grant universities.

The National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULC) says 864 women held major administrative positions at these institutions during the 1972-73 school year.

Cotati Park Panel Seeks More Power

A fight for greater independence was launched at the Cotati Parks and Recreation Commission meeting Wednesday night.

Commission Chairman Lee Gray said members will seek an ordinance amendment giving them more authority.

Currently the commission may spend no money nor undertake any project without first getting permission from the city council. Mrs. Gray said projects have been slowed unnecessarily by regulations in the ordinance which created the commission last year. "It seems we should be able to have a dead tree removed without going to the city council first," she said.

Councilman Annette Lombardi attended the commission meeting and said she would urge her fellow councilmen to make the needed ordinance changes.

The commission also agreed to renew its attempts to establish a swimming pool fund. The council previously rejected the idea, saying no donations should be gathered until plans have been made for a pool.

Mrs. Gray said the commission received a report that a 35 by 50 foot pool could be built for between $17,000 and $20,000 depending on how much labor is donated. It could be located in the 2.5-acre city park in the Holiday Park section.

Carrying Gas Perilous Practice

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California State Automobile Association has warned against the "very dangerous practice" of carrying extra gas in cars to avoid running out of fuel.

The association said gas carried other than in a car's fuel tank can expand and overflow, particularly in warm weather, creating fumes. As a result, a spark or lighted cigarette could cause an explosion.

Administration Decides On A Voluntary Oil Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration rejected today for the "foreseeable future" a mandatory allocation program for petroleum and petroleum products, choosing instead to try to make the present voluntary program more effective.

John A. Love, director of the White House Energy Policy Office, did release a draft of a mandatory allocation program for oil products and invited comments from interested parties concerning future consideration.

"We are not now planning to implement the mandatory program at any specific time in the foreseeable future," Love said. He said he believes the mandatory program has "significant flaws both philosophically and practically."

He added, "it runs the very great risk of reducing, not increasing, the available supply of fuels."

Love said however, "We are publishing this week in the Federal Register a draft mandatory allocation program for petroleum and petroleum products .... We are attempting to develop the best program in recognition that circumstances in future may require such a program."

Love also:

Predicted that winter supplies of home heating oil would be sufficient to avoid serious shortages next winter unless there is severely cold weather.

Praised the petroleum industry's performance in stepping up gasoline production to avert severe, nationwide shortages this summer.

Said both federal and state environmental regulations might be adjusted to allow increased use of coal and more readily available oil with high sulfur content as means of alleviating shortages.

Noted supplies of propane, used particularly for drying of some farm products and for rural and mobile home heating, are short and this presents a particularly difficult problem.

Love said he had given careful study to the current voluntary fuel allocation program. "I do not believe it has solved all of our problems," he said. "But I am impressed by the fact that it has done significant good and has generally met the needs of the American people."

The voluntary program adopted May 10 has shortcomings, Love said, but said he was not convinced they could be "corrected by adopting a mandatory fuel allocation system." He expressed hope that with revisions in the voluntary system, "we will have greater success."

Love said the administration was "extremely wary of the ramifications and potential risks of a mandatory petroleum allocation system." The former Colorado governor said it was not felt that "the current supply situation or other industry problems warrant use of such a system as a remedy at this time."

There had been widespread reports that the administration was about to order a government allocation program. Love said a great number of options had been examined and the program now in existence "represents the most feasible and practical type which we have been able to develop to date."

Love acknowledged that the voluntary fuel allocation system has fallen short of solving all problems, but eaid he was impressed with the performance of the petroleum industry in stepping up output to unprecedented levels.

He said this summer's gasoline supply "has turned out to be more adequate than most imagined" last spring. "The industry had made a major and successful effort to meet our growing demands."

He also said the outlook for winter heating oil supplies was much brighter than previously anticipated.

"We are not now planning to implement the mandatory program at any specific time in the foreseeable future," he said.

Love said he believes a mandatory program has "significant flaws both philosophically and practically."

"It runs the very great risk of reducing, not increasing the available supply of fuels," he said.

IN THE OFFICE, New York City advertising agency research coordinator Irene Frey works in cool comfort with her navel showing. The naked look has moved from beaches and pools to streets and offices in many of the hotter cities this summer, according to a UPI poll. Miss Frey wears a brief top, hipster pants and open sandals to beat the heat.

The Naked Look Moving Into The Office In Hot Weather

By GAY PAULEY

The naked look has moved from the beaches and poolsides to the streets and in many parts of the country into offices.

Backs are bared with halters, tummies are bared with brief tops above short shorts, hipster pants or long skirts. And the traditional bra has gone into limbo for many.

One girl watcher informed me that in a block and one-half walk on New York's 42nd Street during lunch hour the other day he counted 12 belly buttons on display. That's outdoor airconditioning for you!

A UPI survey nationally indicates that this summer when the heat is on, the girls take it off, right down to the basics. And although most business offices report "relatively few" extremes in dress, all those young things hardly covered at all work somewhere.

At MS, the feminist magazine, liberation in dress puts most of the female staff in pants and T-shirts or halter dresses. "No bare midriffs, though," spokeswoman Karen Lippert said. "We have three men on our staff and they're not showing belly buttons either."

At traditionally more conservative companies, dresses and pantsuits are the style scene, although no formal policy against halters and the like exists.

Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, the big brokerage house which employs thousands of girls, said, "All we ask is that dress be in good taste for both female and male employes."

Ken McIlveen, of the personnel department at Metropolitan Life which employs nearly 10,000 women in the greater New York area alone, said, "We notice more informality this summer, but not as extreme as on the streets."

UPI'S WASHINGTON, D.C., bureau says, "The navel is very much in evidence this summer. Bare midriffs... halters (braless from all the evidence)... sheer materials sustain the interest of girl watchers. But the bareness appears pretty much confined to the tourists (especially the younger girls) and the local women on their off hours.

"At work, the Washington locals remain on the conservative side, particularly in government offices which seem to psychologically inhibit them without any express dress code."

St. Louis reported a generally conservative summer. A spokesman for General American Life Insurance said, "We do not think bare midriffs or halter tops are appropriate for the office." The company sent memorandums to supervisors asking employes not to wear such apparel because several already had from time to time.

The cities with generally warm climates year-round reported more of the microminis than any other fashion for office and street. And, at the beaches and pools, the tiniest of bikinis, in places such as San Diego and Miami.

Los Angeles reported backless dresses, short shorts and midriffs hitting the streets but largely staying out of offices. Pants, though, are office favorites.

ALBANY, N.Y., women aren't wearing the naked look at work. But a photographer who covered the Can-Am road race at Watkins Glen, N.Y., said, "There were a lot of girls in long pants there. They were long on bottoms... but awfully short on top. There were a lot of bare midriffs and halter tops. There must have been 40,000 girls there and three bras among them."

Pittsburgh reported the "belly button makes the scene big downtown, especially among the younger girls wearing anything from blue jeans to hot pants. Mostly they seem to be shoppers, students and downtown visitors."

In Kansas City, Mo., the halter seems the favorite among the younger women. As Rob Lubert, 20, a clerk at the Grain Exchange Jeans store put it, "Girls are wearing halters more because they have more sexual freedom."

In Louisville, a young attorney who didn't want his name used said he was a dedicated girl watcher and the whole trend "has been salutary...it's certainly calculated to inspire—it makes everyone smile and feel good."

Recently a girl employed in the Kentucky Department of Economic Security in Louisville was sent home for wearing a see-through blouse and no bra. Now, the employes are trying to put together a dress code to please everyone.

CHICAGO REPORTED skirt lengths going up as the temperatures rose. Bare midriffs are showing up at offices. The no-bra look is in.

Mel Banks, the personnel manager at Equitable Life Assurance which has more than 400 girls employed in Chicago, said that "as long as they are neat and presentable we don't care what they wear."

On Chicago's Michigan Avenue, the Uptown Federal Savings bank features a lemonade stand staffed with several well-endowed girls in halters and shorts. The UPI girl watcher there said the stand, which dispenses lemonade for two cents a glass, "has turned lemonade drinking into a spectator sport."

VOWS IN LARKSPUR

Kathleen Anne Devine became the bride of Paul Ralph Della Santina in a St. Patrick's Church ceremony in Larkspur. A reception was held at the Marin Art and Garden Center. The couple will live in San Rafael.

JUST A COUPLE OF RENEGADES

Characters from the Marin Shakespeare Festival's production of "Alice in Wunderland" (from left) the Griffin, Ralph Steadman, and the Mock Turtle, Paul Ventura, stopped at the Marin YMCA Day Camp in San Rafael Wednesday to talk about themselves. The Griffin explained he is half eagle, half lion, while the Mock Turtle is a fake because he is half pilot. It's all explained when you see the show, they told Marin children yesterday at the YMCA and at their other stops at summer schools, parks and shopping centers.

Classic Car Fete At Pebble Beach

By MOLLY MARIN

The 23rd Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance will get underway Sunday on the lawn at Del Monte Lodge in Pebble Beach, with proceeds going to Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael.

Among the judges chosen to select the most elegant car from the field at large for the Gwenn Graham Memorial Trophy are Fred Ludekens of Belvedere, well known commercial artist, along with photographer Ansel Adams, Gus Arriola the "Gordo" cartoonist, and others from the Carmel-Monterey area.

A dinner dance will be held at Del Monte Lodge the evening before the Concours.

CONGRESSMAN and Mrs. William S. Mailliard and their three daughters are spending the month of August in Marin while Congress is in recess. They will spend the time in Belvedere and at Stinson Beach.

Congressman Mailliard visited China for two weeks as a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

COL. AND Mrs. David B. Vail of Mill Valley will give a reception at the Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base on Aug. 18 honoring the recently married Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Richardson of Reno, Nev.

The bride, the former Patricia Louie Vail is the Vails' daughter. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Richardson of Reno. They were married July 8 in Reno.

Patricia is a graduate of Tamalpais High School and the College of Marin. She is employed at the Lucas Engineering Co. in Reno. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. John Meyers of Mill Valley and the sister of Jonatha V. Gilfillan of Reno, and David, Steven and Michael Vail, all of Mill Valley.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Reno High School, served in the Marine Corps. He is employed at the Reno Lumber Co. in Reno. The newlyweds are living in Reno.

AUG. 12 WAS supposed to be Gilbert Klein's wedding day, but since the wedding was called off several months ago, he and his best man agreed they would have a party anyway. But the trouble was that the best man would be in Ithaca, N.Y., and Klein's other friends are scattered across the U.S. and in Europe. So Klein decided to issue invitations to all to celebrate wherever they are Sunday when it is 1 p.m. in San Rafael, his home.

He has sent out some 200 invitations to family and friends, including one in Greece, to celebrate however they wish and to take photos of their celebration and send them to him for a memory album.

Klein himself says he hasn't decided exactly where in Marin he will have his party, but a friend is baking him a non-wedding cake. He says that it is up to his friends wherever they are to invite others to the celebration.

The party "host," a psychology student at Sonoma State College, said that he is eager to reminisce about the party with the other celebrants when he sees them.

BECKY OWENS of Girlstown, USA in Whiteface, Texas., was guest of honor when members of Xi Rho Kappa Chapter attended the Beta Sigma Phi Northern California Council fall brunch Sunday in Sonora.

Becky is the "adopted" daughter of Xi Rho Kappa members, and she will visit in the Marin members' homes for two weeks before she returns to Texas to enter her senior year of high school.

ON THE AGENDA

Northgate Fashion Luncheon Series To Conclude Wednesday

The last in the series of fashion show luncheons sponsored by the Northgate Group of the Marin Art and Garden Center will be given Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. at the center in Ross.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Writing Readers Unhappy Over Necessity To Edit Letters

HELEN AND SUE:

Each time I've sent you comments, you've rewritten my letters, leaving out important items.

I take a lot of time and concentration on my letters, and I feel they should be printed as is, only omitting names and cuss words (which I don't use anyway). — NEWSPAPER PEN PAL

DEAR PEN PAL:

We rewrote your present letter too: chopped the wordage down by about half, which is usually the reason for "editing" reader-comments.

Cuss words we don't mind, even well-known names we often print, but space? That's vital! Almost every letter we use must be shortened, and if this bothers you, P.P., join the club! Even Ernest Hemingway was cut, and HE didn't like it either! — HELEN

PEN PAL:

If ALL your letters made RAP, you must have good thoughts and express them well — for we can print only two or three selections out of hundreds that come to us daily.

Next time, send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope and what we can't publish, we'll discuss with you personally. Okay? — SUE

NOTE TO READERS:

While we shorten your COMMENTS for space reasons, your QUESTIONS sometimes get The Bottel Treatment to protect writers (or those written about) from recognition. Often our correspondents ask for these changes "so my folks. . .boyfriend. . .girlfriend. . .teacher. . .whatever. . .won't know it's me, but I'll get the message." Even when they don't, we play it safe. The following letter explains why:

RAP:

I was furious at my girlfriend and I wrote you a very damaging letter about her. To tell the truth, I wanted her to recognize herself.

Now, three weeks later, we have talked it all out and I know I was wrong. We're really together! Please, can you keep my letter out of the paper? It would ruin everything. — NO LONGER "MAD AND HURTING"

N.L.M.H.:

We can't stop the presses now — in fact, by the time you read this, your letter will already have reached print — but only YOU will know who wrote it about whom. Age, specific events, location, even the signature to a minor degree, have been changed to protect "the furious." — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I am one of those children living with parents who are now divorced but still staying in the same house. Forget it! You are right, Helen — it won't work.

I can't count how many 3 a.m. fist fights I've broken up, or how many times I've tried to calm my two hysterical sisters.

The only reasons my parents continue living together is that the house is owned in both their names and neither can afford to buy the other out, nor will they give up what is half theirs. They're hoping to sell, but then we girls will be out on the street. We are viewed as burdens because we're the only reason our parents must live together.

When we ask for anything, Mom says, "Ask your fahter." He says, "Ask your mother." They seldom speak except to scream. We bear the brunt of their anger. I'm afraid my youngest sister is going to have a nervous breakdown. I'm so scared about what people can do to each other that I don't ever want children.

Tell "Tod" who wants to live in the same house with his divorced wife, that he'll share a lot more hatred than responsibilities. And his kids are the ones who will suffer! —LIVING THROUGH IT, BARELY

DR. AND MRS. GERALD FREEDMAN
A wedding trip to Hawaii

Jennifer Winfrey Is Wed In Garden Rite

At a garden wedding in Mill Valley, Mrs. Ray Winfrey of Mill Valley and Dr. Gerald C. Freeman of Greenbrae were married at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Jennifer Coslett Winfrey, a widow, is the daughter of Air Marshal Sir Norman and Lady Coslett of London, who attended the ceremony. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Freedman of Omaha, Neb.

Philippa Coslett of London, the bride's sister, was the maid of honor, and Mrs. Allan Joseph of Mill Valley, the bridegroom's sister, was the matron of honor. Allan Joseph was best man for his brother-in-law. The wedding was held at the Joseph home.

The bride was educated at St. Paul's Girl School in London and the University of London.

Dr. Freedman, a physician, practices in Mill Valley. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and the University of Nebraska College of Medicine at Lincoln, Neb.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii the couple will live in Mill Valley

Reasons For Headaches Are Hard To Determine

Headache is man's most common complaint, and its diagnosis can be most challenging to the physician, according to Dr. Arnold P. Friedman, a world renowned specialist on headaches.

Diagnosis, the physician explains, depends on an analysis of clinical data derived from a careful and systematic history of the patient, a general examination emphasizing the head and nervous system, a psychologic evaluation and other studies that may be indicated for the individual patient.

Bedroom Colors Should Be Soft

Decorate the bedroom in soft, restful colors. Subdued shades of blue, green or gray are the most soothing.

A bright red wall may add a striking decorator touch, but it will glare like a strong spotlight on your tired eyes and mind, so avoid it.

PARENT AND CHILD

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Schooling, especially for children living in industrialized nations, can last too long.

This is especially true for those young people who go first to nursery school, then through high school, directly on to college, and from there into graduate school.

Unless the student and his family make a deliberate effort to widen experience, one can spend a quarter of a century in a learning attitude.

Such academic schooling is largely a getting experience. But what about the joys of giving, of sharing, of serving other people or a worthwhile cause? What about testing in practical experience what one is learning in the abstract? What about the responsibility that comes from having to cooperate with another to get a job done?

CHILDREN IN elementary school are held back or promoted on the basis of their individual efforts. If the boy sitting next to you in school does not do his homework or learn his lessons correctly, you are not held responsible. Not so, if you and another boy had a fence to paint or a garden to weed or windows to wash.

You are responsible, on a job, not only for holding up your own end of the work assignment, but also for helping your partner to hold up his end.

Youngsters in high school also carry their own individual responsibilities. In hundreds of secondary schools, each student is compared with every other; there is a ranking of the class. And if there are 25 students in a graduating class, number one is in no way held responsible for the failure of number 25.

When a majority of students lived on farms, there was an opportunity for every youngster to spend some time each day in giving as well as getting. Not only were there opportunities to help one another in completing tasks, but also there were animals totally dependent on a youngster's "giving" for their survival.

This opportunity to share appears to be lacking for urban and suburban youth. Certainly, there are no farm chores to be done; no two-man crosscut saws to be shared; no easy way for youngsters to learn what it means to care for an animal that might, in turn, perform a service.

Many parents have thought to solve the problem by sending urban children off to summer camps. But most summer camps just reinforce the "getting" experiences of schooling. A camper goes to crafts and learns to make a belt; he goes to swimming and learns lifesaving; to campcraft and learns how to make a campfire.

HOMES PROVIDE fewer incentives to share chores now. Families with able young boys and girls pay to have cellars cleaned, floors waxed, grass mown, hedges clipped, cars washed or clothes ironed while mother drives the youngsters from school to piano lessons to dancing lessons to the roller-skating rink and finally to the library.

And there's the mother of seven children who takes them to a bowling alley to play while she does seven loads of wash at the nearby laundromat.

City and suburban parents might consider making a determined effort, especially with teen-age children, to see that some time is spent each day "giving" and working for and with others. Jobs could be thought up that require cooperation — not more competition and reward for individual effort at the expense of one's neighbors.

Those mothers who now give time to working out car pools might devote equal — if not more —time to designing work assignments. For example, a group of families could organize their children into a cleaning team.

One week they might be assigned as a team to a thorough cleaning job for a family with a need; the next week they might work for a family that can reimburse them for their services; the following week they might complete some civic project (as volunteers); and the next week provide cleaning services "at cost" to an inner-city family.

THE FIRST YEAR

Baby's Crying Has A Meaning

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Fourth of a series describing things commonly upsetting to the parents of normal babies, developed by the Office of Child Development, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.)

A baby's cry is his way of telling you that he is in some way not satisfied or comfortable. Your job is to find out why and if possible, to do something about it. Hunger is the most common cause, loneliness is probably the next most common cause, especially after the first few months. Actual pain from an open diaper pin or colic is much less common.

The baby's own temperament makes a big difference; some will let out a roaring cry at the first sign of hunger or discomfort, others will become quietly restless and not actually cry for some time. Some will cry whenever the diaper is wet or soiled, others will ignore the diaper until it causes enough irritation to cause actual pain. Some will object to baths, to being placed in bed, to having the lights put out or to other sudden changes. Excessive clothing or clothing that is not warm enough will cause discomfort and crying.

But there is always a cause, and you should usually be able to figure out what the cause is and to do something about it. This does not mean that you can't let a hungry or wet child wait for several minutes while you finish what you are doing. But it does mean that no child should be left to cry for any prolonged period of time without serious attempts to find out what is wrong and to correct it.

Many babies do have a time each day when they are just fussy or crying without any reason that you can discover. After you have checked for a cause of crying, you can safely ignore these fussy periods.

MOST CHILDREN want attention and handling. If a baby becomes quiet and content when picked up, he was probably just lonely. A few minutes of fondling and play, and then perhaps leaving him in the room with you where he can see you, is all that he needs. If he is actually hungry or in pain he will soon cry again, even if you are holding him or playing with him. Don't worry about "spoiling" him. Giving him the attention he needs during his first year will help him build the trust he will need to learn more "grown-up" behavior later on.

Many infants rest better if they are firmly wrapped, or swaddled, in a blanket or wrapper.

Some babies have attacks of crying nearly every evening, usually between 6 and 10 p.m. During an attack, his face suddenly becomes red, he frowns, draws his legs up and screams loudly, a cry quite different from his cry of hunger or loneliness. The crying continues from two to 20 minutes, even though he is picked up and comforted. The attack may end suddenly or soft crying may last a few minutes after the hard crying stops. Just as he is about to fall asleep, another attack may occur. Gas may rumble in his stomach and he may pass gas out of his rectum.

No one knows what causes such attacks. They often come at the same time every day. At other times of the day he is happy, alert, eats well and gains weight. During an attack, holding him across your knees on his stomach often will give some comfort. There is little you can do except comfort the baby until the attack stops.

BE SURE HE isn't just hungry, wet or lonely and that his clothing is comfortable. Most important, remember that colic does not interfere with his general health and growth and that he will grow out of it by the time he is 12 to 16 weeks.

Colicky babies do annoy their mothers and fathers and anybody living in the household. Remind everyone that it is not the baby's fault, it is not your fault, and he'll get over it. If the colic becomes a real problem for him or the family, it is worth a special trip or call to the doctor, who may be able to prescribe a medicine to make the baby rest more comfortably.

VERONICA LEE ORR
To be married

Engagement Of Veronica Orr Told

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas William Orr of San Rafael have announced the engagement of their daughter, Veronica Lee (Vonnie) Orr, to Mark Joseph Mitchell of Torrance.

Vonnie is the sister of Thomas, Edward, Donald and Joseph Orr and the granddaughter of Earl Orr of National City. Mrs. Frank Orr of Spring Valley is her great-grandmother. She is a graduate of San Rafael High School and attends the University of San Francisco. The future bride is employed by J. C. Penney Co. in Corte Madera.

Mark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack S. Mitchell of Torrance. He is the brother of Mrs. John Porter of Paradise, James Mitchell of Hamilton Air Force Base and Lawrence Mitchell of Fort Hood, Tex. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hendon of Chico and S. S. Moran of Hawthorne. He was graduated from Torrance High School and attended El Camino College in Torrance. The future bridegroom is in the Army, stationed at Fort Ord.

Lecture Is Set On Needlework

Sylvia Campbell will give a lecture and demonstration Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. for residents of the Tamalpais Retirement Residence in their auditorium in Greenbrae.

Mrs. Campbell, who has a credential in the field of needle arts, has been teaching in Marin for 12 years at College of Marin, Novato High School and Sir Francis Drake High School.

She is also a certified judge for the California State Fair and Exposition in the field of needlework and home economics.

Conversation Piece

A water garden or desert collection of cacti and succulents is a conversation piece and a delightful hobby as well.

Vater-Bunch Vows Said In Novato

The outdoor chapel at St. Francis Episcopal Church in Novato was the setting Saturday for the marriage of Susan Vater of Novato and John Bunch of San Luis Obispo.

A reception in the garden of the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vater, in Novato followed the ceremony. The couple is on a wedding trip along the Oregon coast and will live in San Luis Obispo.

Maid of honor for her sister was Ann Vater, and Michele Azevedo of Santa Rosa was the bridesmaid.

The bridegroom's brother, Jose Ortiz of San Francisco, was the best man, and Ron Pugh of San Luis Obispo ushered.

Susan is a graduate of San Marin High School, and John was graduated from Plainview High School in Plainview, N.Y. Both are seniors at California State Polytechnic University.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Ortiz of Plainview.

Tom Vater of Novato is the bride's brother. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. C. H. Vater of Novato and Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Cravens of Olympia, Wash.

Bedroom Bright, Keep Out Light

Coordinate draperies, carpeting and bedspreads with your wall colors so that your entire decorating scheme flows together into an unobtrusive, tranquil effect.

Lined, closely woven draperies will help to keep out the brightness of daylight or street lamps when you are resting or sleeping. But don't use heavy fabrics; strive for the light, airy effect.

You may also want to consider using opaque window shades or venetian blinds to insulate against outside disturbances.

Heavy Furnishings Oppress Bedroom

Furnish your bedroom with care. Shun heavy, dark furniture, if possible, and do not clutter the room with too many pieces.

Heavy furniture, especially in the bedroom, can be oppressive. And cluttered and crowded conditions are not conducive to that gentle feeling of repose which you are seeking.

Women's Lib Alters Men's Garb

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Joyce Brothers says that women's lib eration has struck such a blow for equality of sexes that a man now wears clothes that promise love and pleasure instead of prosperity and status.

But one thing hasn't changed, she says, and that is the three cycles of men's clothing:

In his early years, until he is free to choose someone to marry, he wears "sex clothes" designed to attract the female of the species.

Once marriage sets in, usually during the first 15 years of wedlock, the man goes for comfort since his sex clothes have already got him what he wanted.

Then, at the end of 15 years, there sets in what is erroneously referred to as the Seven Year Itch and he reverts to sex clothes to prove that he is still attractive to women — that is, women other than his wife.

Children's Line Is Fashion First

A fashion first was established this year at the 61st National Press Week in New York with the showing of the prestigious children's wear line; Piccolino and Chin Chin knits.

Piccolino showed pint-sized versions of everything adults wear. The idea: girls like nothing better than to look like Mommie and boys like to wear clothes that make them look like Dad.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

ZANY ZODIAC: Thanks to our TV crystal ball, we can watch the stars rise and fall in the great constellations of ABC, CBS and NBC. Using their birthdays, we've listed them under signs of the Zodiac. Here are the last three. All 12 names will be revealed tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are always there. Expect to be the center of attention every evening but give others a chance to tell their stories, too. You've been called the man of the Twentieth Century. And that's the way it is. Name of star No. 10

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Radical ideas and opinions tend to disturb you. You flash your eyes, squirm and grow impatient. You talk, write and dress like a scholar. Just remember that life can be beautiful even if name-calling often puts you on the firing line. Name of star No. 11

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You left a happy-go-lucky TV hubby to go it alone in the Big City as a single. It put you in a colder climate. But everybody in the office loves you, especially when you flash that pretty smile. Your boss is all growl, no bite. Name of star No. 12

INDEPENDENT-JOURNAL WINNERS: First to identify James Baldwin as the mystery celebrity was Candis Cooper of Greenbrae. She wins a "Family Tree" first prize. Ten others win ticket booklets to Frontier Village in San Jose: Gary Oefiner, San Rafael; Matt Randall, San Rafael; Don Rey, Belvedere; Steve Roberts, Novato; Chris Rodas, San Anselmo; Brian Schwartz, San Rafael; Steve Shatz, San Rafael; John Soares, San Rafael; and Robert Souulewski, San Rafael. All prizes are being mailed.

Art Defense Must Be On Leading Right Card To Partner

Part of the art of defending well is to lead the right suit, but another important part is to lead the right card. That will make it easier for your partner to know what is going on.

LOW CLUB

West opened the deuce of clubs dummy played low and East won with the king. East now correctly returned a spade. If West had the king of spades, only a prompt spade lead by East would produce a trick in the suit.

East led the deuce of spades, and West won with the ace. West knew that he would eventually get a trump trick but one another trick was needed to defeat the contract. Did his partner have the king of spades or the ace of diamonds?

The clincher was the fact that East had returned the deuce of spades. In this situation, a player should lead a low card, such as a deuce, only if he has a high enough card (jack or better) to support a return of the suit.

HAND COLLAPSES

West therefore returned the jack of spades and the hand collapsed.

South won with the king of spades, cashed the ace of hearts and led out two rounds of clubs to get rid of the ten of diamonds. Then he gave up a trump trick and could claim the rest.

LOW SPADE

East should return the nine of spades to indicate that he cannot stand a return lead in the suit. (This would not indicate spade shortness, for then South would have a very long spade suit which he had never bid.)

West would take his ace of spades and abandon the suit. A switch to diamonds would be marked and this would defeat the contract.

ART REVIEW

Ruth Asawa's Creations Soar

By ADA GARFINKEL

SAN FRANCISCO — Creating major sculptural commissions such as the fountains for the Fox Plaza, Ghirardelli and the Hyatt House-Union Squares, and other projects across the country, are but part of the output of San Francisco sculptress Ruth Asawa.

In Miss Asawa's retrospective exhibit, currently at the San Francisco Museum of Art, are 121 items on loan from various collections. They range from her unique woven-wire sculptures to bronze castings of the baker's clay panels similar to those used in the Hyatt House fountain.

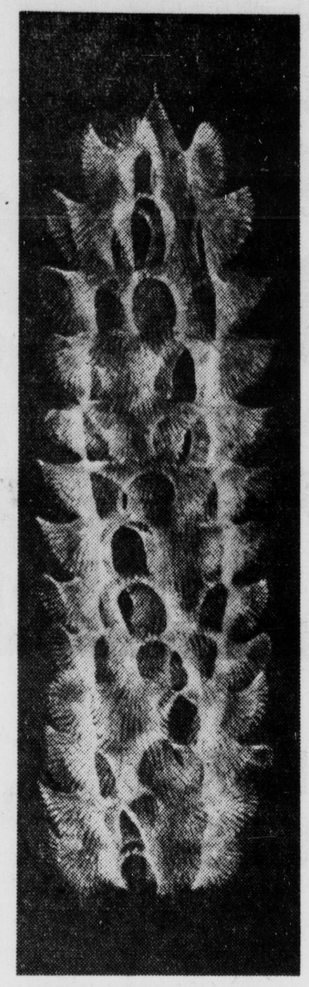
In addition, there are delicate watercolors (her original intent was to be a painter), a group of life masks modeled of friends, standing figure castings, tensile paper-folds, and her unusual wicker-chair drawings whose plasticity extends one's own range of vision.

Shortly after completing her college training, Miss Asawa created an international reputation with her rhythmically interpenetrating and elongated woven wire sculptures. A number of them hang lightly and kinetically in the large South Gallery, their sinuous, overlapping contours and airy transparency are delightful.

Continually exploring her material and inner creative sources, the artist, in turning to the greater rigidity of galvanized wire rods, has produced an exciting variety of mobiles, stabiles, and wall hangings. Not surprisingly, with her Oriental heritage, they have the spikiness of Bonsai. Tiny plastic-resin coating of the tips are light-and-color reflecting like drops of dew. Electroplating or bronze-casting of several have added a new textural and mass identity.

Miss Asawa's bronze castings of her clay-dough relief panels are filled with mythical and personal memorabilia. They weave a humorous, part real-part fanciful legend and have led the artist directly to another very important aspect of her life.

It is almost uncanny that this petite, 47-year-old artist — in private life the wife of an architect and the mother of six children — should find time to be so prolifically creative. But there is more. Ruth Asawa is also civic-minded.



ASAWA RETROSPECTIVE — Light as air and delicate as a breeze, this transparent hanging sculpture measures 84 by 24 inches. Woven from metal wire, this art form is by San Francisco sculptress Ruth Asawa, who also did the Ghirardelli Square and Hyatt-House-Union Square fountains. It is in her exhibit at the San Francisco Museum of Art through Aug. 19.

As a five-year member of the San Francisco Art Commission, Miss Asawa has worked actively to extend art experience and involvement to numerous school children.

Having concocted a baker's clay-dough recipe as an inexpensive medium for her own children's usage at Christmas time, she has worked with teachers and students in a number of public schools to guide their enthusiastic response and the production of a number of impressive relief-murals. These are also on view during Miss Asawa's exhibit through Aug. 19.

Viewing hours at the museum are from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

State Aide Goes To Two Schools

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The State School Allocations Board has approved $3.2 million for additions to two Southern Sonoma schools.

A grant totaling $3,245,982 was approved Monday for the Petaluma High School District.

George W. Castleberry, assistant superintendent, said $1,755,209 was earmarked for the first addition to Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School, Petaluma, along with $1,490,773 for the third addition to Rancho Cotate High School, Rohnert Park.

Ali Akbar Khan To Star In Concert

Ali Akbar Khan will be featured playing the sarod in a benefit concert for the Ali Akbar College of Music on Aug. 25 at 8 p.m. at the college of San Rafael.

Ali Akbar Khan is the founder and head of the college and he will be joined in the concert by Alan Watts, philosopher-lecturer and teacher; flautist G. S. Sachdev; Chitresh Das, Kathak dancer, and tabla drummer Zakir Hussain. All are teachers at the college.

School Schedules Its Registration

Registration for new students at Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School, Petaluma, will be held from Aug. 20 to Aug. 30.

No new students will be registered the first week of classes, Sept. 4-7, but must wait until Sept. 11 if not registered in advance.

Sierra Club Still Has Trip Openings

The Marin branch of the Sierra Club still has a few openings for its trip to the Redwood National Park area Aug. 17-19.

Deadline for reservations for the bus camping trip is Sunday, according to Gilbert Deane, club chairman who said reservations may be made through him at 17 Upper Fremont Road, San Rafael.

Bills Seek Open Talks On Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee today approved legislation to tear away the shroud of secrecy covering state budget conference committees and opening the sessions to public scrutiny.

The two measures by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, and Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael, were spawned by widespread dissatisfaction over the recently enacted budget which contained major revisions never subjected to public hearings, including $42 million for a new state Capitol.

The Gregorio measure (SCR72), coauthored by 24 other senators, would require the budget conference committee of three senators and three assemblymen to meet in public but not necessarily receive public testimony.

The traditional conference committee on the budget is where the actual fiscal blueprint for the coming year is drawn up. It is intended to resolve the differing versions of the budgets passed by the Assembly and Senate.

The Gregorio bill would apply to both houses. It was approved on a 4-1 vote of the Rules Committee and sent to the floor.

The Behr measure (SR58), a rule change applying only to the Senate, would prohibit a Senate member of the budget conference committee from attending any secret session. It was approved 3-2.

Appearing as witnesses supporting the two measures were veteran senators and leaders of both parties, including Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, Sen. John Harmer, R-Glendale, Sen. Fred Marler Jr., R-Redding, and Sen. Walter Stiern, D-Bakersfield.

Russia Throws Out A Scientist

Medvedev was shorn of his citizenship for "actions discrediting the high title of citizen of the USSR," the news agency said.

Earlier in London the Soviet embassy announced Medvedev's passport had been withdrawn. The action means he will be unable to return to the Soviet Union.

MUSIC REVIEW

Lenox Quartet Opens The Inverness Festival

By R. LEE CARLSON

The Lenox Quartet's concert Wednesday night at College of Marin, Fine Arts Building, would have pleased Mozart. It was a superb program and a splendid first evening of the 1973 Inverness Festival. The large audience was enthusiastic and became more and more attentive as the evening progressed.

The Quartet in D Minor, K. 387, and the Quartet in C Major, K. 465, are the first and sixth of a group of quartets dedicated to Haydn. They were written between 1782 and 1785.

From a letter Mozart's father wrote to Mozart's sister, Feb. 16, 1785, we learn that Haydn, after hearing a performance of the last three quartets, is reported to have said: "Before God and as an honest man I tell you that your son is the greatest composer known to me either in person or by name. He has taste and, what is more, the most profound knowledge of composition."

The listener, perhaps, experiences more accessible pleasures with K. 465 and K. 516; however, very exciting was the quality of the Lenox playing of K. 387. The clarity of phrasing was very fine and the rubatos particularly well chosen; they sounded comfortable and natural. The second movement was played with marvelous dynamic control; the balance of sound moved from level to level with absolute ease.

The vitality of Peter Marsh's sound in the third movement solo passages was special and Toby Appel, violist, similarly gave us remarkable sound in the final movement. This latter movement, so full of expressive content, was enhanced by a great clarity of long melodic lines colored by carefully planned layers of individual sound.

The first movement of K. 465 commences with a rhythmic pattern of interest. Mozart offers the cello a rather prominent role, and the sound which Donald McCall offered was pure, clear and with a warmth which was moving. The second movement, operatic in nature, filled the hall with an abundance of melody with great tenderness. The third movement expresses a joy not unlike the spirit of the piano concerto, K. 453.

Sandor Salgo, director of the Inverness Festival, assisted the Lenox Quartet to conclude the program with the Quintet in G Minor, K. 516. Mozart invariably doubled the viola instead of the cello as Boccherini had done. Of the last four quintets, K. 516 is often considered the greatest. It was written in 1887, four years before the composer's death. The work is from beginning to end a musical dialogue of thoughts, feelings and emotions.

The Lenox Quartet played this work with great understanding. The dialogue was always clear; there was a constant rapport, an elegant texture and the third movement expressed a gentleness which was of a truly spiritual quality.

Reed School Budget Means Tax Rate Hike

A 1973-74 budget of $3,339,824 which may necessitate a 14-cent hike in the district's tax rate, has been approved by Reed School District trustees.

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello said that the tax rate boost, to $3.74 per $100 assessed valuation, is still only an estimate since the final rate will not be set for several days. Last year's rate was $3.605.

Giovanniello said the increase was allowed under Senate Bill 90 because the district's average daily attendance is expected to rise by almost 60 to 1,922 students. He said the jump in attendance is due to the district's new summer school program.

The board added several items to its preliminary budget including: a $3,500 reading evaluation program at Granada School; $1,700 for repainting Belvedere School, and $12,500 to improve the heating system at Reedland Woods School.

Teachers had earlier received a 4.37 per cent salary hike in the 1973-74 budget while classified employees were granted a 3.5 per cent increase.

Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte will also have his salary increased by $1,000, to $18,500.

Expenditures include: $1,368,000 for teacher salaries; $40,400 for classified salaries; $50,000 for capital outlay; $789,927 for bond payment and reserves and $260,000 for fixed charges including retirement fund contributions, benefits, workman's compensation and legal expenses.

Campaign Financing Bill Wins A Round

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill providing state financing of California campaigns for statewide office, congress or the legislature has advanced to the Assembly floor.

The measure (AB363) by Assemblyman Henry A. Waxman, D-Los Angeles, cleared the Assembly Ways and Means Committee Wednesday on a minimum 11-5 vote. But Waxman said there was little chance of it winning approval from the full Assembly.

Water Board Sets Budget For Point Reyes Work

The North Marin County Water District board has adopted a $104,998 budget for its Point Reyes Improvement District including a $30,285 operating budget and $74,714 for capital improvements budget, according to auditor S. L. Morris.

The spending plan, approved Tuesday, will require a tax rate of 75.5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. Of that, 28.5 cents will go for operations and the rest, 47 cents, for improvements.

Directors also sold $250,000 in Point Reyes Improvement District water bonds to the federal Farmers Home Administration with a 5 per cent interest rate over 40 years. Voters authorized the bonds Nov. 3, 1970.

The bonds will finance a new tank supply line and new pipe lines in downtown Point Reyes Station and the mesa area.

The improvement district was formed to serve about 300 customers in the Point Reyes-Inverness Park area when the water district took over operation of private water systems in the area.

North Marin County Water Board Also:

BUDGETS — Adopted a $10,592 budget for a sewer improvement district at the Oceana Marin development near Dillon Beach and a $2,974 budget for 1973-74 for the Olema Water Improvement District.

BID — Rejected the low bid of J. P. O'Hair and Co. of Santa Rosa, to supply pipeline, saying the $15,058 bid was too high.

ELECTION — Received notice that election of two directors will be held Nov. 6. The terms of George A. Amaroli and Frank V. Baccaglio expire.

TOUR — Announced that the board will tour water facilities in Sonoma County Saturday starting from the district office at 8:30 a.m. and including an afternoon visit to the Warm Springs dam site.

MEETING — The next regular meeting will be at 8 p.m., Aug. 21 at the district office in Novato.

Capital Qualifies Because Of Use

CHICAGO (UPI) — When South Dakotans chose Pierre for their capital city in 1889, they couldn't have selected a more experienced site.

Pierre, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, had for 400 years prior to 1800 been the capital of the Arikara Indian Nation.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 9, 1973 19

IS IT SAFE? — Officer Myron MacNeil of the California Highway Patrol places an inspection sticker on the front of a ten-speed bike owned by Matthew O'Byrne of Sleepy Hollow, as part of the patrol's new bicycle safety education program.

TESTED LIKE DRIVERS

By PAUL CANE

They ride bicycles.

And these reckless drivers are killing and injuring themselves in ever increasing numbers, according to officer Myron MacNeil of the California Highway Patrol office in Corte Madera.

He said recently compiled statistics show that bicycle fatalities increased nearly 50 per cent over last year in the second quarter of 1973. (In Marin, one person has been killed in a bike accident in the past 18 months, and 82 have been injured.)

To inform youngsters of the dangers and responsibilities they accept when they climb into the seat of their bicycles, the California Highway Patrol has begun a pilot program of "rider education" for school-age cyclists in Marin and a few other counties.

MacNeil said officers are now visiting schools, clubs, scout troops and any other organizations that may interest young bicyclists, to present a comprehensive bike safety program.

The educational program includes instruction in bicycling laws, a mechanical safety check and a "road test" for riders.

Each bicycle is first given a stem-to-stern equipment inspection, from front headlights to rear reflector. If the bicycle is properly equipped, a highway patrol inspection sticker (similar to the common auto inspection sticker) is placed on the vehicle as proof it is not faulty.

If a cycle has inadequate or faulty equipment, a note is sent to the youngster's parents, requesting that the deficiency be corrected.

Although the request is not legally binding, MacNeil said youngsters have shown great enthusiasm for having correctly equipped bikes. "The kids love to get those little stickers," he said with a laugh.

Next comes an operator's examination. Each bike owner maneuvers through a prepared course marked off with rubber cones, and is rated on his ability to control the vehicle through turns and speed changes. Similar to the Department of Motor Vehicles auto driver exam, the bike test is an enjoyable way to test a rider's skill, according to the highway patrolman.

"Kids keep coming up to me, saying, 'Gee, can I go through the course again?' " MacNeil said. "The course is fun for the kids and it gives us a chance to see if they know the proper signals, and if they can handle the bike properly."

He said the bike safety talk is often an eye-opener for many young riders.

"A lot don't know we can issue citations to them just like we do to car drivers. Also, many don't know they must ride on the right side of the road, and that they have to stop for stop signs, just like cars."

A large percentage of the approximately 10,000 injury-accidents involving bike riders in California each year result from carelessness, according to MacNeil, who said many cyclists feel they can dart through intersections, or from behind parked cars, with no regard for approaching autos. "That's just asking for trouble."

If the pilot program is successful in Marin, the rider education program may be put into effect statewide.

MacNeil said that more bikes than cars have been sold recently, indicating the demand for two-wheeled transportation and the need for teaching unlicensed riders the rules of the road.

The highway patrolman is eager to educate as many young riders as humanly possible. "My goal is to reach every one of them," he said.

Judge Hits Drug Case On Warrant

By GEORGE NEVIN

Charges against three persons suspected of being drug traffickers inevitably must be dismissed because of a defective search warrant, a Marin judge said Wednesday.

In the meantime, said Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman, the Marin district attorney's office is spending a lot of the taxpayers' money to prosecute a lost cause.

Unless new evidence is used to justify the search and arrest of the three in a Ross raid July 19, "eventually the whole thing is going to get thrown out of court," said Smallman.

The case is the second in a month in which a search warrant which led to the seizure of a large amount of drugs has been quashed by a Marin judge.

David R. Baty in July dismissed charges against two San Anselmo men becaue of an improper warrant. Officers in that case occupied the men's house for four hours before obtaining the warrant.

Drugs seized in the Ross raid, included marijuana, LSD, depressants and amphetamine and the materials used to make it. Police estimated its street value at $2 million.

In a bizarre twist to the Ross case, a Mill Valley man, Raymond Anthony Hossbach, 25, was released last week when Smallman ruled the affidavit which led to the issuance of the warrant was improper.

Hossbach was rearrested and the district attorney's office promptly filed a new charge — possession of an illegal depressant — which was identical to the old charge.

State Supreme Court decisions have held that such rearrests are valid, and the district attorney's office routinely is granted a new hearing before a different judge — a practice known as "judge shopping."

In Hossbach's case, a hearing on a motion to suppress the evidence — the same motion Smallman granted — will be held Tuesday in Municipal Court.

There's nothing to prevent the district attorney's office from seeking yet a third hearing if the second judge quashes the warrant and frees Hossbach, as Smallman did.

But, Smallman warned, Hossbach is entitled to file a civil suit asking that the arrests stop and requesting damages as well.

Also charged as a result of the raid are William Richard Paris, 29, of Ross, and Virginia MacGregor, 19, of Sausalito.

They have been indicted by the Marin County Grand Jury and are set to go to trial in superior court the week of Sept. 17.

Unless the arrest of the trio can be justified on some basis other than the warrant, Smallman said, he doesn't see how it can stand up.

The judge said he ruled on two points when he dismissed the charges against Hossbach:

1. The affidavit on which the warrant was based was prepared improperly. Instead of presenting facts to justify the warrant, it merely said "see attached," referring to a separate sheet — a technical but fatal flaw.

2. The Ross policeman who signed the affidavit never established the reliability of the informant who noticed marijuana in Paris's house and told police.

Hossbach raised several other points which Smallman never got around to ruling on. The first two were enough, the judge said.

Smallman said it was with deep regret that he dismissed the charge against Hossbach because he is very worried about drug traffic in Marin.

He said he has received hate mail on the subject — an ironic point, he said, because he personally believes the evidence should be admissible but legally had no choice.

By insisting on waging a losing battle, the district attorney's office is just wasting money, the judge said.

Much Opposition To Clean Air Plan

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — A federal government plan to restrict use of cars and motorcycles in the Bay Area had few friends in a marathon hearing Wednesday.

Lined up against the Environmental Protection Agency plan were state and regional smog officials, mayors, car dealers, educational institutions, businessmen and motorcyclists. Of more than 30 persons who testified at the 10-hour hearing in the Federal Building, only eight generally supported the plan, most of them spokesmen for conservation organizations.

More witnesses were among the 200 persons who jammed the Ceremonial Courtroom when the session started in the morning, but more than half were gone when state and local officials finished testifying late in the afternoon.

Hearing officer Charles Eckerman, assistant regional counsel for the EPA, rejected pleas from the public that it be heard first. By evening, when he called many citizens on the roster of speakers, most were gone.

Eckerman continued the hearing to 8:30 a.m. today. He noted written comments on the plan will be accepted until Aug. 31 at EPA headquarters, 100 California Street.

The proposed plan, due for adoption by Oct. 15, cuts motorists' mileage by 20 per cent by 1977, cuts off two-thirds of gas sales during peak smog periods, limits the number of all types of motorcycles to the number registered in 1973, and bans use of two-stroke motorcycles during daylight hours from May through October.

It also calls for making commuting by car far more expensive and inconvenient by improving transit and cutting back public parking by 20 per cent. The plan gives EPA a veto over all expansion or construction of parking.

The largest single contingent of opposing witnesses was motorcycle fans. Their view was summed up by attorney David E. Neal of Corte Madera, who commutes to his San Francisco office by motorcycle. He objected it was unfair to ban cycles abruptly when car manufacturers had been given so many years to clean up their pollution.

Cycles use far less gasoline, and tight restrictions on their use would prevent car owners from switching to cycles to save gas, he added.

Other cyclists disputed EPA data showing two-stroke cycles emit up to 31 times more pollution than the limit for 1975 cars. One, Manfred Baez of San Francisco, branded the EPA plan "un-American, undemocratic, unscientific and unrealistic."

Similar sentiments came from the state's district director of transportation, Thomas R. Lammers, who labeled the plan a "panic crash program." To pick up persons forced out of their cars by the plan, he said, 20,000 new buses would be needed in the Bay Area. (An EPA official noted later total production of buses in the nation last year was 4,000 coaches.)

Another state official, Allen B. Lemmon of the Air Resources Board, added warnings that limiting gas sales "would lead to such problems as black marketing, extensive out-of-basin purchases and fire hazards resulting from illegal gasoline storage." He suggested Congress amend the Clean Air Act — under which the EPA was required to draw its plan — "to provide more flexibility."

Congressional weakening of the act also was urged by the California State Automobile Association. Virgil P. Anderson, manager of the association's government affairs department, warned the plan "could result in social and economic chaos."

A A spokesman for the National Automobile Dealers Association, James B. Woulfe of Albany, said the plan is so drastic its intent is "to remove the automobile from our daily way of life. The result is obvious — economic chaos and the deathblow to freedom of mobility in this country and a shattering impact on our lifestyle."

He and other opponents of the plan objected especially that public transportation could not be improved fast enough to meet travel demands by 1977 if the plan were imposed.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto and Oakland Mayor John H. Reading objected that curtailing parking would ruin urban downtowns. Alioto added it would worsen access to San Francisco Airport and Candlestick Park.

A spokesman for both the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District and Metropolitan Transportation Commission said federal air quality standards would be met in the region in 1983 anyway because of new car smog controls.

The EPA, however, repeatedly has stressed it has no choice but to impose the deadlines of the Clean Air Act passed by Congress. The agency's attempt to delay the deadlines was rejected in a court challenge by environmentalists.

Spokesmen for the University of California and state college system asked that educational institutions be exempted from the requirement that public parking be cut 20 per cent. Many of them are poorly served by transit, and students must drive, they said.

Defending the plan were San Francisco Tomorrow, Friends of the Earth, Loma Prieta Chapter of the Sierra Club, League of Women Voters of the Bay Area, San Francisco Bicycle Coalition nd a few citizens.

Thomas Standing of the bicycle coalition declared "we have to choose one or the other: to breathe or to drive. Our lungs cannot adjust to ever-increasing pollution, but we can adjust to less dependence on the automobile."

Robert Kearns, a San Francisco banquet waiter, called pollution "an invasion of privacy and individual health."

Connie Parrish of Mill Valley, California representative of Friends of the Earth, warned "pressure is mounting to subvert, revise, postpone enforcement or to throw out the Clean Air Act altogether. All of this turmoil," she said, "is caused by the fact that we are finally tackling the primary cause of air pollution — the private automobile."

Water Push Scheduled In Tiburon

The Tiburon Fire Protection District board has agreed to join the development arm of Southern Pacific Railroad in asking for an increased water supply to downtown Tiburon.

According to Wellman H. Topham, board secretary, the panel decided to write to the Marin Municipal Water District about the water supply after hearing a report from David Dawson, representing Sequoia Pacific.

Sequoia Pacific is considering development in Tiburon on railroad property which would coincide with the Tiburon downtown plan adopted by the city three years ago.

According to Topham, Dawson told the board that for the plan to work the city's water supply has to increase.

Topham said Sequoia Pacific is requesting that a 16-inch main be run into the downtown area. He said that the fire board has long considered the downtown water supply inadequate for fire fighting purposes.

Topham said that he also announced last night that he will not seek re-election this fall when his term and those of two other board members expire.

Tiburon Will Tackle Plan For Downtown

Tiburon's 3-year-old downtown plan will be reviewed again by the city planning commission tonight at 8 o'clock at city hall.

The meeting was originally scheduled for Monday but was postponed because of lack of a quorum.

Richard S. Arjo, director of community development, said the commission will consider whether the plan is still feasible or needs changing.

The plan would turn the downtown into a village center with a balanced range of business and residential uses, according to Arjo. It also calls for downtown access to the waterfront and use of open space.

Tiburon is currently forming a redevelopment agency which could encourage a developer to come in and build in accord with the downtown plan.

Police Cars To Be Auctioned Off

The City of Novato will auction off three police cars at 10 a.m. Aug. 18 at the city hall parking lot.

Two 1971 Dodge Polara sedans and a 1971 Chevrolet Biscayne sedan will be offered for sale. A minimum bid of $250 is required.

The cars, all retired from service, can be inspected at the parking lot between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Aug. 16 and 17 and until 10 a.m. Aug. 18.

Farnkopf Quits As Hub Design Panelist

James Farnkopf resigned Wednesday night from the San Anselmo Design Review Committee, citing conflicts with work responsibilities as the reason.

Farnkopf is manager of water treatment for the Marin Municipal Water District, where he has been employed for 22 years. The water board meets the same days of the month as the design review committee.

The committee Wednesday approved design for an addition to a downtown San Anselmo sporting goods store, The Seasons.

According to Louise Brehm, secretary, the ski and sport supply shop received approval for an annex at the same height as the present 40 Greenfield Avenue building.

Watergate Panel Sets Tape Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate Committee decided to file suit today in an attempt to force President Nixon to turn over tape recordings of his White House conversations on Watergate.

The committee's deputy chief counsel, Rufus L. Edmisten, said the suit, seeking a "declaratory judgment" that Nixon turn over the tapes, would be filed some time in the afternoon in U.S. District Court.

Committee sources said the suit would follow the argument used by the special Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox, who has said in his suit that Nixon's argument that the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers protects the tapes is not valid.

Cox said executive privilege in regard to the tapes has effectively been waived by the White House since "virtually all the participants in the conversations have already testified in one forum or another about these conversations.

"Thus, whatever the merits of a claim of executive privilege might otherwise have been, there is no legitimate ground for now withholding the direct and contemporaneous evidence of those discussions," Cox said.

Chief committee counsel Sam Dash will represent the Senate Watergate Committee in court. The senators have recessed for a vacation after hearing 38 witnesses in 37 days. There are still six or seven witnesses to testify before the first part of the committee's mandate to look into the 1972 campaign activies is finished.

The second phase is pursuing the related themes of political espionage and campaign financing. Among the specific questions facing the seven senators are whether:

—To hold hearings as soon as possible into the "dirty tricks' and financing, or wait until October;

—To hold hearings on those two subjects as a full committee or to split into two subcommittees;

—To allow television coverage of the latter two phases.

Report On Bombings— A Mistake

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said today false reports on U.S. bombing in Indochina were made as far back as 1966. Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements said it was all a mistake.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, head of the Joint Chiefs, told the Senate Armed Services Committee a dual reporting system —one highly classified showing actual missions and another not as classified showing the strikes elsewhere —had been kept since the United States began bombing the Ho Chi Minh trail in 1966.

The committee has been holding hearings on secret U.S. bombing in Cambodia and why most members of Congress had not known about it for nearly three years.

Clements said the committee was apparently given the inaccurate report of strikes in Vietnam when the missions were actually flown in Cambodia, which the United States had said was neutral territory.

Supreme Court Justice William Douglas issued a statement today, criticizing his fellow justices for blocking an order he issued last Saturday to stop the bombing.

Clements said the committee was given the report several weeks ago without the knowledge of the Joint Chiefs and "this was a mistake."

The order was wiped out by Justice Thurgood Marshall, who said he had consulted all seven other members of the court before he acted.

"A Gallup poll type of inquiry of widely scattered justices is, I think, a subversion of the regime under which I thought we lived," Douglas said.

Douglas said the justices who were out of Washington, D.C., could not have possibly studied his opinion in the case.

"Whatever may be said on the merits, I am thoroughly convinced that the telephonic disposition of this grave and crucial constitutional issue is not permissible," he said.

HAILED BY ENVIRONMENTALISTS

Senate Passes Bill Controlling Growth, But It Took A Fight

By ROBERT CAHN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — "It is one gigantic federal zoning plan," charge opponents of the National Land Use Policy Act which recently passed the Senate.

"This act will allow states to provide the kind of blueprint which will spell quality life, good environment, and sound economic growth," says the bill's leading proponent, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

While the controversy over national land-use-policy legislation continues, environmentalists are more or less delightedly hailing the overwhelming Senate passage (63-20) of this strong and workable land-use act.

At the same time they regret the loss of the Jackson Amendment for sanctions to give the bill an enforcement "stick" along with its "carrot" of $1 billion in federal planning assistance funds over eight years. And they are turning their attention to the House, seeking to encourage strengthening of a companion bill still being drafted by Rep. Morris K. Udall's environment subcommittee of the Interior Committee.

The Senate bill offers the states funds with which to inventory land and natural resources and to enact a plan over a five-year period to regulate several categories of land which are of more than local concern: environmentally critical locations such as beaches or flood plains; citing of key facilities such as major highway interchanges and airports; large-scale development such as industrial parks and major urban subdivisions; and public facilities or utilities of regional benefit such as waste disposal or sewage systems.

An added requirement for state land-use plans asks that each proposed project would not exceed the capacity of existing water, power, sewage, and waste-disposal systems, would not cause unreasonable soil erosion, would not be located in unsuitable areas, and would not place an unreasonable burden on state or local governments for public services.

Sen. Paul A. Fannin (R, Ariz.) introduced an amendment to kill the provision, but Senator Jackson produced the votes to defeat the amendment, 64-2.

The land sales project has been authored by Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D, Wisc.). It is opposed by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), and lobbyists from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Home Builders, and the National Association of Realtors.

Debate over the Land Sales Amendment was mild compared with the Senate-floor verbal tangles over a Jackson amendment for "sanctions" affecting other federal programs.

The amendment would have held back, over three successive years, 7, 14, and then 21 per cent of a state's alloted highway, airport, and land and water conservation funds for those states which failed to adopt an acceptable land-use planning and implementation plan by five years after the enactment of the law.

Although a similar measure adopted in committee last year had been removed from the bill in a floor amendment passed by overwhelming voice vote, Senator Jackson used all of his considerable clout to add an "action forcing" sanctions amendment to the bill.

As it turned out in the 52-44 vote defeating sanctions, the Public Works Committee made the difference, with nine members voting against sanctions, and only three "ayes."

A Problem: Water Not Gas Is Wanted

Striking gas when drilling for water may sound like a bonanza, but for a Bolinas property owner it proved a misfortune.

Martin Magid asked directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District last night to annex his property, saying that it was the only way he could bring water to his land on the north side of Mesa Road, just beyond the district boundary.

He and a nearby land owner had employed Weeks Drilling and Pump Co. of Sebastopol to drill water wells, he said, but when natural gas began to bubble up, the operation was stopped for reasons of safety.

Board members told Magid they were reluctant to annex only one property, and advised him to join an annexation movement sponsored by Peter Harris of the Sharon Real Estate Co. for land owners in the same general area. All directors said they favored a large annexation.

A form letter from Harris, handed around the meeting, said the company is advising all property owners between the RCA land and the utility district boundary to apply for annexation as the only realistic solution to the water problem.

The letter quoted the drilling company as saying further drilling for water was not recommended.

Mindful of the energy crisis, Magid said he had contacted the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in hopes he had a salable product. PG&E representatives informed him, however, that gas existed in such small quantities that it would not be worthwhile to develop it.

Work Under Way On Water Dam For Bolinas

Work on repairing the Arroyo Honda Dam, which provides water for Bolinas, began yesterday and should be completed in approximately 30 days, directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District were told last night.

William Shoff, head maintenance man, said that during work on the dam and the access road, both heavily damaged in last year's storms, the district will obtain water from Pine Gulch Creek.

Director Paul D. Kayfetz said that state health inspectors had granted permission for the creeks to be used as a water supply on an emergency basis, with permission for chlorination. Previously, health officers had forbidden its use on grounds of a high coliform count.

In a related matter, the board approved an engineering fee of $6,500 to the firm of Bala and Strandgaard for work on the project.

Bolinas Public Utility Board also:

SEWAGE PLANT — Heard from Kayfetz that the state attorney general's office agreed with his argument that the district does not need any Marin County permits, except a building permit, in order to start work on its sewage project. Kayfetz said the plan had been approved by the North Central Coast Regional Conservation Commission on Aug. 2, and the district needs only final state approval of its grant applicaion in order to call for bids.

CLOSED SESSION — Voted to grant a 5 per cent cost-of-living increase to staff members retroactive to July 15, after a 45-minute closed session. The board also accepted terms and conditions relating to working hours, overtime, vacations and sick leave.

BUILDING PERMITS — Approved plans for a bedroom, bathroom, and utility room for Malcolm Ponder and a remodeling plan for Don Slack. The board has required that all building permits receive approval as a means of controlling extended water use, but last night agreed that all approvals would be subject to a condition that a project on any property would be for only single-family use.

QUARANTINE — Agreed to spend $230 for two large signs to be placed on Bolinas Road, warning visitors that Bolinas Beaches are under quarantine for bathers from both the state and county health departments.

ROADS — Heard from Minor Wilson that the county public works department will donate 1,000 cubic yards of gravel for road repair.

Mobile Homes Park Rejected

David D. Young's application for the development on North McDowell Boulevard at Corona Road was denied by the commission Tuesday night. Young has filed an appeal of the decision to the city council.

Senior Planner Frank B. Gray said the commission also rejected Young's application to rezone the land, saying it should remain light industrial since potential development is still likely.

Price Jump Statement No Surprise

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent Wednesday made the unsurprising prediction that prices will go up before they come down.

"It is likely there will be an increase in costs" under the new aministration economic plan, he told reporters. Prices will be "determined in large part by demand" under the Phase 4 program.

"Beef will be coming in full volume by Sept. 12 (when the current freeze on its cost is lifted)," he said. "Whether the consumer pays more or less for beef Sept. 12 depends on one hand on supplies and demand on the other."

Meanwhile, the nation's meat producers continued to hold back cattle that otherwise would have been rushed to market. In Texas, at least 1,000 butchers have been forced to work less hours or give up their jobs entirely in recent months, union spokesmen said.

The price of wheat climbed to record highs and bakers screamed. Farmers, however, were happy when the price of wheat for delivery in September reached $4.43-½ a bushel in Minneapolis. On the Chicago Board of Trade, wheat for September delivery was priced at $4.24 a bushel.

In New York, where the cost of bread went up by one to four cents, the city's food buyer said he is studying the possibility of getting beef "on the hoof".

Purchase Commissioner Marvin Gersten's comment came after the third straight week that no supplier offered to handle the city's meat business. He said the last time the city bought its meat directly from producers and contracted for was its slaughter and processing was during World War II.

In other developments:

Harvey Nathan, a butcher shop owner, asked a federal judge for a preliminary injunction to force the Cost of Living Council to lift the price ceiling on meat. Nathan, of Shillington, Pa., said the price freeze is making him lose about $6,000 a week.

Meat sellers in Windsor, Ont., just over the border from Michigan, reported U.S. shoppers crossing into Canada to buy beef in larger numbers than have been seen since the meatless days of World War II. "I know about 80 per cent of my customers have been Americans this week," said one butcher.

Return To Roughing It Suits Wife

ELKINS, W. Va. (AP) — Joan Davis has trout in her bathtub and horses in her kitchen and couldn't be happier.

She said, "I was very upset with the world in general, and decided that I needed a change of pace and that this would be a good way to do it . . I'm feeling a little better about things now."

The tepee, 16 feet in diameter and about 18 feet high, sits along a picturesque stream that serves as bathing area and refrigerator.

Two outdoor stone fireplaces are used for cooking, and the family horses graze in the same area. Mrs. Davis and her children — Katy, 18; Evan, 16; Natty, 15; and Hunter Jr., 13 — sleep in cots separated from each other by suspended sheets.

"Like New York City," he says. "It's a great place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there."

But others who have visited the remote area — the nearest neighbor is more than a mile away — have departed with reluctance.

"Most people are envious," Mrs. Davis said. "They want to do it, too."

Foxes, grouse, deer, turkeys and pigs wander around the tepee, and though there are bears in the forest, Mrs. Davis said her family has been in no danger at any time in their two months in the woods.

Days are spent backpacking and hiking, preparing meals and gathering firewood, exploring a nearby ghost town, swimming in the Cheat River or riding the family horses on aimless jaunts.

At night, aided by the light from kerosene lanterns and sparkler fireworks, Davis family members discover how surprisingly little they know of each other.

"Our house is fairly large," Mrs. Davis said. 'Everybody has his own room. We don't really talk to each other . . . Now, when everybody depends on each other for certain things, I think we're a lot closer."

Balloonist's Trip Ruined By Storms

ST. JOHNS, Nfld. (UPI) — Balloonist Robert Sparks, forced to ditch in the ocean when he encountered severe thunderstorms in an attempt to be the first man to fly the Atlantic, was rescued by a Canadian Coast Guard vessel today about 30 miles off the coast of Newfoundland. His balloon kept going.

Sparks, who began his dream voyage at daybreak Wednesday in Bar Harbor, Maine, was forced to descend early today after the thunderstorms created strong updrafts and downdrafts threatening to dump him in the ocean.

A spokesman for the Canadian Coast Guard said Sparks was reported "well," aboard the rescue vessel Sir Humphrey Gilbert.

He said the gondola in which Sparks had spent the morning was also recovered.

Home Finance Proposal Gains

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill aimed at helping low and moderate income families buy their own homes has been approved by the Assembly Housing and Urban Affairs Committee.

The bill (SB14) by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, was sent to the Ways and Means Committee Wednesday on a 4-0 vote.

The measure would establish a housing and community development agency which could issue up to $100 million in revenue bonds to help provide homes at prices low-and moderate-income persons could afford. The bonds would finance low-interest loans to developers of such housing.

ALMANAC

BY U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Thursday, August 9, the 221st day of 1973, with 144 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

British author and naturalist Izaak Walton was born August 9, 1593.

Also on this day in history:

In 1831, the first train in the United States to be drawn by a steam locomotive made a run between Albany and Schenectady, New York.

In 1945, more than half of the Japanese city of Nagasaki was destroyed when the United States dropped its second atomic bomb.

In 1970, fifty-four U.S. citizens were among 99 persons killed when an airliner crashed in Peru.

In 1972, the death toll from hurricane Agnes was officially set at 118.

A thought for the day: from Izaak Walton's "The Compleat Angler": "I have laid aside business, and gone a-fishing."

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Boulder Falls But Misses Town Below

There were no injuries, however, since the 135-foot-high rock stopped short of the first buildings of the small industrial town of 4,000 inhabitants.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Grief, And The Symptoms That Go With It, Is Healed By Time

Grief is a normal reaction after the death of a loved one. It helps cut the emotional ties that bind. Since death is final and nothing will bring back the deceased, the mourning period usually is temporary. There are tears and sobbing and the survivors are preoccupied with the image of the person who is gone, feeling guilty about certain aspects of their relationship, and hostile about other phases.

Mourning also causes many physical effects such as hollow or empty feelings in the chest, shortness of breath, sighing, fatigability, loss of appetite, and insomnia. The eyes might feel dry and itchy, the nose congested, and the grieving person often develops a dull headache and backache. At first, there may be disbelief in what has taken place. This may be followed by a numbness; then the shock that follows the realization that "this is it."

TIME IS a great healer and these feelings tend to wane as the weeks pass. The bereaved may break down occasionally when certain events bring back a special memory. Now and then the person sees someone in a crowd who reminds him of the departed person or he may hear a similar voice. They wish to tell him something, but suddenly they realize they cannot.

Widows or widowers who had a good marriage and were close may be preoccupied with their memories for a long time. Their grief may persist to such an extent that life is completely disrupted. Self-pity becomes a problem and more so because the man or woman cannot adjust. Since the individual no longer gets gratification from the love object, he must rely on inner resources. Unless this is done, a depressions sets in and this, in time, masquerrades as fatigue, apathy, nervous tension, headache, back pain, and many other bizarre symptoms.

IN FACT, this pattern may become so well established the individual no longer associates it with grief over his loved one. Treatment is not difficult when the physician realizes the role that grief is playing. The next step is to find out why the individual has not been able to adjust to his loss. This may stem from fear of loneliness, or feelings of guilt or hostility.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

BLOOD FIGURES

D. T. writes: Recently I was going to donate a pint of blood. The nurse pricked my finger for a sample. After the test she called out to the doctor, "fourteen, two." What do these figures mean?

REPLY

You may have been number 1402 for that day, week, or month. Or, your hemoglobin is 14.2 grams, which is normal.

DRINKS, SLEEPS

A reader writes: Is my husband an alcoholic? He is 59 and all he does is drink and sleep all day. He takes two shots in the afternoon and sleeps four or five hours. After supper, he sleeps again, then goes out about 10 p.m. for another two or three shots and sleeps 10 hours. What's wront with him?

REPLY

He is a somnolent alcoholic. Your husband needs medical help because his sleep pattern is more bizarre than his drinking habits. Fatigue is one of the symptoms of cirrhosis. I assume he retired too early in life or perhaps is at the tail end of his alcoholism. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on alcoholism.

BEE STINGS

F. T. B. writes: On two occasions our 8 year old was stung by a bee and had to be taken to the doctor for shots. Our neighbors told us that a third sting is fatal. What would you say?

REPLY

Your neighbors really know how to hurt a guy! There is no danger so long as the boy is not sensitive to bee venom. If he is allergic and develops reactions, your physician may suggest shots for desensitization or supply you with medications to use in case a severe reaction takes place.

IODINE AND THE THYROID

A. G. writes: Does iodine make the thyroid gland work faster?

REPLY

No—it makes it work more efficiently.

WAVES FOR DIABETICS

R. B. writes: I was just told that I've got diabetes. Can I continue to have permanent waves?

REPLY

Yes, but get your advice on diabetes from your physician and not from the patrons of the beauty salons.

SITSOMNIA

L. L. writes: What makes a person get tired as soon as he sits down?

REPLY

Sitsomnia. It is natural when sitting brings on relaxation.

Uganda Boss Has Advice

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — President Idi Amin sent his "sincere and brotherly advice" to Cambodian President Lon Nol today, telling him to get the American troops out of his country since President Nixon was too busy with his own personal problems to know what they were doing.

Amin, in one of an apparently unending series of cables to world government heads, told Lon Nol that American action was not in the best interest of Cambodia and expressed doubt an American mistake bombing early this week was really a mistake.

Amin, whose cable was broadcast by Kampala Radio, said he was sending Nixon for a copy.

"The American action supposedly in assistance of your country against your brothers and sisters is not in the best interests of your country and should be stopped and American troops removed immediately for the good of the country and the world," Amin said.

"I further advise you to negotiate a reconciliation with Prince Sihanouk quickly in a spirt of understanding, love, trust and brotherhood," Amin said.

He said his cable was prompted by the mistake American bombing of a progovernment Cambodian village, which he implied was no mistake.

"The Americans have been fighting in Cambodia long enough to know the area so well as to make accidental bombing impossible," his cable said."The killing of your people by foreign troops is a typical example of the sincere fears I held and still hold," Amin said.

"President Nixon has presently many personal problems, such as the Watergate episode, $10 million allegedly used on his personal house and the possibility his vice president may face criminal charges," Amin's cable said.

Review Of Nixon's Taxes Requested

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's tax agency requested a review today of the property taxes being paid on President Nixon's Western White House.

The State Board of Equalization voted 4-0 to formally request Orange County officials to reappriase the value of the property at San Clemente in view of the controversy over federally financed improvements there.

Kidnap Solution—A Safety Valve?

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The government announced Wednesday that it has solved 27 kidnap cases and seized $4.5 million in ransom money, but some U.S. businessmen were reported preparing to leave Argentina for safety's sake.

Police also reported another kidnaping—Ramon Levin, a director of a textile company.

An interior ministry statement said that 27 cases of kidnaping and extortion had been "cleared up with 82 suspects identified" and $4.5 million in ransom money recovered in the 10 days since provisional President Raul A. Lastiri ordered a crackdown on kidnapings.

The ministry did not say how many of the identified suspects had been arrested.

Despite Lastiri's campaign, sources in the American business community said the foreign executives of one company were ordered to pack for transfers, the president of another company moved into a hotel to escape threats and is preparing to leave, and the president of one of the largest foreign companies in Buenos Aires will be transferred—all because of an abduction wave that has claimed more than 100 victims this year.

The sources asked that the names of the firms involved not be used for fear of making them targets of further threats.

One American executive told UPI Wednesday he had gone on a 10-day "holiday" after he "received too many telephone threats" of kidnaping and after a man attempted to get into his house under false pretexts.

The executive said more than 20 other foreign businessmen had taken similiar short leaves of absence or vacations because they felt that they were in danger.

Police in Cordoba, 400 miles northwest of Buenos Aires, are investigating five current kidnapings—including those of a young mother and her 10-year-old son. Buenos Aires police are investigating two other abduction cases.

Seven foreign businessmen have been kidnaped this year. A record $3 million ransom was paid by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. for the safe return of its president, John R. Thompson.

Ford Motor Argentina "donated" $1 million worth of supplies to needy causes after urban guerrillas killed an employe and threatened further violence. The Kodak Corp. paid $1.5 million in ransom for its technical director, Antony Da Cruz.

Nixon Readying Watergate Talk

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon made headway today in preparation for a televised address on the Watergate scandal, probably early next week.

The arrival of Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, at Camp David, the President's mountaintop retreat, indicated Nixon was dictating a preliminary draft of the long-promised address.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said no decision had been made on the timing of Nixon's expected speech.

Lawsuit Filed On Champagne Cork

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Businessman Ralph P. King had removed the foil and wire net on a champagne bottle when the cork suddenly "exploded," he charged.

King, of San Francisco, said in a federal court suit that he suffered an injury to his right eye "which will lead to future problems of traumatic cataracts" and asked for $103,759 damages.

He sued Lejon Champagne Cellars, Columbia Distributing Co. of Portland, and Dennis W. Wilson, operator of Shopeteria Grocery Store, where King's hosts had purchased the bottle of bubbly.

Bar Asks A Check About Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Bar Association (ABA) has called on state bar groups to investigate, and possibly discipline, lawyers involved in the Watergate affair.

Ending its 96th annual convention Wednesday, the association's Assembly and its House of Delegates each adopted a resolution calling for "prompt and vigorous disciplinary investigations and appropriate action" by state bars against attorneys who may have violated ethical standards in connection with Watergate.

AFTER LOSS

A's Skipper Blasts Ump

DETROIT (AP) — Tuesday it was Sal Bando of Oakland who complained about umpiring.

Wednesday night A's manager Dick Williams took a pot shot of his own after his team was frustrated in a bid to regain first place in the American League West with a 3-2 loss to the Detroit Tigers.

First Williams praised the pitching of Tiger starter Woodie Fryman. Then he added a couple words about plate umpire Jim Odom.

"It looked like he was picking spots the first part of the game and then later he roared back," Williams said of Fryman. "He kept us off balance. But I think he got help from the umpire."

Williams paused. Then he added with emphasis: "I know he got help from the umpire. He's a bad umpire. Yesterday the umpire was bad for both sides. Today we got squeezed quite a bit."

Bando, who was ejected from the second game of Tuesday's doubleheader by Larry McCoy, afterwards called McCoy "the worst ball and strike umpire in the American League."

Whether or not Oakland was "squeezed" by the umpire Wednesday, one thing is certain — they were squeezed by Detroit. A perfect squeeze bunt by Bill Freehan greeted reliever Rollie Fingers in the eighth inning and drove home Al Kaline with what proved to be the winning run.

Freehan missed a squeeze bunt against Fingers in the AL Playoffs last year and the runner was cut down at the plate in a 2-1 loss by Detroit.

Fryman has pitched well three straight starts and apparently has come out of his three-month slump. He struck out 10 Athletics and gave up only three singles the first four innings.

A triple by Deron Johnson and a wild pitch gave the A's a run in the ninth. Then Fryman gave up a single to Jesus Alou and a walk to Billy Conigliaro before John Hiller picked up his 26th save by getting pinch hitter Mike Andrews to end the game with a fly out.

It preserved Fryman's fourth triumph against seven losses and kept Detroit atop the East by one-half game over Baltimore, one game over New York, and 1½ over Boston. All won Wednesday.

Meanwhile, American League President Joe Cronin ruled Wednesday that he would not have upheld a protest by the Detroit Tigers that Oakland manager Dick Williams failed to specifically indicate his designated hitter in a Tuesday night game.

Manager Billy Martin of the Tigers filed the protest in the first inning of the second game of a doubleheader Tuesday after Williams listed 10 men in his lineup, but gave no positions for any of the 10.

"There is no valid protest," Cronin said through a spokesman. "There is nothing in the playing rules that says a manager has to list his players by position. He must list players by batting order, and this was done. Williams complied with the rules."

WALTON'S GRIPPING STORY

Minnesota outfielder Danny Walton apparently believes in the theory that you can know your opponent better by putting yourself in his shoes, or in this case, her girdle. Walton enlivened a husband-wife softball game yesterday at the Twins' stadium in Bloomington, Minn., by showing up in a girdle. He also found himself thrown out because of illegal attire.

McCOVEY

Giants' Vet Still Learns

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Willie McCovey is 35, an age considered by most people to be old, but the San Francisco Giants slugger says "I'm not that old that I can't learn something every day."

Of course, McCovey is referring to baseball, a game not all that complicated to the average person but one Willie says has nuances probably lost on the casual observer.

Take Wednesday's game against the Montreal Expos, which the Giants won 2-1 on a two-run homer by McCovey. It was his 20th of the season and sent rookie righthander Steve Rogers down to his first big league loss.

"I watched him closely right from the start of the game," said McCovey, "and I noticed he did a good job of hiding the ball on the righthanders but wasn't as deceptive to a lefthander. I didn't get a chance to swing my first time up because he never gave me a pitch I could hit, so I walked."

Then, in McCovey's second at-bat, after Bobby Bonds led off the fourth with a single, Willie said he made up his mind "if the kid threw me a strike I was going to hit it out."

That's exactly what happened. Rogers threw a curve belt high and McCovey deposited it over the centerfield fence, a blow of about 420 feet.

The night before, the Expos' Steve Renko stopped the Giants on three hits but had a difficult time with McCovey, who hit a homer and had two other shots caught in front of the fence.

"He's awesome," said Renko. "I know some people say he is tapering off but I don't think so. If anything, I think he is improving with age."

Told Renko's comment, McCovey smiled.

"I think when you have been around this game as long as I have," he said, "you have to keep on learning just to stay even. I agree with the man, I think I'm a smarter player now than I was before. If I wasn't I don't think I could keep on playing."

Ron Bryant was the beneficiary of McCovey's latest homer as he picked up his 16th victory, tops in the N.L. Bryant went 6 2-3 innings and was removed when he loaded the bases in the seventh with two walks after a double by Rogers. Elias Sosa came on at that point to strike out Bob Bailey and then wrapped up the game without incident for his 10th save.

The only run Bryant gave up was John Boccabella's sixth homer in the fifth. The Expos reached him for five hits but Ron also walked five.

Bondurant School Added By Sears Point Raceway

Track Slated For Reopening On Sept. 15

Sears Point International Raceway has an added feature today. The track, which plans to reopen Sept. 15, has added Bob Bondurant to its stable.

Bondurant, retired international road racer and now an instructor, will move his school of high performance from Ontario Motor Speedway to Sears Point around Sept. 1. Bondurant, a noted driver on the sports car road-racing circuits of the United States and Europe in the 1960s, brings his program to a track which was shut down since May of 1970, according to co-owner Hugh Harn of Belvedere.

Bondurant said: "The move will improve the school's growth potential because the hilly terrain of Sears Point presents a challenge to drivers and we'll be able to offer a more thorough and complete training program."

Sears Point co-owner Park Archer of Napa considers Bondurant's project the "premier driving school in the United States."

Besides adding Bondurant, track owners Archer and Harn are finalizing plans to reopen the track on the projected Sept. 15 date.

The duo plans to present the last race of the Sports Car Club of America's Gold Rush Series. The SCCA is organizing the event for all 22 classes.

Harn stated qualifying will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday (Sept. 15) and races will run the following day at noon.

Facilities will include a one-quarter mile oval and motorcross for motorbikes. Drag and dirt track racing coupled with road circuit events will also be presented on 750 acres. the complex is located at the junction of highways 37 and 121 in southern Sonoma County.

However, before the track reopens, certain projects must be completed, mainly the sewage system.

Archer said today, "The water and sewer system is not finished. And once it is done, Sonoma County (the Board of Supervisors) will give us the go-ahead."

Sooner Edict May Force Some Changes

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — The two-year suspension slapped on Oklahoma University by the Big Eight Conference will force every school in the conference to alter their athletic budgets and will also reduce the income of other football powerhouses such as Texas.

But football coach Barry Switzer, who assumed the helm at Oklahoma following the 1972 season, said the suspension may prevent his team from going to a bowl game or appearing on television for two years but will not keep it out of the running for the national championship.

"We hope the team that represents the Big Eight in the bowls is second best—that they have a loss on record to OU," Switzer said.

Chuck Fairbanks, Oklahoma's coach last year and now the head coach of the New England Patriots of the National Football League, had no comment.

"Coach Fairbanks will wait until he has heard the details first-hand," a Patriots spokesman said Wednesday. "He's going to call a few people in Oklahoma within the next couple of days. When he gets what he wants, then he'll make a statement."

The Big Eight placed Oklahoma, the No. 2 ranked team in the nation last year, on probation for recruiting violations and barred it for two years from any bowl games or television appearances for which it has not signed contracts. The conference also stripped the Sooners of their 1972 conference title.

This means Oklahoma's

RAIDERS SET FOR COWBOYS

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — Cliff Branch and Fred Biletnikoff were Bob Hayes and Otto Stowe, respectively, Wednesday as the Oakland Raiders defense drilled against Dallas Cowboys pass patterns.

Dallas visits the Raiders, Saturday night in the Oakland Coliseum.

The Raiders started going more to a zone defense three seasons ago and Shinnick is leading tbe conversion to even a higher percentage of zone defense coverage for the Raiders this season. It represents quite a radical shift for the Raiders, who were considered pioneers in the bump-and-run style of man-to-man defense.

Sharon Triumphs In Singles, Doubles

CINCINNATI — Sharon Walsh of San Rafael Wednesday triumphed in singles and in doubles in the Western Professional Tennis Championships here.

Miss Walsh won her second-round singles match from Linda Tuero of Metairie, La., 6-3, 6-4, and she and Patti Hogan of La Jolla combined to defeat Leslie Charles and Lindsay Beavans of Great Britain, 6-2, 6-1, in a first-round doubles match.

49ers' Tucker, Six Others Cut

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — Veteran fullback Bill Tucker was among the latest seven players cut by the San Francisco 49ers. No more axings are expected before Saturday night's preseason game against the New York Jets in Tampa, Fla.

Other cuts announced Wednesday included ex-University of Pacific running back Alan Namanny; linebacker John Mitchell, the number seven pick from Alabama; defensive end Rich thrower from Miami U; Jim Benien, Oklahoma State kicker; Harry Howard, Ohio State cornerback, and Fred Reese, Sam Houston State running back.

Tucker was with the 49ers for four years before being traded to Chicago in 1971. He suffered a knee injury, went to San Diego, and the 49ers picked him up as a free agent.

Golfer Blalock Wins In Court

NEW YORK (AP) — Golfer Jane Blalock scored what may be the biggest victory of her career Wednesday, and she didn't even have to use a golf club.

When a circuit court disallowed an Ladies Professional Golf Association appeal of a decision against its lawsuit last year, Mill Blalock took one step closer to an astronomical amount of money.

She filed an anti-trust action against the Ladies Professional Golfer's Association and five individual members of the Association's executive board after her suspension for alleged cheating last year. Asking for $5 million in damages, Miss Blalock contended that the LPGA suspension violated the anti-trust laws and constituted a group boycott, because the five board members were in direct competition with her and profitted by her absence from the tour.

Lawyer John Russell, who represents the Portsmouth, N.H. golfer said, "It seems certain that our side has prevailed on the basic question whether the LPGA's suspension of Miss Blalock was lawful."

She was suspended on May 31, 1972 for allegedly mis-marking her ball on the putting surface. After missing one tournament, Miss Blalock's lawyers secured a restraining order which allowed her to rejoin the tour.

Escrow Softballers Romp To 31-0 Win

There was a football score in the softball league last night, as undefeated Escrow romped to a 31-0 victory over the Bombers behind the three-hit pitching of Mike Lopas in a San Rafael Recreation Department adult league game at Albert Field.

In other action, Tom Husk hurled a shutout as No Name drubbed Las Gallinas Golf, 12-0, and MJCC upset previously unbeaten D&R Volkswagen, 6-5.

SWIMMING POOLS TO HOSPITAL

Connor Has Very Busy Summer

By LEW CODDINGTON

It's been a busy summer for Mike Connor, who has been running at full stride from swimming pools to playing fields to outpatient clinics with barely enough time in between to pause.

Connor currently is in Southern California to prepare for the 22nd annual Shrine North-South All-Star Football Game, which will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The game, California's most prestigious, matches a team of outstanding graduated seniors from the Northern half of the state against the South's best, with proceeds benefiting the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children.

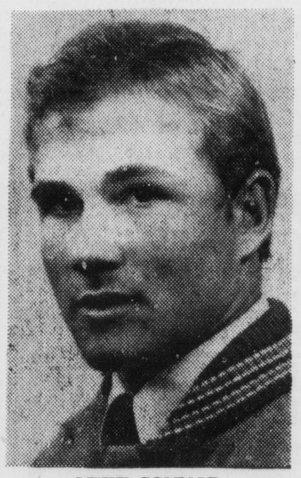
The slogan of the game is "strong legs run that weak legs may walk," but Connor was hobbling last week with an infected toe until minor surgery corrected the problem. "He had to practice in one football shoe and one tennis shoe," explained his mother, Polly.

The former Redwood High School star is the 13th Marinite to be selected for the game and the second in two years. Scott Duncan of San Rafael gave a good account of himself last year as a defensive back in a secondary which was otherwise shredded by South quarterback Vince Ferragamo (now at the University of California) in a record-breaking 42-0 bombardment.

The South will have a strong aerial attack again this year, headed by high school All-America quarterback Randy Garcia of Wilson High in Los Angeles — an item of interest to Connor, who probably will be used as a defensive back.

Mrs. Connor, who talked by telephone with Mike last week, said North co-coach Ed Burns of Polytechnic High in San Francisco, who handles the defense, was playing Mike at free safety and was considering starting him. Burns was unavailable for comment.

If Connor were to start, it would represent a rapid rise in his status, since originally he wasn't even on the team. He was picked as an alternate and invited to camp when Ruppert



MIKE CONNOR
Busy summer

Connor was all-Marin County Athletic League junior and senior years as a defensive back, and all-league as a running back as a junior, when he set an MCAL record by scoring five touchdowns in a game.

He also starred in basketball and baseball, making all-league his senior year in the former sport and playing guard, forward and center during his career though standing only 6-foot-2. He weighs 195 pounds.

He spent much of this summer on baseball fields, playing for the Italian Athletic Club's team which romped to the South division championship of the Joe DiMaggio League.

Connor sustained a 28-stitch cut on his forehead July 22 when he collided with catcher Marty Frey following a rundown on the third-base line, but his mother reported the injury no longer bothers him.

When he was not playing, Connor umpired for Little League, Senior Division and Babe Ruth games in the Kentfield-Greenbrae area. He lives in Greenbrae.

He also worked mornings as a swim instructor and afternoons as a lifeguard at the Paul Daly Swim School in Larkspur.

In the evenings, he did not collapse from exhaustion, but rather went out three times a week and ran several hilly miles a ridge in Greenbrae, as preparation for the Shrine game. He also lifted weights in afternoons when not working.

The preparations were doubly useful, since Connor has two football games coming up — the Shrine clash, and the Ross Valley Kiwanis Club's annual Marin North-South game next Saturday at San Rafael High.

After that game, he and his sister and some other family members will fly to Hawaii for a combination vacation and geological expedition. Cathy is a senior geology major at Stanford University, where Mike will enroll this fall on a football scholarship.

Connor left Marin July 30 to report to the North camp at Long Beach State University, where co-coaches Burns and Benny Pierce of Saratoga are examining the talent.

The North has lost eight of the last 10 games, with one tie, and trails in the series, 5-13-3.

Tickets for the clash cost $5, $3.50 and $2 and may be purchased at the Shrine office in Los Angeles, 655 West Jefferson

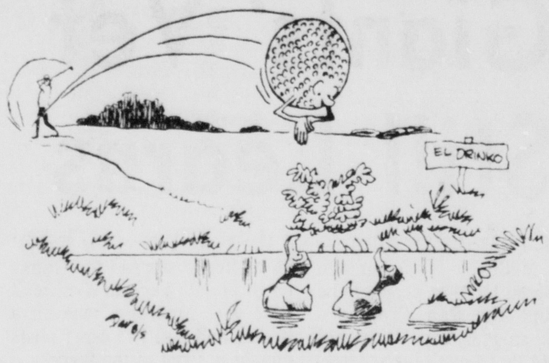
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Away, Blamed Hook

By LEE TREVINO

The duck hook, also called the snap hook and other snappish names, in my book is the golfer's Public Enemy No. 1. That's when the ball shoots out about 50 or 100 yards, then dives for trouble.

It's caused by a number of things. The victim may be closing the clubface at the top of the swing, or playing the ball too far back toward the right foot. Or it means you're not shifting your weight to the right foot on the backswing.

Tension may be the culprit in any of these. To combat a duck hook, slide your left thumb down the shaft as far as you can. This tightens up the three back fingers, putting pressure on the bottom of the forearm.

The result will be your hands riding higher on the club. The left hand will be so strong that the right hand can't turn over, shutting the club face at impact. That's when the headaches start.

Redskins' Allen Says Best Years Over 30

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Allen takes a lot of needling about running an old folks home, all of which makes him laugh and ask what's so bad about that?

"I think the best years of an athlete's life are those over 30," says the Washington Redskins' coach.

"Providing he takes care of himself," quickly adds the ice-cream eating Allen. "I want to make one thing clear. I remember having one fellow in our camp who wasn't much more than 22 and he was old, mentally and physically. Age is a relative thing." ....

Lucien Laurin, Secretariat's trainer, has a standard answer for those who want to know what happened to his Triple Crown winner against Hobeau Farm's Onion at Saratoga last Saturday.

"It's hard to keep a horse edge," Laurin says.

Secretariat was making his first start in more than a month, and under conditions like that, as any baseball pitcher knows, you never have your best stuff.....

I'm amused by some of Pete Rozelle's critics, the ones who say he's making a scapegoat of Lance Rentzel.

What do they suggest Rozelle make out of him, NFL Player of the Month?.....

Jerry Koosman, the Mets' lefty, happened to run into Hank Aaron in a restaurant not long ago. They got to talking and Koosman told Aaron he had been approached by a newsman who wanted to know how he'd pitch to the Atlanta slugger if he came up against him with a chance for his 715th home run.

"I told him I'd pitch you the same way I always did," Koosman said to Aaron.

"That's exactly the way I'd want you to," Aaron assured Koosman.....

Every professional football team should have its own individual personality, says Buffalo's O.J. Simpson.

"The New York Jets' personality is passing and Miami's is running, but we didn't have any particular personality until Lou Saban came along," says Simpson.

"He's going to change all that. For years I've been complaining I'm not getting the ball enough. Last year I carried 292 times. Lou already has told me, 'Be ready to carry 350 this year.' How do I feel about that? I love it!".....

Jack Nicklaus enjoys playing golf—up to a point. He'd never give up everything else merely to be out on the tour all the time as some other pros are.

"If I gave up everything else, I'd go crazy just playing golf," he says. "Maybe some people don't realize it, but I really play golf only half the year." .....

Being the commissioner of any sport has its drawbacks, too. You can't root for anybody. Not publicly anyway.

Walter Kennedy, the basketball commissioner, tells about the time he and his wife, Marion, were in Philadelphia watching a final playoff contest between the Celtics and 76ers.

The game was a cliff-hanger. With only two seconds remaining and the 76ers trailing by two, they took time out. The sellout crowd went wild, and Kennedy's wife was reacting to the general excitement but her husband was simply sitting there, impassively, with his arms folded.

Time in again.... The ball is thrown in to Hal Greer in midcourt. He wheels, shoots and while the ball is in the air, the game ends. His shot goes through the hoop without touching the rim, the score is tied and the place goes wild.

Walter Kennedy resembles the Sphinx. He sits there quietly, never changing expression, never moving a muscle while his wife jumps up and down.

"Mrs. Kennedy, I feel sorry for you," says the lady next to her. "If your husband sits there so completely unemotional at a time like this, there's gotta be something terribly wrong with him."

Jurgensen Plays Versus NFL Broncos

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Sonny Jurgensen is expected to play for the first time since he injured his Achilles tendon early last season when the Washington Redskins meet the Denver Broncos Friday night in a National Football League preseason game.

Jurgensen, a 39-year-old quarterback now in his 17th professional season, can be expected to play a quarter against the Broncos, who will be making their pre-season debut.

The Broncos have an all-star look about them this season, at least on an inexperienced level. Denver has four players on the roster who participated in the College All-Star game and two of them, running back Otis Armstrong and guard Paul Howard, are expected to see plenty of action against Washington. The other two all-stars on the Broncos' roster are defensive end John Grant and safety Charles Hinton.

The Redskins, having lost their opening pre-season game to Detroit last weekend plus the services of backup quarterback Sam Wyche who suffered a fractured cheekbone, will probably take this one more seriously than the Broncos, who will be anxious to test their rookies. Washington coach George Allen believes in winning every game, including pre-season contests.

The Denver-Washington contest is the only one on tap for Friday night, but there are seven games scheduled for Saturday night, three more for Sunday night and another for Monday night.

The New York Giants will be at New England, the New York Jets meet San Francisco at Tampa, Fla. and Cleveland is at Los Angeles on Sunday night. Detroit visits Kansas City on Monday night.

Smith Scores 29 As Tar Cagers Win

Len Smith scored 29 points Wednesday night as the Tars rolled to a 76-46 victory over the Flying Tigers in a Drake Summer League adult division basketball game.

In other games, Blue Crystal edged Olympic Club, 61-57, and McGillicuddy Construction topped San Rafael Travel, 64-54.

UN-BEAR-ABLE HEAT

Jack Nicklaus, the famed Golden Bear of golf, mopped his sweaty brow during a practice round in 90-degree heat Wednesday, and could expect more of the same today when the Professional Golfers Association championship was to open at Canterbury Golf Course in Cleveland. Nicklaus, born not far away in Columbus, Ohio, will be looking for his third PGA title. (UPI Telephoto)

British Promoter Plans A Rival Tennis Circuit

Combined AP & UPI

LONDON — A British tennis promoter announced a $1.5 million plan Wednesday to set up a world-wide Grand Prix tennis circuit as a rival to America's World Team Tennis (WTT) group.

Geoff Mullis, a spokesman for the Commercial Union Insurance group, said a plan for 15, $100,000 tournaments, including the "big four" of Sydney, Paris, Wimbledon and Forest Hills had been proposed to the International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF).

"This plan has the backing of the association of tennis professionals, but it has not yet been discussed by the ILTF," said Mullis. "We understand that John Newcombe has been offered $75,000 a year to sign for WTT and we have got to show that players can earn this without overplaying themselves."

The tournaments would be spread over Europe, North America, Australia and Asia and would have an overall bonus pool to attract top players.

More Tennis

ALAMO — Now that the United States has disposed of Chile in Davis Cup tennis matches, officials at the Round Hill Club here are getting ready for the U.S.-Romania matches Aug. 18-20.

Barry MacKay, former Davis Cup player who is promoting the event, credited the 76-game set in the U.S.-Chile doubles for a surge of interest which has seen 500 box seats and 2000 bleacher seats already sold for all three days.

MacKay of Ross says that there probably will be some expansion of the 6000-seat facility to handle more fans.

SPORTS SHORTS

Perry Makes A Confession: He Threw Spitball In Past

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Does he, or doesn't he? The perennial question is whether Gaylord Perry throws spitballs.

He has—but doesn't anymore according to an article by the Cleveland Press.

Perry, the controversial star of the Cleveland Indians pitching staff and last year's American League Cy Young award winner, admits it himself in a soon-to-be-released book, "Me and the Spitter—The Day I took The Plunge."

Not only spitters—but "the mudball, the emery ball, the K-Y ball, the vaseline ball and the sweatball, just to name a few."

But he hasn't thrown one since the rules were changed five years ago, which prohibits a pitcher from touching his mouth while on the mound, Perry claims in the tongue-in-cheek book co-authored by Press baseball writer Bob Sudyk.

The controversy all began May 31, 1964, when Perry came in to relieve for the San Francisco Giants in the 13th inning of the second game of a doubleheader against the New York Mets at Shea Stadium, he writes.

Two innings later Jim Hickman reached second base with one out and "catcher Tom Haller trotted out to me, very slowly, wearing that 'we're in trouble' look," Perry recalls.

"We both knew what he was talking about," Perry said.

"Haller squatted behind the plate. Hickman was on second and Chris Cannizzaro at bat. Haller didn't give me a sign. We both knew what was coming," according to the account.

"I licked my fingers, juicy-like as I could, faked a wipe and let her go as hard as I could for just above the knees. She dipped into the dirt like a shot quail.

Perry was the winner in the 23rd inning after 10 innings of relief.

"The next pitch dipped about eight inches too low. Then Cannizzaro fouled my third supersinker off the foot of the umpire," Perry writes.

"I reloaded and fired off another that was wide of the strike zone. Apparently I overloaded. The ball came back from Haller still wet. Could I get one more pitch out of the same load?

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Deceptive Mark Of Mets' Hurler

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Seldom have records been more deceptive than in the case of Jon Matlack.

The talented lefthander of the New York Mets has been on the losing side of 14 games this season and figures to wind up as one of the top losers in the National League, but rival players would be the first to admit that Matlack is one of the most imposing young pitchers in the league.

Matlack certainly has had his share of hard luck this year. Besides being on a team that scores very few runs he suffered a hairline fracture of his skull earlier this season when struck in the head by a line drive, and the injury severely hampered his development.

In recent weeks, however, Matlack has regained the form that made him the Rookie of the Year in the National League last season. Last month he tossed a one-hitter as he beat the Atlanta Braves and Wednesday night he posted a two-hitter while pitching the Mets to a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Matlack, posting his ninth victory of the year, turned in his 10th complete game as he struck out nine and walked two. The only hits he allowed were a leadoff single by Willie Davis in the first and a leadoff single by Manny Mota in the fourth.

"My fastball has really moved great in the last two games," said Matlack, who beat St. Louis 7-3 in his last outing while striking out 11. "I try to tell myself if I can keep my walks down to two or three per game, and if I can get a couple of runs I can win. There's definitely room for improvement, though. Gaining experience is the big thing. I need to improve my control a little bit and refine my changeup. I still got a lot to learn."

Jerry Grote drove in the only run of the game with a second-dinning single as the Mets beat Andy Messersmith. The loss cut the Dodgers' lead in the NL West to three games over Cincinnati.

In other NL games, Cincinnati edged Chicago 4-3, Atlanta downed St. Louis 4-1, Pittsburgh topped Houston 4-3, San Diego blanked Philadelphia 3-0 and San Francisco nipped Montreal 2-1.

New York beat Texas 3-2, Boston defeated Kansas City 9-4, Baltimore downed Minnesota 6-1, Cleveland routed Chicago 13-1, Milwaukee whipped California 8-2 and Detroit edged Oakland 3-2 in American League games.

The Reds scored all their runs in the fourth inning to defeat the Cubs and hand Ferguson Jenkins his 11th loss in 21 decisions. A two-run triple by Tony Perez and another triple by Bobby Tolan highlighted the rally. Fred Norman went 7 1-3 innings to gain credit for his ninth victory in 11 decisions for the Reds since being acquired from San Diego on June 13. His overall record is 10-9.

Mike Lum and Dusty Baker homered during a four-run fifth inning to power the Braves to victory over the Cardinals. Hank Aaron chipped in with a triple during the four-run fifth. Ron Schueler and Phil Niekro combined on a five-hitter for the Braves, with Niekro making his first appearance since his no-hitter last Sunday.

Jim Rooker and Bob Johnson combined on a six-hitter as the Pirates downed the Astros and moved into second place in the NL East. Rooker allowed five hits in six innings of work and Johnson gave up only one hit over the last three. Richie Zisk's run-scoring single capped a three-run sixth inning that gave the Pirates the triumph.

Bill Greif tossed his third two-hitter of the year and outdueled Steve Carlton in leading the Padres to victory over the Phillies. Fred Kendall accounted for all the Padres' runs with a three-run homer in the fourth inning. The only hits off Greif were a broken bat single by Greg Luzinski to open the fifth and a two-out single by Willie Montanez in the seventh.

Orlando Cepeda tied a major league record with four doubles Wednesday night, driving in six runs and propelling the Boston Red Sox to victory.

Cepeda became one of 30 major league players to hit four doubles in a nine-inning game, the last being Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs on April 9, 1969. The last American League player to accomplish the feat was Billy Bruton of Detroit on May 19, 1963.

Oklahoma Verdict May Force Change

games with Texas and Nebraska will be televised this season but the Sooners will not appear on televised games in 1974 or 1975 regular seasons.

Iowa State athletic director Lou McCullough said his school alone will lose $200,000 because of the suspension since all Big Eight members share in bowl receipts and television revenues. He said he is in the process of revising the school's athletic budget and Iowa State will either have to make up the money from another source or cut the budget.

It is presumed the other six conference schools will lose as much as Iowa State due to Oklahoma's suspension.

And Texas could lose television revenues also if the Longhorns do not get another television date in 1974 and 1975 to make up for the Oklahoma-Texas clash that is usually televised.

"I know I'm a fighter, a competitor and a winner and I know the people around me are," Switzer said Wednesday. "Our goal is to win the (conference) championship and the national title."

Switzer said he talked to last year's freshman quarterback Kerry Jackson on the telephone Wednesday. Six of the 10 football violations cited by the Big Eight were related to Jackson, who was ruled ineligible this season.

His Galveston, Tex., high school records had been altered when he went to OU, leading to a forfeiture of all games in which he played.

"He was concerned and still did not understand why," Switzer said. He said Jackson's mental attitude was one of his chief concerns, but he felt the 19-year-old was young enough to take it.

Switzer said a telegram he received Wednesday showed how the team is responding to the penalties. It was from players Steve Davis, Scott Hill, Tim Welch and Grant Davis.

"It said they came to OU to play for a champion. They can't change that. We accept the challenge," he said.

Oklahoma President Dr. Paul F. Sharp said the rules violations did not characterize OU's athletic program.

"We are deeply sorry that actions of a few have adversely affected so many. We voluntarily subscribe to NCAA and a conference rules and regulations, and it is our responsibility to see that OU programs are conducted in accordance with them."

Sharp said OU is certain Switzer was not involved in any violations.

DiMaggio Crown To Holiday

Holiday Magic rallied from a 2-0 deficit to score a 5-3 victory over Travers-Perry Wednesday evening and in the championship of the North division of the Marin Joe DiMaggio baseball league.

Holiday Magic (12-5) struck twice in the fourth inning on a run-scoring single by John Sims and an RBI double by Craig Saunders, and won the game with a three-run uprising in the fifth. Tim Madera knocked in one run with a single, Mark Kline drove home another with a sacrifice fly, and the third scored on an error.

Holiday Magic and South division champion Italian Athletic Club (16-1) earned the right to play in the regional tournament in Eureka next Friday through Sunday, the winner of that to advance to the state tournament in Stockton the following week.

Wednesday's games concluded the league season, except for the Rohnert Park-Sebastopol clash rescheduled for today. Other postponed games which do not affect the standings will not be played.

A's Finley In Good Condition

CHICAGO (UPI) — Oakland Athletics and California Seals owner Charles O. Finley, 54, was reported in good condition today at the Passavant Pavilion of Chicago's Northwestern Hospital.

"He's undergoing some tests," Finley's secretary said. Finley was reported to have been taken to the hospital Tuesday night for observation after sustaining chest pains. Doctors at the hospital said his condition was good and would not comment further. The Chicago Tribune said preliminary indications were there were no cardiac complications.

Finley, a wealthy Midwestern insurance man, has maintained an office in Chicago for several years.

NHL Players Fair Game, Says Judge

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Federal Judge A. Leon Higginbotham ruled Wednesday the World Hockey Association (WHA) could sign National Hockey League players whose pre-1972 contracts expire at the end of next month.

WHA attorneys said the ruling frees the WHA from NHL suits stemming from player raids.

Higginbotham's ruling was the latest in a complicated legal battle between the WHA and the NHL.

Last November, Higginbotham barred the NHL from enforcing the reserve clause, saying it violated certain antitrust laws.

The suits by NHL teams against the fledgling WHA were consolidated here. They included the Chicago Blach Hawks' suit against the Winnipeg Jets for the raiding of superstar Bobby Hull, and the Boston Bruins versus the Philadelphia Blazers over the league-jumping of Derek Sanderson.

Ironically, Sanderson and the Blazers didn't hit it off. The Blazers bought Sanderson off and he returned to the Bruins. The financially troubled Blazers franchise was sold at the end of last season to a group of Vancouver businessmen.

Higginbotham said in his ruling he was hopeful the NHL-WHA feud could be settled with a trial, perhaps later this year.

The judge held that players with 1972 contracts expiring this year were not covered by the ruling.

"To appreciate the full significance of Judge Higginbotham's order it must be remembered that the NHL has, since March 1972, recognized two forms of contract for signing players. Prior to that date the contract employed was and is known as the '1970 Form.' The new contract was and is known as the '1972 Form' which contains a clause providing for arbitration of the players salary upon renewal of his contract.

"Judge Higginbotham's order enjoins the NHL from enforcing its 1970 Form contracts which expire in September 1973 (there are 21 NHL contracts plus 13 minor league contracts). The Judge refused the request for an injunction with respect to 1972 Form contracts (there are 66 NHL contracts plus 93 minor league contracts).

"The basis of the Judge's order was that the WHA had failed to demonstrate the necessary facts to support its motion for an injunction with respect to NHL players signed to 1972 Form contracts."

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The largest bird taken in Missouri's 1973 turkey hunting season was a 29-pounder, according to the state's State Conservation Commission.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Lightface type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

"THIS IS THE MOST REASONABLE PLACE I'VE EVER BOUGHT TIRES!!"

I hear this statement everyday. You can give 2 meanings to reasonable. 1. that our prices on our merchandise are good value for the quality involved 2. I could also mean we are reasonable or sensible in our dealings with people on tires, or as I would put it

NO NONSENSE!!
I keep repeating in my ads: CAIN'S TIRE PRICES ARE LOWER! This sounds like the same old, same old - but it isn't it's a fact.
• Our volume is big, easy 2 million this year.
• We are totally independent, in other words, we don't have to sell you a Goodyear or a Sears tire cause that's all we sell - we sell many brands of tires, we will give you a choice plus our recommendation.
• Our Independence and our ability to pay, bring us a lot of good buys on tires, buys that other tire dealers aren't exposed to.
• Our overhead is low: we have good people, whom we pay well - but our location & facilities are far from what I'd like them to be, but I do not have a big beautiful Taj Mahal I'm asking you the customer to pay for, cause the customer is the only guy that can pay the rent.

TO SUM UP:
We are reasonable because - we buy cheaper than our competition, and it costs us less to operate. That doesn't even take into account our volume.
I want your tire business, my prices - my product and my attitude deserves your business - come see us and see if you don't agree - with the people who have said "You're the most reasonable people I've ever dealt with." — Pat McAlonan

IF YOU READ THIS AD - SAVE IT. MOST OF THE MERCHANDISE, ARE REGULAR STOCK ITEMS AT OUR REGULAR LOWER PRICES - SO SAVE THE AD IT MAY HELP YOU WITH YOUR FUTURE TIRE SHOPPING.

Warning On Future Market Instability

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have held common stocks for many years through numerous bull and bear markets. I must admit that the sharp swings in what I had always thought were stable blue chips have me alarmed about the market. Do you think this type of action will continue? — C.T.

A. Unless there are some fundamental changes in the structure of the stock market I am afraid the phenomenon you describe will not only continue but will become more common. Share price changes of 20 per cent or more in one trading session, which occur with increasing frequency, are indicative of serious instability and lack of public support within the market structure.

The "why" of this instability is the increasing institutionalization of the market and the liquidity problems which have accompanied this growth. Institutions, which accounted for 31 per cent of Big Board volume only a decade ago, contribute about 80 per cent of volume today. This has led to a concentration of daily transactions by a relatively small number of professional money managers. Within this specialized group there tends to be less diversity of opinion. Thus when one sells, many sell and vice versa, whereas with broader public participation, as in the recent past, there are usually buyers available to match the sellers.

The burden placed on the specialist system by this changing market structure has underscored the inadequacy of this method of transaction. The specialist system is antiquated not only in terms of poor price performance, reflecting the lack of competition, but also in terms of insufficient capital to absorb the large blocks traded by institutions.

Convincing investors like you that the stock market is sound is one of the objectives cited by the S.E.C. in its request to Congress for greater power to intervene and supervise the industry. Since public participation is a vital factor in a healthy marketplace, recent recognition of this by the industry is a reassuring sign that better service may be in the offing for the small investor.

U.S. In Hong Kong

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States continued to be the largest foreign investor in Hong Kong's industry through 1972, according to latest figures of the Hong Kong Trade Development Council.

Stocks Close Mixed After Modest Rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed mixed today; following a modest rally featuring some blue-chip and glamor buying. Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was slow.

Analysts noted both early selling and the mid-day bargain spree lacked conviction, coming on light trading.

Some observers said the market was encouraged a bit by the dollar's strong performance, and the concurrent decline in gold prices on foreign markets. They added the trading tone remained cautious against the background of higher interest rates and inflation.

Ara Services lost some ground during the day on the Big Board. The company declined to comment on indictments brought by a federal grand jury in Atlanta charging price fixing of beverages sold from vending machines.

Salvatore's Haircutting And Curling Co. Will Analyze Hair

A new hair salon that analyzes hair with the microscope and the microgram scale (to measure tensile strength and moisture content) will open this month in Kentfield a half block from the Kentfield Fire House.

Salvatore's Haircutting and Curling Co., which has two shops in San Francisco, will open its Marin branch at 928-B Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, where Country Beauty Salon is now located.

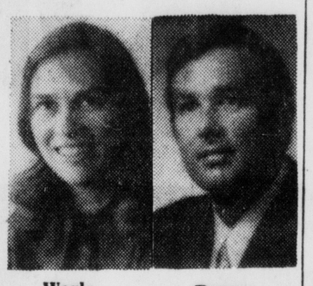
The new salon is owned by Salvatore Busalacchi of Sausalito, who has been operating his San Francisco shops for five years.

"We feature scientific hair analysis, just like going to the doctor for a checkup," said Busalacchi. "We eliminate guesswork; instead of guessing, we pinpoint hair conditioning."

Salvatore's offers complete hair cutting and styling for both men and women. The shop will be open Monday through Saturday. On the first Sunday of each month, Salvatore's will give away free haircuts to mentally retarded children in foster homes.

SHARON WERLE of Greenbrae, manager of Gibraltar Savings' Irving Street Savings office in San Francisco, has been elected an assistant vice president of the statewide association.

Before becoming Irving Street manager, Mrs. Werle was a savings supervisor in the downtown office on Montgomery Street. Born in Oregon, she was educated in Detroit and graduated from Wayne State University.



Werle Ruegg

FRANK C. RUEGG, 31, of Mill Valley has been named resident manager of Coldwell, Banker & Company's Montclair-Piedmont office, which is scheduled to open early this fall.

Ruegg has been with Coldwell Banker for two years in the firm's Marin County office. He previously spent two years as sales executive for the Sea Ranch Properties in Sonoma County. He attended College of Marin and San Francisco State University.

AUTOMATIC SEWING Machine and Vacuum Center is now in full operation at 909 Fourth Street in San Rafael (old location of Collectors Gallery and Loves' chinaware). The firm moved onto Fourth Street from its former site at 914 C Street.

Automatic Sewing Machine and Vacuum Center, which has been in business in San Rafael for about 15 years, features the Viking and Pfaff sewing machines and Eureka and Hoover vacuum cleaners, plus other lines. The shop also provides repair service, striving for one-day service.

UTILITY LINES in the La Plaza section in the heart of Cotati will go underground by October. Work will begin next Monday at the intersections of Old Redwood Highway, East Cotati Avenue and Sierra Street. The conversion is a joint effort by Pacific Gas and Electric Co., Pacific Telephone and Storer Television.

MARIN COUNTY LEGAL Directory for 1973 has just been published by the Marin County Court Reporter in association with the Marin County Bar Association. The 50-page booklet includes the names and photographs of Marin attorneys, listed in alphabetical order.

JAMES R. HUNT of Mill Valley has joined the San Rafael office of Dean Witter & Co. as an account executive, according to Shane H. Brady, vice president and manager. Hunt will handle investment accounts for investors in Marin.

Hunt graduated from California State University at San Francisco and served in the Green Berets for four years as a captain, including duty in Vietnam where he won an Air Medal, Bronze Star, three Gallantry Crosses and five Battle Stars.

We can do more for you than any other bank.

(even if you can't find the scissors)

You see, we have more services than other banks. Not that you'll use them all. You won't. But it's nice to know every banking need imaginable is covered. And under one roof. More likely, you'll be into things that make day-to-day living simpler. Like the services we describe below. Of course, of greatest importance is how we view the banking relationship. It colors everything we do.

Courteous personal service:

We feel banking is a person-to-person matter. So we value the human touch. With us, your needs are as individual as you are. That's why personal service has always been important at Bank of America.

New high savings rates:

We offer many different savings plans. And they pay you more than ever before in our history. Our new Certificate of Deposit pays a big 7% per annum for at least four years on a $1,000 minimum deposit. Our three new Investors Passbooks earn you 6½% annually for a two and one-half year account, 6% for one year, 5½% annual interest for 90 days. $500 minimum deposit. And our regular passbook savings account offers in-and-out flexibility.

Personal Choice Checking:

We have four checking plans to choose from. Each fits an individual need, whether you write few checks or many. And our beautiful scenic checks will add some color to your life.

Simplified monthly statement:

This statement simplifies balancing your checking account. We call it the Timesaver® Statement. It can even include a summary of your savings accounts and other information if you wish. You can tell at a glance where you stand.

Three ways to finance your car:

Only Bank of America gives you three different ways to finance your car. Ask your auto dealer about our Auto-Magic Financing, the rock-bottom monthly payment plan. Or about leasing.

Then there's our regular auto loan. We've made more of them than any other bank in California. See your dealer or local Bank of America.

Of course, we make loans for just about anything else you can think of, too.

Red Carpet Service:

Our own special system to serve you promptly, save you time. And nobody peers over your shoulder when you transact your business. Most of our offices have it.

Automatic Transfer Service:

Makes regular savings deposits or loan payments for you automatically, from your Bank of America checking account. Saves time, simplifies things. Especially helpful when you're ill or out of town.

MEDITATION — Followers of the Sikh religion, who do not smoke, drink, use illicit drugs or eat meat, are garbed in spotless white turbans and tunics as they bow in silent meditation at their San Rafael Ashram, or yoga learning center, at 16 Cullodon Park Road. The mansion is a regional residence center for the sect, which has other learning centers located around the country.

Bedayan's Mother Says He Changed

And BILL ROBERTS

Marcea Bedayan, mother of Brent William Bedayan, took the stand today to tell how her son changed from a young man for whom she had high hopes into the killer of three members of a Mill Valley family.

Bedayan, 22, is accused of setting fire to the home of Melvin and Ruth Schallock in Mill Valley, March 16, and then killing them and their 19-year-old son, Daniel.

Mrs. Bedayan described her son's activities during high school years and said she had high expectations for him immediately after his graduation in 1969.

But he began to change, she said, after his enrollment in psychology classes at the College of Marin and field training in psychology at the state mental hospital in Napa.

She said he became extremely unhappy and withdrawn after a patient who had become a close friend in Napa was transferred to southern California. Her son stayed alone in his room much of the time and could be heard crying, she said.

She also told of an altercation in the summer of 1972 when Bedayan was shooting basketball in the family yard with Daniel Schallock. Although no apparent fight took place, she said her son said, "He's fixed it so I can never come back to the house again."

Mrs. Bedayan also told the jury of an apparent suicide threat by her son in December 1972 which brought out claims by him that Dan Schallock was causing him pain in penis area and haunting him.

The final moments of life for the Mill Valley family were described from two vantage points Wednesday as the prosecution temporarily rested its case.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales questioned two criminalists and then told Judge Henry J. Broderick he was finished for the moment, but will call one or two more witnesses when they are available.

Then Deputy Public Defender Frank J. Cox began the defense case with testimony by a neighbor on what she heard of the Schallocks's last moments.

Fill Permit Cleared For Shopping Center

Permission Is Given By Federal Agency

By MARY LEYDECKER

The last hurdle blocking a fill permit for the proposed Ernest W. Hahn regional shopping center in Corte Madera apparently has been cleared as the project received a go-ahead from federal authorities.

In a letter received by Corte Madera town officials today, the federal Environmental Protection Agency withdrew objections made earlier to issuance of an Army Corps of Engineers' permit to fill the marshland.

Corte Madera officials said they believe this will lead to the granting of the needed permit.

Paul De Falco Jr., regional administrator for the federal agency, said the agency had reversed its stand on fill for the controversial project because of changes made by the developer.

He noted that the size of the project had been reduced from the original request for about 75 acres to about 45 acres. Further, he said two ponds in the north portion of the site now are not slated for fill, but will be left natural with surrounding open space.

Hahn has also given written assurance, De Falco said, that storm water runoff from Corte Madera through the site and from the project will receive treatment if necessary to meet federal water quality standards.

De Falco noted that a current "cease and desist order" against Corte Madera Sanitary District should not prevent adequate collection and treatment of sewage from the proposed shopping center.

Further, he said, the federal Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife and the California Department of Fish and Game have been working with Hahn "regarding mitigation measures" aimed at protecting

Religious Sect Is Facing Ouster—Anticommune Bid

By NELS JOHNSON

A bid by the San Rafael city administration to outlaw communes within city limits may force a highly disciplined religious sect that strives to be "an asset to the community" to relocate.

About 25 men and women and 10 children who live in an Ashram, or yoga learning center at 16 Culloden Park Road, and practice Sikhism, a 500-year-old Indian religion, would be outlawed from living together under provisions of an ordinance unanimously recommended by the San Rafael Planning Commission.

The ordinance, intended to tighten municipal control of communes, would prohibit more than five unrelated people from living in a single-family residence and would require the Ashram to obtain a variance to remain, according to City Atty. Fred C. Robbins.

There is no guarantee a variance will be issued should the city council endorse the measure on Sept. 4, he said.

KENNETH R. FRANKEL
'Roumiguiere sparked law'

The ordinance which would apply to these followers of the Sikh religion, would not, according to Robbins apply to such groups as the Dominican Sisters of San Rafael "because they are a religious group that falls within the First Amendment guarantees."

Robbins also said, "The council would not apply this to fraternal organizations."

Sikhism is based on three principles, or attitudes, according to Cliff Singh Lamoureaux, 33, director of the Ashram: "earning money righteously" without resorting to welfare or food stamps; "serving the community" by conducting yoga classes in local health facilities, hospitals and prisons, and sharing or working together conscientiously.

All who enter the immaculate, 25-room mansion on Culloden Park Road, a fashionable residential neighborhood, must remove their shoes. Men wear their hair, which they never cut, in turbans for cleanliness. Sex between unmarried members of the group is outlawed. Most are Caucasian.

The group is vegetarian, permits no alcohol, tobacco or illicit drugs in the house, and arises at 4 a.m. each day for four hours of exercise, meditation and chanting, Lamoureaux said. About half the members hold regular jobs, he added.

But the ordinance envisioned by the city would outlaw the communal lifestyle that is essential to the group's practice of religion.

The ordinance, which would define the term family as meaning "one or more persons, related by blood or marriage, or a group of not more than five persons, including servants, who need not be related," would provide fines of up to $500, or a six-month jail term, or both, for property owners who allow more than one such family to occupy a single family unit.

Kenneth R. Frankel of 260 Tiburon Boulevard, San Rafael, coowner of the towering home on Culloden Park Road, said that the ordinance is a "terrible attempt to legislate lifestyles," claimed the city has no commune problem, and charged the measure was sparked by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere.

Frankel, describing Roumiguiere as an "influence broker," claimed the supervisor

Integration Expert Will Guide Sausalito Schools

Donald W. Johnson of San Anselmo, credited two years ago with the successful integration of elementary schools in San Francisco, has been named superintendent of the Sausalito School District.

Trustees made the announcement Wednesday night after a special meeting behind closed doors. Johnson, 42, signed a three-year contract and will take over the $25,500-a-year post Sept. 1.

Since 1970, he has been director of desegregation and integration for San Francisco schools, a job that pays $600 more than his new position.

In 1968 he was named project coordinator of the National Teacher Corps Project in San Francisco and the following year was put in charge of the district's first attempts at integration at two elementary schools.

But in 1971 a U.S. District judge ordered all of the district's elementary schools integrated by the ollowing September, a task that observers predicted would be fraught with tension and confusion considering that Johnson had only four months to do it. The job was completed, according to reports, with far fewer problems than anticipated.

Johnson began his career in 1953 as an elementary school teacher in San Francisco's public schools but left to serve three years in the Army. He returned to teaching in 1956 and taught young children in San Francisco until three years later, when he received a Fullbright Scholarship to London, where he taught for a year.

Named superintendent

After his return, he was named assistant principal at Anza Elementary School and later principal, a post he held from 1966 to 1969.

A native of San Francisco, he was graduated from Abraham Lincoln High School there. He received a bachelor's degree in education and a master's degree in educational administration from California State University in San Francisco.

Johnson and his wife, Alice, and their two children, Paul, 15, and Janine, 12, have lived in San Anselmo for the past two years.

Citizen Protests Scuttle Levy On Mill Valley Sewer Service

Bowing to protest from angry citizens Wednesday night, the Mill Valley City Council killed its planned sewer service charges. (Another Mill Valley City Council story, page 11.)

After a public hearing on the charges produced nearly three hours of complaint from individual citizens and homeowner groups, the council decided not to submit a list of sewer charges to the county assessor for inclusion in November tax billings.

The council adopted sewer service charges in early June and planned to bill citizens in their regular tax statements. But to be included in the billings, a list of all charges had to be submitted by Friday.

The charges would have raised about $225,000 to be used to prevent infiltration of outside water into the city's sewer system. The outside water places an extra burden on the system's treatment plant during rainy months.

The council's 4-1 vote, with Councilman Robert E. Burton opposed, not to submit the list killed the charge for at least one year.

Councilman Robert E. Capron asked the council in place of the sewer charge to use federal monies allocated for treatment plant improvements to initiate the infiltration repairs.

He also recommended well-publicized public hearings on methods of raising the bulk of the $1.4 million needed to prevent infiltration.

The standing-room-only crowd in city hall scored the council for not providing adequate notice on imposition of charges which would have cost the average single family home owner $3.40 a month.

"We're on the edge of a cliff with a forest fire behind us. Why weren't we given a little more time to think about this?" asked one citizen who did not identify himself.

Only two persons spoke in favor of the sewer charge and

$1.5-Million Bond Ballot Asked For Petaluma Parks

A $1.5 million bond issue to support park development was approved by the Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission Wednesday night.

The commission will meet with the city council Monday at 7:30 p.m. to request a date be set. The council is also to consider putting a library bond issue on the Nov. 6 special election ballot.

Recreation Director James R. Raymond said the commission will oppose the Nov. 6 election date and ask that a special election be called later in the winter. Commissioners said it would be unwise to mix a bond issue with the statewide vote to lower property taxes.

Raymond said the bulk of the $1.5 million would be spent to develop Lucchesi Park. The remainder would be used for tennis courts and athletic facilities at other parks.

The commission also approved plans by the Petaluma Lions Club to add a large barbecue pit and picnic tables to McDowell Park. A sunshade would also be added to the concrete slab provided by the club last year.

Raymond said costs will total $2,600 with the club paying $1,400 and the city $1,200.

Wheat, Sugar Cost Show Up In Local Bread Hikes

Marin residents are going to have to pay more dough for their bread.

The price of a loaf was being marked up 2 cents today in many local stores and bakeries. And there were predictions the cost will rise even higher.

Bakerymen said they have been forced to hike their prices because of soaring costs of ingredients.

"I'm paying $1.60 to $2.00 more for 100 pounds of flour," said Paul R. Henderson, manager of the San Rafael French Bakery.

Henderson's goods still cost the same as they did a few weeks ago, but he said an increase is inevitable. "I don't know just how high prices will go because I can't get a firm contract from my supplier. Usually, I sign a six-month contract, but for the first time he can't tell me how much flour will cost until wheat prices stabilize.

"Right now, we're operating at a loss because we haven't passed the increases on to our customers."

A spokesman for Langendorf Bakeries in San Rafael said their bread is up 2 cents as of today. And other items, like cakes, doughnuts and cookies are going to cost more soon.

Dwain Leversee, owner of the Village Bake Shop in Larkspur, predicts he will have to add 12 cents to the price of a dozen doughnuts, bringing the cost to $1.56.

He also expects cakes to go up from $2.50 to $2.75.

Leversee said higher wholesale prices for jams, jellies, nuts, sugar and mixes are "hitting us hard."

"One kind of jam is up from $14 to $17 in the last couple of weeks."

In January, Fred Cassee, owner of Mill Valley's Locust Bakery, was paying $7.40 for 100 pounds of flour. Today, he is paying $17.50. And sugar which cost $10.50 a few months ago, now costs him $16.50.

Cassee has already raised the price of his doughnuts from $1.20 to $1.30 a dozen and expects that his other products will have to go up in the near future.

Ben Albrecht, president of Parisian Bakers Inc. of San Francisco, which supplies many Marin stores and restaurants, blamed the Nixon administration's export policies for the spiraling prices. "All this exporting wheat is killing us," Albrecht said, "There is a greater demand than supply."

Harmer May Run For Second Spot

Harmer said he would announce a decision after Labor Day. He was an unsuccessful candidate for attorney general in 1970.

Stork Outspeeds Highway Patrolmen

Their motto already is, "Can do!"

It was all in a day's work for the two at 2:09 a.m. Wednesday, as they answered a Nicasio family's distress plea on the Golden Gate Bridge — and delivered a healthy baby girl.

It all began about a half-hour earlier, when Judith Ann Fairclouth of 1635 Merritt Drive told her husband, Ron, that she felt it was time they headed to the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco. With labor pains 21 minutes apart, she said her baby was on the way.

By the time the 28-year-old couple, and Fairclouth's mother-in-law, Mrs. George Butterworth of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., made it to the freeway, however, the pains were coming three minutes apart.

Fairclouth stepped on the gas at this point, and sped past the two cruising patrolmen on the Golden Gate Bridge. The officers unknowingly tried to pull the car to the curb for speeding until a sergeant at the bridge toll plaza yelled, "Hey! She's going to have a baby!"

After turning onto Park Presidio Boulevard, Fairclouth discovered that they werent' going to make it to the hospital. He pulled to the side of the road, and with Officer's Deutsch and Thomsen assisting, Mrs. Fairclouth gave birth to a healthy 8-pound, 6-ounce Carley Ann.

The officers summoned an aumbulance, and the baby girl and mother were soon taken to the hospital.

Both are reported doing fine, despite the fact that the officers' expertise may be open to question. They did, after all, inform Mrs. Fairclouth she had just had a fine looking son.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Leader Overboard

PRINCE FREDERICK, Md. (UPI) — Civil rights leader George A. Wiley, 42, is missing and presumed drowned in heavy seas of the Chesapeake Bay early today, despite rescue efforts by his 10-year-old son.

State police said Wiley fell through an unstable railing of his new 23-foot cabin cruiser late Wednesday and fell in the churning bay waters off Dares Beach, Md., about 40 miles east of Washington.

Wiley, who lived in Washington, was a founder and former executive director of the National Welfare Rights Organization and founder of the Movement for Economic Justice. He was formerly an associate chemistry professor at Syracuse University.

Police said his son, Daniel, told them Wiley lost his balance when the vessel pitched. The boy tried but failed to reach his father with a rope and an extra jacket and piloted the cruiser in circles for about 20 minutes looking for him.

Not Revolutionary

DETROIT (UPI) — Striking workers in the second day of a wildcat walkout at a key Chrysler Corp. plant said today "revolutionaries" whose aim is control of the auto plants were trying to take credit for the labor dispute.

Picketing workers said Douglas A. Fraser, the UAW vice president in charge of the Chrysler Department, had been misled by leaflets handed out at the plant gates into thinking revolutionaries were behind the walkout.

The mimeographed leaflets called on "workers and oppressed people of the world" to unite.

Skylab Pictures

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts, who took a couple of pictures Wednesday of the web spun by their spiderhouseguest, point their cameras at the northeastern United States today to study the effects of strip mining on the environment.

The 25-minute 11,000 mile picture taking sweep from Montana to the South Atlantic Ocean was designed for Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma to evaluate the effects of strip mining in Ohio and Indiana and study the environmental changes in the Chesapeake Bay.

Berlin Escape

BERLIN (UPI) — Two East German engineers and their families tunneled beneath the Berlin Wall on July 27 and emerged through a drainage pipe in West Berlin, Western diplomatic sources said today.

Police confirmed that the nine refugees — the two engineers, their wives and five children — made the first successful escape across the wall since February, 1972.

The disclosure of the tunnel escape coincided with an announcement by the West German government it planned to crack down on professional refugee smugglers who charge up to $30,000 to sneak East Germans across the frontier.

Vietnam Charges

SAIGON (UPI) — A South Vietnamese government spokesman accused the Communists today of a major attack on the defense perimeter of the old imperial capital of Hue and said the Viet Cong were still trying to seize control of Highway 1 on the Central Coast where they are trying to establish an arms port.

The Communists countercharged that the government had opened a land grabbing offensive in the Central Highlands near Kontum, 270 miles north of Saigon, and had sent in seven infantry battalions, two tank battalions and two artillery batteries backed by planes.

Fighting was reported in all those areas.

Slaughter Denied

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A spokesman for the Palestinian guerrilla movement said today the "Seventh Suicide Squad," which claimed responsibility in a letter to two Beirut newspapers for last Sunday's Athens airport attack, was a "fictitious and nonexistent organization."

Spokesmen for various Palestinian guerrilla organizations have denied responsibility for the attack, in which three persons were killed and 55 persons wounded while they waited to board planes to New York and Geneva.

Gold Drops

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold dropped to its lowest price in three months today, and the U.S. dollar rode the other end of the seesaw to a slight recovery against most European currencies.

Most gold dealers attributed the fall in the price of gold to higher interest rates offered in many countries, including the United States, Britain and Holland.

Arms Accusation

GENEVA (UPI) — Sweden accused the United States and the Soviet Union today of developing a new generation of tactical nuclear weapons for battlefield use. Sweden demanded they be discontinued.

The Swedish negotiator at the Geneva Disarmament Conference, Mrs. Alva Myrdal, said the new weapons would "drastically aggravate the nuclear threat against non-nuclear weapon states everywhere."

The small nuclear weapons, Mrs. Myrdal said, would "affect the very premises on which adherence to the nuclear non proliferation treaty is based."

Bombers Strike

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — American B52s and F111 bombers bombed on two sides of Phnom Penh today in the most intensive strikes in a month, and the big B52s made a rare daylight strike against insurgents menacing government defense lines nine miles from Phnom Penh.

Ground fighting was reported light.

The U.S. Embassy denied that American aircraft were involved in a third bombing mistake Sunday which killed between 11 and 15 persons at the village of Veal Sbov, five miles south of the capital, and implied that this mistake was made by the Cambodian air force.

Irish Injuries

BELFAST (UPI) — Sixteen persons, all women and children, were injured in a bomb blast at an army barracks today, and police fired rubber bullets at hundreds of youths in a predawn riot in Belfast, the army said.

The violence coincided with demonstrations planned by Roman Catholics across Northern Ireland protesting the second anniversary of the British Army policy of placing terrorist suspects in internment camps without trial.

Police said rioters at Newry, 35 miles southwest of Belfast, set fire to at least six cars.

A GRAPE VETERAN — An unidentified United Farm Worker supporter sits bloodied on the ground at the Guimarra Vineyards near Lamont in Kern County, following a clash between pickets and sheriff's deputies. Meanwhile Wednesday, singer Joan Baez led a group of protesters at a peach orchard outside Fresno.

Joan Baez Leads Table Grape Group

Two groups of singers — 200 pickets led by folksinger Joan Baez and 100 farmers and their wives standing in a nearby peach orchard — staged a musical duel in the agricultural country outside Fresno.

Miss Baez, accompanied on the picket line by Daniel Ellsberg of Pentagon Papers fame, led the supporters of Cesar Chavez in the protest song, "We Shall Overcome."

"You have to stand with us if the human race is to survive," Miss Baez told the farmers' wives. "We'll walk hand in hand," she added, beginning another chorus of the protest song.

"Not with you we won't," shouted one of the women in the orchard.

The folksinger and Ellsberg picketed in apparent violation of court orders limiting pickets, but sheriff's deputies declined to make any arrests.

Ellsberg, describing himself as a long-time admirer of Chavez, said he joined the pickets to protest the court orders, describing them as violations of the First Amendment rights of United Farm Workers Union members. The UFW and the Teamsters Union are engaged in an often-violent battle over the representation of California farm workers.

ITT Is Tied To Ecuador Cutoff

NEW YORK (UPI) — Business Week magazine said today the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. (ITT) managed to have over $415 million in U.S. aid witheld from Ecuador until the Latin American nation settled a claim for an exproriated ITT subsidiary.

The magazine said the subsidiary at issue was All American Cables and Radio, which operated in Quito. It was expropriated in 1971, and ITT at first demanded $1.2 million in restitution.

Eventually, the magazine said, the government came with $25,000 of agreeing on a settlement involving some $600,000 and valuable parcels of land. Business Week said ITT demanded that the U.S. government invoke rarely used sanctions, including cutting off loans and aid, to force the payment.

The magazine quoted unnamed "government officials" as saying Jack Neall, a now-retired ITT representative in Washington, "invoked the names of top Nixon administration figures to bend the bureaucrats to ITT's will" when the State Department was reluctant to cut off the funds.

"The net result of ITT's pressures was that $415.8 million of assistance...was held up for two years by AID," the magazine said. "And a $14.3 million Inter-American Bank loan was threatened with cancellation by U.S. members of the multination lending institution if Ecuador did not cave in on the mere $25,000 difference with ITT."

Business Week said Ecuador began going along with ITT's terms in January of 1972, paying the $600,000, but it decided to take back the land that was part of the deal.

Extra Water Is Part Of Plan

The Marin Municipal Water District's modified Sonoma-Marin aqueduct will be capable of bringing in more water than the amount needed for the limited growth proposed by the county-wide plan, the district board learned yesterday.

The $31 million pipeline, which probably will be presented to voters in a November bond election, will be able to carry 16,000 acre-feet of water annually, according to William R. Seeger, district general manager.

But, he told the board, the district has no plan to obtain more than the 13,400 acre-feet required to support the amount of new development the county plan calls for.

He said the district will contract for that amount — and no more — from the North Marin County Water District and Sonoma County Water Agency which will supply the water in the project's early stages.

Seeger said the larger capacity is needed since the district is contracting for "off peak" water which the nortern water agencies will provide during times when the demands on their system are lowest.

"We'll probably only be using the pipeline for nine months out of the year, so it has to be larger to bring in the amount of water we need during that period," he said.

A pipeline with a 13,400 acre-foot annual capacity would be incapable of bringing in that amount of water if only used for nine months, he explained.

Director L. Martin Griffin urged the district to complete cpntracts for the water quickly with North Marin and Sonoma so voters can be assured that the quantity will be consistent with the county-wide plan's growth limits.

Seeger pointed out that the aqueduct will not bring the full 13,400 acre-feet of water to the county right away, since it will be built in stages.

The first stage, between Hamilton Air Force Base and Highway 37, will tie into the North Marin system and provide 4,000 acre feet of water by the fall of 1974.

Stage one is basically the same as the north Marin intertie which voters approved in 1970 but which the district board has refused to build until the November election.

Yesterday several board members asked Seeger if it would be wise to start that pipeline now since it is not dependent on voter approval of the bond issue.

"I can see no advantage to going ahead now, since we couldn't start construction until next April," the general manager replied.

Stage two of the aqueduct is a pipeline from Hamilton to Freitas Parkway in Terra Linda and will increase the system's capacity to 8,000 acre feet a year through additional pumps and storage facilities.

Stage three, from Novato to Cotati, will make the pipeline capable of bringing in the full 13,400 acre feet a year and will be completed by the fall of 1979.

The fourth stage, from Cotati to the Russian River, will hook up the district's lines to its source of supply to assure water when it is no longer available from North Marin and Sonoma.

The board adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. At that time directors will have to decide whether to submit the entire project to voters in November or present it in several bond issues, each paying for one or more stages.

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

QUORUM — Agreed to amend district regulations to require three votes to pass any measure. Currently, district law states that a majority of a quorum — or two members — are sufficient to approve an action.

RENTAL — Agreed to rent part of its San Rafael yard property on Second Street to Ed Studley of Redding for a Christmas tree lot during December for $500 a month.

ATTORNEY — Hired San Francisco attorney Harold B. Lerner to handle condemnation actions. Lerner will be paid $75 an hour and a minimum of $150 for each condemnation.

BUDGET — Adopted a $7.8 million budget for 1973-74, including $6.3 million for district operations and the rest for capital improvements.

Nobel Considered On Student Work

MARIANNA, Ark. (UPI) — A recent college graduate is being considered for nomination for the Nobel Prize for his undergraduate research on cancer-causing viruses.

A committee of the National Institute for Cancer Research has notified Charles H. Allen of La Grange, Ark., he is under consideration for nomination for the biochemestry prize.

Dr. Jeff Schlom of Columbia University, a member of NICR, said Allen's work was "quite possibly the most important single development in cancer research in the last 20 years, almost inconceivable as the work of an undergraduate."

Allen was graduated from Rice University in Houston last spring.

Soviet, U.S. Trade Leaders To Confer

North California Hit By Tremblor

FERNDALE, Calif. (UPI) — A tremblor described as "the strongest quake I've felt in 14 years of living here" by Ferndale Chief of Police Charles Goff jarred residents from Fort Bragg to Eureka Wednesday.

The quake, which measured 4.75 on the Richter scale at the University of California in Berkeley, caused no reported major damage, but one motorist reported "objects rolling down a hillside"—apparently dirt and rocks.

Water Cut May Delay Landscaping

Marin Municipal Water District's moratorium on new connections may delay the state Department of Transportation's landscaping of San Rafael's Bellam Boulevard interchange for four years or more.

This was indicated in a letter by Jerry O'Shea, assistant district engineer for the department, to Charles J. Linthicum, senior planner for the City of San Rafael.

Linthicum, on instruction by the San Rafael Planning Commission, had written the Department of Transportation urging early landscaping of the interchange along with other locations along Highway 17 in Marin County.

In his reply, O'Shea wrote that the Bellam Boulevard planting has been scheduled for fiscal 1977-78. "We believe," he wrote, "(it) should be advanced to an earlier date," but:

"1. The highway planting program is being reduced and funds normally available are being directed toward routes on the interstate system.

"2. Of immediate concern to us is the Marin Municipal Water District's moratorium on new water meter installations. Until this conflict is resolved any planting projects requiring irrigation will have to be delayed."

MANSION — The old Babcock mansion at 16 Cullodon Park Road in San Rafael, now the home of followers of the Sikh religion, towers above the trees as two members of the sect relax outside. The 25-room mansion has become the target of a city ordinance some say is specifically intended to oust them from the premises in the single-family residential area.

does not like the sect next door and has embarked on a campaign to oust the group.

Roumiguiere denied the charge and declined comment on his neighbors, saying only that Frankel, who rents the home for $1,500 monthly, "is a big landlord charging a big rental that he is conerned about losing.

"The ordinance is designed to prevent communes from establishing in single-family neighborhoods, and I favor that," said Roumiguiere.

Frankel, backed by Lamoureaux, said the sect obviously has been singled out for elimination since there is "no commune problem at all in San Rafael."

Although the ordinance declares that it is aimed at eliminating the "numerous large congregations of unrelated children and adults presently occupying single family residential units throughout the City of San Rafael," city planners told the Independent-Journal they dod not know where such communes are.

"Fact is we have no list. . . We've had maybe four or five calls complaining over a number of years," said J. Stanley Ott, senior planner. Ott said the Sikhism sect on Culloden Park Road is one of "one or two" communes the city is specifically aware of.

City Mgr. William J. Bielser denied Frankel's claim that Roumiguiere had pressured city officials into drafting the ordinance, saying it was written two years ago, shelved, and recently resurrected. "I don't have the statistical information, but I am of the professional opinion the problem is sufficient to require regulation," Bielser said.

Frankel claimed the ordinance discriminates against low income groups who band together for economic reasons, and is inapplicable to the Ashram in any case.

"Large congregations of unrelated people do no more damage to density standards, health and safety or parking than large congregations of related people," he said.

Further, the ordinance makes no distinction between the sizes of houses or between sizes of lots, he said. "It gives no methods for determining the real intended occupancy of a dwelling but sets an artificial limit of five people."

The Culloden Park home has 25 rooms and eight bathrooms, he noted.

City officials pointed out that a legitimate complaint of some neighbors is the local parking situation. More than a dozen cars sometimes park on the grounds of the residence, although recent complaints have prompted the group to assign one member daily "to make sure cars are not parked out front on the road," according to Lamoureaux.

Frankel will take the matter to the Marin County Human Rights Commission at 8 p.m. today in the Civic Center, where commissioners have scheduled a public hearing on the ordinance. "There are serious questions as to the constitutionality of this thing," said Douglas H. Bosco, director of the county human relations department. "This ordinance infringes upon people's rights of association," he said.

Declared Frankel: "Many communes consider themselves families. They share as families, eat together as families, worship together as families, and they should have the same rights to live where they choose as any other type of family."

Bielser noted that, should the measure be approved by the city council, and a variance requested by the Ashram, a public hearing will be held to air the issue.

Traffic Plan Is Offered Board

A plan for parking and traffic circulation for the Schoonmaker development proposed for the northern Sausalito waterfront was presented Wednesday to the Sausalito Community Appearances Advisory Board.

All parking will be underground, beneath residential and commercial units, Steven Siskind, a designer and spokesman for the O-Meara-Chandler Corp., the project's developer, told the board.

A mini-bus system will be used inside the project and to carry persons into downtown Sausalito. All auto traffic will exit the development at its northern end on Harbor Drive and incoming traffic will enter at Napa Street, Siskind said.

An environmental impact report must be completed on revised plans for the project — which conforms to existing zoning — before it can be considered by the planning commission.

FILL

wildlife.

The proposed multimillion-dollar shopping center has received strong opposition by some Corte Madera residents, many of whom opposed filling the marshland and disturbing wildlife on the site east of Highway 101.

Others, however, had suggested a compromise, similar to the present proposal, in which some marsh would be saved but the project could go ahead, providing more sales tax revenue for the town.

Three Corte Madera councilmen facing a recall election, have been criticized for their support of the project.

Monday, though, the city council refused to allow limited dumping on fill on the site, with councilmen saying that they wanted permission in writing first.

(Councilman Edward W. Colthurst said today that he was incorrectly reported in an I-J account of that meeting as saying that he and one of Hahn's representatives, L. E. Oberkamper, had worked out a compromise that would have allowed limited fill dumping to begin.

(Colthurst said he had "never before even met Oberkamper," and the minutes of the meeting support his contention that he did not make such a statement.)

New Inmate At Quentin Stabbed

A newly arrived San Quentin inmate was stabbed and seriously wounded Wednesday, apparently the victim of a long-standing feud between rival Mexican-American gangs, according to a prison spokesman.

John Medina Jr., 43, was reported in serious condition today in the prison hospital with wounds in the neck, chest, and stomach. He had arrived at the prison Tuesday from the California Men's Colony in San Luis Obispo.

The spokesman said that one inmate was in custody today and that two weapons were found after the stabbing in the prison exercise yard.

California Department of Justice, Bedayan executed a precision plan to flush the Schallocks from their house and gun them down.

This is Travnikoff's account.

Walking along a patio to the east side of the dwelling, Bedayan shot two blasts through the second-story window of Daniel Schallock's bedroom.

Realizing their house was on fire and hearing the shots, the three Schallocks climbed out of Mrs. Schallock's first-floor bedroom window and began to walk along the west side of the house toward the front.

Bedayan, coming up behind them, first shot Daniel, then his parents, with bursts of semi-automatic fire from his powerful shotgun.

He then retraced his steps to the back of the house, broke a living room window to get in, then walked out the front door, returned with the second gasoline can and soaked the entryway and parts of the living room.

"He set it afire," concluded Travnikoff, "and departed the scene of the crime."

The second criminalist, Robert L. Baker, told how he detected blood on a jacket Bedayan wore and on the shotgun found in his apartment, but could not tell whose blood it was. He was Bales's last witness, save the one or two to be called later.

Defense attorney Cox's first witness, Lora M. Cook, described what she heard as the Schallocks were being shot.

"I was asleep very soundly," said the Schallock neighbor and friend for eight years, "when I heard someone yelling for help."

"Then there was running, the sound of someone running through bushes, and I got up and went to a window, but I couldn't see anything.

When the shooting first started — in three groups of several shots per group — Mrs. Cook said she thought it was firecrackers.

She testified she then heard her husband, Robert C. Cook, go out the front door to investigate the noises, and she tried to call him back, but he only told her, "Mel's house is on fire," and went on.

She hadn't even had time to call the fire department, she said, when her husband returned after a brief encounter with a gunman in the street in front of the Schallock house.

Then Lawrence B. Bochino, manager of the Mill Valley Tennis Club, took the stand and described Bedayan as Bochino knew him — a quiet but efficient lifeguard at the club pool for three summers.

"He was a very quiet person, reserved, polite and very thoughtful, and I must say respectful. He was never violent, and seemed very sincere about his work."

Bochino described Bedayan as "very much an introvert" but told Cox he seemed normal in all other respects. The manager said he would not have hesitated to hire Bedayan again.

But, Bochino said, a marked change came over Bedayan in the three months between his last day of work as a lifeguard in September 1972 and a one-day job he did for Bochino this January.

"Where he had always been comparatively neat and reserved, he seemed (in January) extremely nervous, unkempt, rather pale and under some kind of emotional stress," said Bochino.

But, the manager said, he did not ask Bedayan what was troubling him.

OBITUARIES

Merrold M. Campbell Dies At 63

Merrold M. Campbell, owner of Campbell-Bishop Chevrolet Co., died Wednesday in a local hospital after a long illness. He was 63.

He was born in Massena, Iowa and grew up there.

He worked for the Goodrich Tire Co. in Norfolk, Neb. From 1948 to 1952 he was general manager of the Lincoln-Mercury garage in Spencer, Iowa. He then took over the Ford dealership in Carroll, Iowa, in 1952.

He moved in 1957 to Los Gatos where he became general manager of Grant Bishop Chevrolet garage. He and Bishop formed a partnership, Campbell-Bishop Chevrolet, in May 1959 at 5880 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera. In 1968 he bought out Bishop and was the sole owner until recently when his son, Joe Campbell, started buying the business.

He was a member of Evening Shade Lodge No. 312, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of Spencer, Iowa; California Bodies Scottish Rite; Islam Temple of the Shrine; Marin Shrine Club; Royal Court Jesters No. 4; San Rafael Lodge No 1108, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and the Meadows Club.

In addition to his son, Joe, he is survived by his wife, Eloise Campbell of the home at 111 Lochinvar Road, San Rafael; another son, John Campbell of Santa Cruz; a daughter, Glennis Jones of Sausalito and two grandchildren.

Masonic funeral, under the auspices of Fairfax Lodge No. 556 Free and Accepted Masons, will be at 11 a.m. Saturday, at the Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo. Burial will be at Lewis Cemetery, Lewis, Iowa.

CHARGES

one received hearty boos from the audience.

Capron said the council could raise the needed money by imposing the sewer charge, floating a bond issue, shifting funds budgeted for other purposes or by a popular vote to increase the tax rate.

He said by delaying the work the city risks the start of improvements by the state water control board, per diem penalties for poorly treated effluents and the delay by the federal government of monies for the treatment plant improvements.

The council's action did not entirely kill the sewer charge, however. An ordinance must be introduced at a later meeting to repeal the ordinances which established the charges.

KENNETH PATRICK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Flags were lowered to half staff today in memory of the death of California Park Ranger Kenneth C. Patrick, the first ranger ever murdered in the line of duty.

Patrick, a former Arizona state trooper and the father of four boys, was shot Sunday morning, apparently by a poacher, in a remote section of Point Reyes National Seashore, the Interior Department said.

The flags were to remain at half staff for 24 hours.

Simultaneous services for Patrick were held today in California and in Arizona: a memorial service at St. Columba Episcopal Church in Inverness and funeral at Flagstaff followed by burial at Grand Canyon Cemetery, not far from where he once served as ranger at Grand Canyon National Park.

WILMA CLARK

Funeral for Wilma J. Clark of San Rafael will be at 2 p.m. Monday in the Faith Reform Church in Wisconsin Rapids, Wisc.

Mrs. Clark, a resident of San Rafael for seven years, died Tuesday in a San Francisco Hospital after a long illness. She was 63.

She was born in Cedar Grove, Wis. In 1932 she married Jack M. Clark, a neighbor for many years in the town of Vesper.

They lived in Wisconsin until 1943 where he worked first as a dealer and later a distributor for Westinghouse appliances.

He joined the army in the 1940s and she traveled extensively with him on assignments in this country and abroad.

They settled in San Francisco in 1965 and moved a year later to their home at 814 Butternut Drive, San Rafael.

Her husband, now a civilian employee of the Army, is technical director of the Computer Systems Command Support Group at the Presidio of San Francisco.

She is also survived by a daughter, Nancy Allen of Gallatin, Tenn.; two sons, Jack M. Clark Jr., stationed at Hickham Air Force Base in Hawaii, and William James Clark, serving with the Second Infantry Division in Korea, and by her parents, Christian and Sara Ter Maat of Hingham, Wisconsin.

EMMA LOESER

Emma C. Loeser of San Rafael, an eight-year resident of San Rafael, died Wednesday at a local hospital after a short illness. She was 80.

A resident of 14 Scenic Road, Miss Loeser is survived by two sisters, Mary Loeser and Johanna Rhoades.

Private funeral will be held tomorrow in San Rafael. Burial will be at Rockville Cemetery. Contributions to the Trinity Lutheran Church, San Rafael, are preferred by the family.

ALEXANDER GEMMELL

Alexander D. Gemmell, a 17-year San Rafael resident, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness. He was 57.

He was born in Oakland and lived there until coming to Marin. He served in the Pacific with the Marine Corps in World War II.

Gemmell was employed by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. in San Francisco.

Survivors include his wife, Dolores, a daughter, Susan Shirley of Illinois, a son, Ronald D. Gemmell of San Rafael; two brothers, Joseph Gemmell of Oceanside and Ronald H. Gemmell of Arlington, Va., and three grandchildren.

Funeral will be Friday at 1 p.m. at the Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

LITTLE ONES HAVE TROUBLES

Melissa Ernst, 20 months old, expresses unhappiness over the plight of her pal from next door in Goshen, Ohio. The horse, claimed by its owners Mr. and Mrs. Dale Corman to be the world's smallest, has developed an allergy to people. A veterinarian has ordered it confined to an air-conditioned van. The tiny pony, 13½ inches high when born May 17, has attracted too many sightseers.

Annexation Of Tract Is Supported

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission Wednesday approved a proposal that the Country Club tract off San Pedro Road be annexed to the city of San Rafael.

The vote was 3-to-0 with commissioners Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., Roy Farrington Jones and Anold M. Baptiste approving annexation. Commission Lawrence Mulryan was absent and Jan van Dyk abstained because he had not heard arguments during a public hearing last month.

The Country Club tract, named for a golf club which once occupied the property, includes 800 people living in 260 residential units, many of them large, expensive homes.

The total assessed valuation of the land and improvements is $4 million, according to Tracy Friedman, assistant executive officer to the commission. (This would give the property a market value of approximately $16 million).

The annexation was requested by some residents who said the area needs city services, especially fire protection. Not all the residents, however, have seemed to favor the annexation.

The matter next will go to the San Rafael City Council, and ultimately to an election by the area's 500 registered voters.

The annexation could be killed immediately, however, if written protests are received from property owners representing 50 per cent of the area's assessed valuation.

U.S. Crime Panel Urges Banning Handguns By '83

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans maintain a national arsenal of some 30 million privately-owned handguns, and these should be outlawed by 1983, a federal advisory commission recommended today.

A report entitled "A National Strategy to Reduce Crime" said, "Americans are accumulating handguns at a rate estimated at 1.8 million weapons a year. The national arsenal of privately owned handguns is estimated to be as high as 30 millions."

The National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, which issued the 318-page report, recommended that existing federal, state and local laws relating to handguns be strenuously enforced. It further recommended that states undertake publicty campaign to educate the public fully about laws regulating the private possession of handguns.

On the subject of drugs, the report recommended that education begin in the home before the child enters school, and school teachers should receive special training in drug education and prevention.

The commission was created by the Justice Department in 1971 under a $1.75 million grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. It was charged with developing a blueprint for crime reduction programs for state and local governments and private citizens.

The commission said the 1968 Federal Gun Control Act encourages states to enact their own legislation to control firearms, but that Congress and the states have been slow to act in this area.

It urged enactment of state legislation providing a prison term of up to 25 years for committing a felony while in possession of a handgun.

The commission cited statistics showing that during 1971 approximately 9,000 persons in the United States, including 94 police officers, were murdered with handguns.

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, commenting on the report, said, "The federal government is neither endorsing nor opposing the hundreds of specific standards and goals contained in this report, though we naturally agree with its overall objectives."

Among those serving on the 22-member commission were Philadelphia District Attorney Arlen Spector; Rev. Leon Sullivan, a Philadelphia civil rights leader; Edward M. Davis, Los Angeles police chief; Judge Joe Frazier Brown, executive director of the Texas Criminal Justice Council; Washington Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson; William R. Reed of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, and Judge Peter J. Mcquillan of the New York Criminal Court.

Bomb Blast Hits Italian Prison

ROME (UPI) — A bomb exploded early today at the main entrance of Queen of Heaven prison where rioting prisoners battled guards with rocks, clubs and fire hoses for 24 hours late last month.

Police said the bomb, which contained a small amount of TNT, destroyed the wood and bronze door but there was no attempt to enter the prison. No one was injured.

Police said there was no indication of the motive for the attack, but they theorized it might have been in protest of disciplinary action against the prisoners who rioted July 27.

Plea Denied

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Judge Humberto Batista did not believe Amadeu Pinto's plea of self defense and sentenced him to three months in jail. Pinto told the judge he had acted in self defense when he beat up Alice de Castro. Pinto is 23. The woman is 76.

KTIM Broadcaster, Friend Terrorized

A part-time disc jockey for KTIM-FM in San Rafael and a companion suffered a half hour of terror Wednesday at the hands of two gunmen who forced their way into the broadcaster's Tamalpais Valley home, sheriff's deputies reported.

John F. Larosa, 30, told police he was awakened by a knock on the door at about 3 a.m. Two men standing outside asked if he was John and, when Larosa answered yes, they demanded he give them "the stuff."

When Larosa asked what stuff they meant, deputies reported, one of the men pulled a silver revolver from his waistband and cracked Larosa in the head with the gun.

The men then forced their way into the house and threatened to kill Larosa and Joann Dunbar, 42, deputies said.

Police reported that Larosa, who broadcasts on station KTIM under the name of Jonathan, was knocked around and generally terrorized for 30 minutes before one of the attackers suggested to his accomplice that they had better leave.

On the way out, police said, the gunman fired a shot into the house but the bullet missed Larosa and Miss Dunbar. Larosa, who also works as a real estate salesman, drove to Marin General Hospital to be treated for bruises, then called sheriff's deputies, officers reported. Miss Dunbar was not harmed.

Larosa described the men as in their early 30s, and told investigators he had never seen them before they appeared at his door.

Public Tenants Union Gets Official Status

The Marin County Housing Authority Commission has recognized the Marin County Public Housing Tenants Union as official representative for those in public housing throughout the county.

The action came Tuesday after the union, which has been inactive for the past several years, reported that it now has 107 active members from all the authority's housing projects and from leased housing.

The vote was 3-1, with Commissioner Rogers Jones dissenting and Philip S. Ehrlich Jr. and Harold A. Strouss absent, according to Wallace K. Shepherd, authority executive director.

The move to recognize the old tenants union was a blow to a new Marin-city based group which had hoped to represent tenants. The Marin City Tenants Association, formed last month, had not yet made a bid for official recognition by the authority but had indicated its intent to do so.

The group already has brought a class action suit, charging the authority with illegal eviction procedures which has resulted in an injunction preventing the authority from evicting tenants until the legal questions are resolved.

Shepherd said the authority board decided to recognize the tenants union "because it is broadly based and represents all tenants."

He said the Marin City group is not representative and that five of its 11-member board of directors do not live in public housing.

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, chairman of the union, said the group has been designated a nonprofit corporation by the state and is now seeking to join the national tenants organization.

In other business, the commission decided that tenants need not be moved during the remodeling of 150 Marin City public housing units.

Shepherd said persons living in units to be renovated can remain in them during the remodeling or move to other units which have already been completed.

He said the modernization will begin immediately.

The board also agreed to send a member of the tenants union and Susan Wiley, the authority's community services coordinator, to the National Tenants Organization conference in Chicago Aug. 30-Sept. 1.

Gasoline Stations Still Daytime-Only Creatures

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Little change was noted this week in the California State Automobile Association's weekly forecast of gasoline availability in California and Nevada.

The report, covering the period through Aug. 16, cites near-normal gasoline supplies for daytime drivers in most areas by continues to warn travelers who must travel at night or on Sundays.

The report repeated the familiar advice to keep tanks at least half full and fill up whenever possible.

Supplies in metropolitan San Francisco are near normal but warnings were still issued for suburban areas where substantial night and Sunday closings are reported.

Interstate 5 and Highway 99 continue to have good daytime supplies but few stations are reported open at night, especially north of Sacramento.

Eastbound traffic on Interstate 80 and Highway 50 should have no problems during daylight but few stations are open at night in the Sacramento area.

State To Repair Island Garrison

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The state probably will begin about $200,000 in repairs to the historic West Garrison on Angel Island within the next few months, according to Robert B. Hatch, superintendent of District Two of the state parks system.

Hatch said that the money recently was appropriated by the California Legislature and will pay for reroofing and weatherproofing the buildings.

The repairs will keep the buildings from deteriorating further while state park officials debate whether they want to completely restore the garrison to turn it into an historical museum complex.

"There's a philosophical argument going on right now in the department about whether we want to go into total reconstruction," said Hatch. "It would be extremely costly, as any construction is on the island."

The West Garrison, built in the late 1800s, includes a military warehouse, officers' and a general's quarters, mule barns, an old schoolhouse and an early torpedo station.

Hatch said that the heyday of the complex was during the Spanish-American War when many soldiers were stationed at the garrison before shipping out to battlegrounds.

Hatch said that instead of totally restoring the complex he has recommended refurbishing the hospital on the main approach to the West Garrison where visitors could view a scale model of the garrison before wandering into it.

The state might also put stock in the mule barns and pipe in music, Hatch said.

"With our previous track record on restoration, it's unlikely that we'd start any other major projects in the garrison in the near future," said Hatch. "There's just too much competition right now from environmental concerns for our money."

One reason the buildings are deteriorating is that the state cannot keep visitors to the island from going through them.

"We've cabled the buildings off, put signs on them and nailed boards over the door, and people keep pulling the boards off. We just can't keep them out."

The garrison which faces the Golden Gate Bridge is not the only part of the island undergoing change. At the North Garrison, a more recently built complex on Winslow Cove, an Army Reserve unit is tearing down World War II buildings to make way for a public beach and picnic area.

Hours Change

Forest Knolls Branch of the Marin County Library will be open Tuesdays from 6 to 9 p.m., instead of 2 to 5 p.m. starting Aug. 21. The Thursday schedule will remain 2 to 5 p.m., according to Bruce D. Bajema, county librarian.

Signups Slated For New Drake Students

Students new to Sir Francis Drake High School who were not registered last spring, should register from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Aug. 27 or 28 at the school in San Anselmo.

School will begin with an orientation program for all new students from 8:30 a.m. to 12:35 p.m., Sept. 11 and distribution of program cards for students already registered from 1 to 4 p.m., according to Edward Neumeier, district information officer.

TWO VIEWS OF CAMBODIA AS END OF BOMBING NEARS

U.S. Experiment Collapses; Who Will Be The Winners?

By JOSEPH C. HARSCH

An experiment in American foreign policy seems to be drawing to a less than successful close in Cambodia — but the results may be manageable.

The American operating assumption has been that Cambodia must be in friendly, or at least neutral hands if a non-Communist South Vietnam is to survive. But right now the local Communist-supported forces of the Khmer Rouge are closing in all around Phnom Penh, almost without effort. The will of the Cambodians themselves to keep out of Communist hands is singularly lacking, or ineffective. Only American bombs seem to be staving off the collapse of the Lon Nol regime. And those bombs must stop by edict of the United States Congress, on Aug. 15.

That arbitrary cut-off date is a bitter disappointment to the Nixon administration which had counted on a Cambodian bombing deadline of not earlier than Sept. 1.

IN THEORY, Henry Kissinger was going to work out by Sept. 1 various arrangements under which Prince Norodom Sihanouk would return to Phnom Penh, would preside over a coalition and neutralist government, and would be able to give some protection to the endangered delta flank of the Saigon government.

Dr. Kissinger does have some residual bargaining power with Hanoi. Only Washington can provide the kind of economic aid which could revive the economy of North Vietnam. And it has something else more important in the long run working for its purpose. The Chinese government in Peking is no more anxious to see Hanoi become the master of all of Indochina than is Washington.

THE REAL QUESTION about Indochina ever since World War II has been whether it would be a united and strong entity. That was the dream of Vietnamese communist leader Ho Chi Minh and continues to be the dream goal of his successors in Hanoi.

But a united Indochina could play as important a role in southeast Asia as Tito's Yugoslavia has played in Communist Europe. It would be economically strong and could be politically and militarily important.

It was fear of precisely this which drew the United States into 20 years of entanglement in the jungles of Indochina. At the outset Washington was determined not to allow Indochina to become an outpost in southeast Asia of a monolithic Communist bloc.

But patterns in the Communist world have shifted and now the questions are: Who would control a united Indochina if it ever did come into being? Would it be Russia or China? Would it play the same kind of independently roving role which Marshal Tito has played so skillfully in Europe?

The last thing in the world Peking would want would be the Russians combined with a strong and united Indochina. Perhaps their ideal would be an Indochina in their own pocket. But could they count on being accepted in Hanoi as number one big brother? Small countires almost always want a remote protector against the big neighbor.

FROM THE CHINESE point of view a fragmented Indochina is the safest solution, Chinese diplomacy has always sought just that kind of protection for China's frontiers. It loves friendly but weak neighbors. So Peking is Dr. Kissinger's natural ally in trying to save an independent South Vietnam and prevent Hanoi from getitng control of Cambodia. But would they really be able to control a government which was largely dominated by the successful local Communist forces?

We all know by now, or should, that communism has never successfully resisted nationalism. In theory, all Communists live in harmonious brotherhood. In practice the two bitterest enemies in the world today are the Russian and Chinese Communists. There is no certainty that a local Communist victory in Cambodia will in fact mean Cambodia coming under Hanoi's control. It just might work the other way. We are, it seems going to have a chance to find out — very soon.

Smell Of Corruption Hangs Over Stricken Land

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — The poison of corruption that is like a moral smog in the atmosphere of this capital hangs heavy over the tragedy of Cambodia. However much the decision-makers may be singed by the failures of a policy doomed to failure from the start, the real victims are the peasants who once lived a comfortable life in what was a green oasis.

For all the B-52 sorties, the economic aid, the masterminding of the bombing attacks by American specialists, the Lon Nol government could not be propped up with sufficient muscle to negotiate even if the Communist Khmer Rouge had been interested in negotiating. The end is near, and it will be a bitter defeat for American policy, with so much suffering inflicted on helpless people.

The Congress adjourned with a resolution showing deep dutrust of President Nixon's intentions. While the Constitution gives the President authority to call Congress back into session, the resolution provides that congressional leaders may bring about a recall. Not unprecedented, such a resolution is nevertheless rare.

A STRONG SUSPICION that the President intended to continue the bombing after the Aug. 15 deadline was the reason for the resolution. The compromise pried out of the White House for a cutoff by mid-August was hardly a triumph of statesmanship. Congressional leaders were convinced the President would veto an immediate halt as he threatened to do.

A potent advocate of the resolution was majority leader Mike Mansfield, who has had a long, continuing relationship with Cambodia and the deposed ruler, Prince Norodom Sihanouk. Mansfield is going to China during the recess, hoping to see Sihanouk in Peking. The prince believes he will be restored to power by the Khmer Rouge when Phnom Penh falls and the fighting ends.

In the embittered controversy over the secret bombing, Sihanouk had an ambivalent role. Documents are in existence showing he knew of the bombing and made no protest so long as it was confined to the areas in Cambodia where the North Vietnamese had sanctuaries from which to attack South Vietnam. When Mansfield saw Sihanouk in 1969 the prince gave him a hint of his attitude.

The majority leader also expects to renew his relationship with China's Premier Chou En-lai. With the encouragement of Henry A. Kissinger, the President's adviser on national security, Mansfield will be the first member of Congress to go to China on his own and not as a member of a bipartisan group. Aware of the strains that Watergate and the President's other troubles have put on relations with the People's Republic, he believes he can contribute to a sense of continuity so essential to Peking.

Among far-out types Mansfield is considered a laughable figure. Certainly he is not in the arm-twisting, head-knocking tradition of Lyndon Johnson, who ruled the Senate like Little Caesar. But he has been deeply angered by what has happened in Cambodia, and beware the anger of a compassionate man!

WHAT IS HARD to understand is how the administration walked into the Cambodian trap. The argument is that if it were not for the Aug. 15 deadline Sihanouk, with China's backing, would have been ready to negotiate a peace settlement with Lon Nol. But would the Khmer Rouge and their North Vietnamese advisers been willing to go along with this? No one will ever know the answer to that question.

Almost without exception, news correspondents have given a picture of negligent, incompetent leadership in Phnom Penh; military commanders without ability or capacity to inspire their men to fight; the rich ignoring all responsibility and now in these last days sending their money out of the country. Latest news stories tell of the frantic struggle for scarce places on planes still flying out of the capital. The mass of the people, perhaps up to half — refugees suffering from hunger, disease and the threat of annihilation from American bombs — will endure as best they can the final collapse.

Melvin R. Laird, looking blandly innocent on television, can say that, yes, he and the President ordered the secret bombing in 1969. But he had nothing to do with falsifying the records, which was merely Pentagon bookkeeping. Where the blame lies must seem scarcely to matter, with so much obscured by the fog of suspicion and distrust.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Rationality Vanishes In 'Security' Spending

It started out as a little matter of some $30,000. That is how much the General Accounting Office reported, in response to an inquiry last spring, had been spent from public funds on President Nixon's San Clemente home.

This week, the figure has grown to about $10 million — at San Clemente, Key Biscayne, and on Grand Cay in the Bahamas, a home where the President is often a guest but which is owned by his friend, Robert Abplanalp.

THIS INVESTMENT of public money on private property has been principally in the name of security — to protect the President and his family. It has included such things as fences, walls, and bullet-proof glass. But it also has included such things as landscaping, swimming pools, and entire houses.

Most of the $10 million worth of improvements (some of which might be doubtful improvements from the standpoint of a private owner) were done at request of the Secret Service, according to Arthur Sampson of GSA. The Secret Service is charged with protecting the President.

Protection for the President certainly is not to be dismissed as unnecessary — not since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and of his brother Robert, who was only a candidate for President.

It would seem, however, that "security" has taken some strange shapes in the improvements to the President's estates. Perhaps the Secret Service got carried away.

THAT IS NOT too hard to understand. We had a demonstration right here in Marin County of how the need for security can lead from one thing to another.

After the shoot-out at the Marin County Civic Center in August, 1970, in which Judge Harold J. Haley was killed, there was immediate demand for greater security measures. The need was all too obvious.

The board of supervisors started out by buying $28,266 worth of metal detectors and walkie-talkies, and beefing up the force of sheriff's deputies on Civic Center guard duty.

But within a few months, $4,720 more of metal detectors were purchased. Then two fences were built, at cost of about $10,000. Then grillwork was installed on the Civic Center balcony, for another $35,000. More sheriff's officers were hired. Bullet-proof glass was installed in courtrooms.

Within a year, $400,000 of the taxpayers' money had been spent on security measures at the Civic Center.

THE FACT IS that in recent years there have been great fears for both public and private security — and not without reason.

But when such fears become the excuse for spending $10 million of public money on improvements to private property, rationality has vanished somewhere along the line — even if the property is that of the President of the United States.

After all, the President does not require estates (safe or unsafe) in both California and Florida and a hideaway in the Bahamas.

"Happy days are here again!"

Lower Rates Would Attract Youth To Golf

As an avid golfer, having played all courses mentioned in Mr. Lent's article, I can appreciate what the courses are doing to "plant the seeds of golfing desire" in the county's youth.

I have a 15-year-old son who went through the free instructions at San Geronimo a few years ago as well as having private lessons from a local pro. To this extent, I feel the courses are doing a great job to acquaint young people with the game of golf. However, I feel the courses really fall down on the job when these same youngsters wish to continue playing at the mentioned courses at a price they can afford.

To my knowledge, only the Mill Valley course presents an opportunity for young people to play the course at an attractive rate of 50 cents each Monday (except holidays) up to noon. All other Marin County courses charge young players the same weekday rates as adults playing the course. . .

As a suggestion, Youth Days can possibly be set up at the various Marin courses during the summer months. In effect, lower rates for juniors will be set for only one weekday at each of the various courses. I recognize the courses require income at fees that enable them to meet expenses. However, by attracting many young people for one day at lower rates, the revenues generated will probably be more than the usual play at regular fees. Also, how about the additional revenues to snack bars for cokes, hot dogs, candy bars, etc. that will result from heavier play.

As indicated, the courses are doing a great job to get the youth of Marin County interested in golf. Now let them present opportunities to enable them to take advantage of the instructions and grow with the game.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

A worker has more leisure time than ever before but his boss is putting in longer hours than ever.

In recent years the average employe has gained the equivalent of 19 days off a year due to holidays, longer vacations and shorter work days. But bosses continue to labor longer at doing less work.

Executives are reluctant to take a day off. Somebody might discover that nobody misses 'em.

A shopper seeking assistance in a department store approached a gent who was standing around looking official. "Do you work here?" she asked. "No," the fellow replied. "I'm an executive."

Fifty Million Frenchmen Entitled To See Their Bomb

WASHINGTON — "There has been a lot of misinformation in the press as to why New Zealand has raised such strong objections to the French holding their atomic tests in the Pacific," Anthony Cubert-Jones, a New Zealander, told me. "We are not against France having an atomic bomb. As a matter of fact, we welcome it. The French deserve a bomb. They've earned it."

"Then what is your objection?" I asked.

"We feel that by holding their tests in the Pacific, the French are cheating their own citizens."

"I don't understnand."

"THE FRENCH TAXPAYER has paid a billion dollars to have his government develop an atomic bomb. But he has been unable to see what he's getting for his money. All he can do is read in the newspapers that France has set off a bomb in the atoll of Mururoa. He has to take the French government's word that the explosion was a success. We New Zealanders feel this is very unfair to French citizens who have paid for it but get none of the joy of actually seeing an atomic bomb go off."

"But what's the solution?"

"I think the French should hold their atomic tests in France so everyone can see them."

"Are you suggesting the next atomic explosion take place over Paris?"

"Now you're being ridiculous. You know it's infeasible to hold atomic blasts in a large city. What I have in mind is that the experiments take place in either Burgundy or Bordeaux. The French could clear away 20 or 30 miles of vineyards, build a testing complex and send up the bomb in a balloon to explode over the countryside. The mushroom cloud would be visible for hundreds of miles and could be witnessed by millions of Frenchmen. Can you imagine how proud the French would be to see their own bomb, made in France by Frenchmen, floating over the Eiffel Tower?"

"WOULDN'T THERE be some health hazards?" I asked.

"The French have assured us that there is no danger from their experiments on the Mururoa atoll so I'm sure the same would be true if they blasted away in France."

"I wonder why the French never thought of it?"

"I suppose they thought those of us who live in the Pacific should get the benefit of their bomb. Perhaps they believed it would help tourism in Tahiti. I can't speak for their thinking, but if I were a Frenchman, I'd be damned mad that I didn't get the fallout from a bomb I paid for with my hard-earned francs."

"Why do you think Pompidou insisted the explosion take place in Micronesia instead of Burgundy or Bordeaux?"

"This is only conjecture on my part, but I suspect he was afraid the thing wouldn't go off. It would have been very embarrassing if he told everyone in France he was going to explode his bomb in Burgundy, and the thing pfffft. Can you imagine the disappointment of the vine growers in the area?"

"IS IT TOO LATE to persuade the French to move their future tests to France?"

"All of us in the Pacific hope not. As a matter of fact, Australia, New Zealand and Japan have offered to pay for shipping everything back to France, including all the technicians and military personnel. We would hate to see them go, but it is our belief that the French will never believe they have a sufficient deterrent unless they can see it explode with their own eyes."

"Then New Zealanders and Australians harbor no bitterness toward the French?"

"Of course not. Have you ever met a Frenchman you didn't like?"

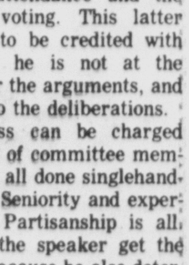
Packing Of Committees Erodes System's Integrity



By EARL G. WATERS

There is no constitutional provision for the system. It need not exist. But the theory is that it permits far more searching review of proposed law changes than would be possible if all measures were simply dumped into one big hopper and voted upon by the full body without screening.

For the system to work well, the members should be persons with expertise in the field assigned, or possessed with a keen interest which motivates them to more than average knowledge of the subjects.

In Congress, where seniority rules, committeemen presumably gain proficiency by length of service and the chairmen are the most senior.

IN ANY EVENT, the system cannot work unless the committeemen work at it. They must not only familiarize themselves with the proposals and their ramifications; they must attend meetings, listen to the arguments, and participate in the deliberations.

On the premise that this is done, the rest of the members place great reliance upon committee actions and recommendations. They expect the committees to table unnecessary proposals and refer for further study those which fail to provide satisfactory solutions. They also expect the committees to submit to the full body proposals warranting the consideration of all the members.

The committee system has been zealously protected by the members over the years. They resist motions to withdraw bills from committee. Such motions are viewed as bypassing committees and a frontal attack upon the system. Occasionally, in the Assembly, bills are withdrawn by the membership, but the Senate honors an unwritten rule against it.

But the strength of the committee system in the Assembly has been suffering from lack of attendance and the practice of proxy voting. This latter permits a member to be credited with voting even though he is not at the meeting, doesn't hear the arguments, and contributes nothing to the deliberations.

This inattentiveness can be charged partly to the method of committee member selection. This is all done singlehandedly by the speaker. Seniority and expertise are incidental. Partisanship is all. Those who support the speaker get the favored spots. And because he also determines what bills go to what committee, he often dictates the fate of legislation beforehand.

NOT SATISFIED with this vast power to rig committees with those with whom he has predetermined understandings on various issues before the Legislature, Speaker Bob Moretti has invented a new wrinkle. Finding things not going exactly the way he planned, he has taken to enlarging committee memberships. Thus, by adding new members to a committee, he can load the dice to produce his desired result.

Moretti recently chose this means of springing loose various gambling measures bottled up by a 3-to-2 vote in the Constitutional Amendments Committee. The speaker has added two more members with the expectation the vote will now be 4-to-3 in favor of the bills.

The American people are repulsed by those who want to change the rules in the middle of the game. President Roosevelt found this out when he attempted to pack the Supreme Court. Such actions negate any reason for rules and wipe out the structural fiber of the system.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

AUG. 9, 1963

The infant son of President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy died of a lung disease less than three days after birth.

Rep. Donald H. Clausen, R-First District, announced the Navy would move out of the Tiburon Naval Net Depot and it would be taken over by the Interior Department for west coast oceanographic headquarters.

20 YEARS AGO

Aug. 9, 1953

Jane Russell and Marilyn Monroe in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" topped the film bill at the Tamalpais Theater in San Anselmo.

A petition backing a site near the Corte Madera Wye for the Marin County Fairgrounds was ready for presentation to the county board of supervisors.

COUNTRY PARSON

"The man who has everything he wants has learned to do without some things."

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Who shoots at the mid-day sun, though he be sure he shall never hit the mark; yet sure he is, he shall shoot higher than he who aims at a bush. — Philip Sidney.

But he would never believe that Providence had sent a few men into the world, ready booted and spurred to ride, and millions ready saddled and bridled to be ridden. — Richard Rumbold.

Panel Again Rejects Plan Of Taco Bell

A planned Taco Bell restaurant at Novato Square should be redesigned, the Novato Plan Review Committee insists.

Committee members, who had rejected the standard mission-type Taco Bell building at a previous meeting, reconsidered the matter at the request of the Novato City Council.

The committee suggested a building that would be in harmany with other buildings in Novato Square and the nearby Civic Center, Planning Director Brian W. Mattson reported.

Ben Ostlind of San Rafael, owner of the parcel, has appealed rejection of architectural plans to the city council.

The Novato Plan Review Committee also:

ELM COURT — Approved revised architectural and landscape plans for a 14-unit apartment project at the end of Elm Court, adjoining Novato Creek, submitted by Frank Fonseca.

OFFICE BUILDING — Approved revised landscape plans for the Hoytt Enterprises office building on Novato Boulevard.

Growers Deny A Bread Shortage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The wheat growers Wednesday took issue with a warning by the baking industry that Americans will run out of bread unless the administration limits wheat exports.

On Tuesday, Richard W. Daspit, president of the American Bakers Association, wired President Nixon that unless he protects U.S. wheat reserves by limiting exports, "bread will disappear across most of the United States by next June."

One Wednesday, Ray Davis, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, wired President Nixon that growers are harvesting a record wheat crop and that the next harvest could easily be 10 per cent bigger.

Governor's Mansion Site Bill To Floor

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill requiring the proposed governor's mansion to be built in downtown Sacramento instead of the suburban Carmichael site chosen by Gov. Ronald Reagan has advanced to the Assembly floor.

The bill (AB1241) by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, cleared the Ways and Means Committee Wednesday on a minimum 11-7 vote which generally split along party lines.

Package For Elderly Care Reaches Senate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly-passed package to upgrade health care for elderly Medi-Cal patients and give nursing homes a $40 million rate increase has advanced in the Senate.

The Health and Welfare Committee Wednesday approved the three bills carried by Assemblyman Leo McCarthy, D-San Francisco on a series of 7-0 votes and forwarded them to the Finance Committee. The Reagan administration opposed two of the bills.

The package was developed by the special Joint Committee on Aging which held hearings earlier into charges that aged Medi-Cal recipients failed to receive proper care at some nursing homes.

The lone bill (AB1601) supported by the administration was designed to prohibit kickbacks from nursing homes to persons or agencies who refer patients to them.

Under the biggest measure (AB1602), nursing homes reimbursed by Medi-Cal would be allowed to increase their rates from $16.97 a day per patient to $18.01 —for an overall first-year increase of about $40 million in state and federal funds.

The nursing home industry has contended current fee limits were too low to provide the type of care required by the state. As a consequence, some nursing homes have refused to accept Medi-Cal patients.

The administration opposed the measure on the basis of cost impact.

Another bill (AB1600) would establish civil fines of up to $5,000 for state-licensed nursing home and extended care facilities treating Medi-Cal patients which violated two proposed new health protection regulations.

A new "Class A" violation would present an "imminent danger" to patients or guests resulting in a "substantial probability of death or physical harm." A "Class D" violation would be one that has a "direct or immediate" relationship to the patients' health, safety or security.

The state Health Department would define what constituted the proposed new violations and administer the revision.

SACRAMENTO SUMMARY

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Governor

Agri — Told 1,400 4-H leaders from northern and central California at a conference in Davis that the state's farming industry should not be blamed for high prices.

Seed Saving

TRACY, Calif. (UPI) — Sugar beet growers now use 1½ to 2½ pounds of seed an acre, compared with 20 pounds in former years. Agronomist Alex Lang says seeds have been improved to assure germination and to resist plant diseases.

Worse Mail Service Is Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Letter Carrier's Union local president predicts that postal service in the San Francisco Bay Area will get worse within a year.

Speaking Wednesday at a congressional hearing, president Donald Hackett said employe morale was at an all-time low because of "slave driver" working conditions imposed by the U.S. Postal Service.

"There has been an appalling deterioration of service," said Hackett, who represents 17,600 postmen in the area.

(In San Rafael, however, Asst. Postmaster Edgar Fisher said that postal service in Marin and Southern Sonoma is in "very good shape" with better than 95 per cent of the mail receiving overnight delivery in the Bay Area.

(He said that since mail from Marin and Southern Sonoma is no longer sent to San Francisco for sorting the service is "greatly improved" and he foresaw no deterioration.)

Norm Reith, a Bank of America assistant vice president, complained that mail between San Francisco and Sacramento takes from two to four days.

Guido Alasia, district manager for the service, held that the area's service in this area "is the best and most efficient in Post Office history."

Faculty Clubs Bar Bill Gains

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation greatly easing the requirements for campus faculty clubs at the University of California to obtain liquor licenses was unanimously approved Wednesday by the Senate.

Under the bill by Sen. Robert Stevens, R-Los Angeles, faculty clubs would be eligible to apply for a license if they had been in existence for five years and had a membership of 300. Currently, they must have been established for 35 years and have 750 members.

The bill (SB1192) which would affect faculty clubs at UCLA and UC campuses at Santa Barbara, Irvine and Riverside, went to the Assembly In a 28-0 vote.

Sculpture Planned With POW Bracelets

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — More than 6,000 prisoner of war bracelets will be melted down and molded into a memorial to Vietnam war POWs next week at the Spokane Steel Foundry.

John Penold, foundry owner, said Wednesday he received the pattern for the mold this week from sculptor Harold Balasz. The bracelets were collected by Mrs. Ellen Ewing of Spokane.

New England Death Penalty Bill Gains

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts House gave initial approval Wednesday to legislation that would make the death penalty mandatory for persons found guilty of first degree murder.

The bill was approved on a 130-89 roll call vote after an hour of debate.

State Revokes Garage License

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The five-month-old Bureau of Automotive Repair has revoked its first license which authorizes garages to certify car antipollution devices.

After an administrative hearing, the Arco Service station owned by Donald F. McMullen in Pittsburg was found to have falsely certified a car's pollution control equipment, the bureau said Wednesday.

Its license as a motor vehicle pollution control device installation and inspection station was subsequently revoked, effective July 22, the bureau said.

STORY OF KILLING — Seventeen-year-old Elmer Wayne Henley told reporters early today how he shot and killed Dean Corll, 33, at the man's suburban Houston home to keep himself from being sexually molested, slaughtered, and dumped in a makeshift grave. He led police to a shed where they dug up eight bodies, reportedly victims of Corll.

Richardson Acts To Aid Office Image

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson said Wednesday he has ordered Justice Department employees to report any conversations about department matters with outsiders, including congressmen.

"Only news media representatives are excluded" from the requirement, he said, outlining his policy of clearing the department of public suspicion that it was politically influenced.

In a major speech to the Assembly of the American Bar Association, Richardson said his first duty as a new attorney general "is to do what I can to eliminate the causes of distrust, having taken office in the midst of the darkening cloud of suspicion and distrust engendered by Watergate." He became attorney general May 25.

He had directed that no key position be headed by a person "who is perceived to be an active political partisan," and said he was considering establishing an inspector general's office in the department "to assure that those who have the public trust are consistently worthy of the trust."

Stating that one way to restore confidence in government following the Watergate scandal was to ensure freedom of the press, Richardson said he was initiating a government-wide study of the Freedom of Information Act for the guidance of both the executive branch and Congress.

Richardson said he was concerned about the department's relationship with the news media and about First Amendment guarantees, and was considering a set of guidelines to require his specific approval before a newsman can be questioned, served with a subpoena or made a defendant in any federal court proceeding.

He cited departmental guidelines issued in 1970 by then Attorney General John N. Mitchell which required the attorney general's approval before a subpoena can be issued to a representative of the news media.

Mill Valley Orders Slide Repaired

A contract for $146,363 to repair slide damage to Vista Linda Drive was awarded Wednesday night by the Mill Valley City Council. (Another Mill Valley City Council story, page 1.)

Maggiora and Ghilotti, a Corte Madera construction firm, was low bidder and received the contract for street repairs to begin immediately.

Residents of the area had warned the council that two homes might be lost if construction is delayed until after the rainy season starts.

The council also approved several agreements with property owners in the area to use their land during street repairs. Residents have been forced to drive on a fire trail to and from their homes.

Dr. Yen M. Jew, of 340 Vista Linda Drive, refused to sign an agreement allowing the city to use his property during the construction and his attorney, Richard A. Williams, became engaged with councilmen in angry verbal jousting over the agreement.

The council instructed City Atty. Leland H. Jordan to seek a court order for immediate possession of the Jew property for construction easement during the repair.

Williams told the council he would cooperate with the city in the matter but would not submit to an agreement which did not provide total replacement of his client's home should slippage occur during construction on the street.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

MILLER — Postponed until Aug. 15 action on the plans and call for bids on the Miller Avenue improvement project.

REQUEST — Approved a request by Douglas P. Ferguson that the city begin condemnation proceedings for a sewer line.

TENNIS — Issued a building permit to the Scott Valley Swimming and Tennis Club.

RESOLUTIONS — Approved resolutions for stop signs at Azalea Drive and Aster Court and at Azalea Drive and Hollyhock Court.

MEETING — Adjourned to its next meeting Aug. 15 when it will meet in closed session at 8 p.m. in the city manager's office preceding a regular meeting at 9 p.m. in city hall.

Pressure On Agnew To Halt Probe?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Maryland contractor under investigation along with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew contacted a "close associate" of Agnew's this year to urge that the Vice President use his influence to stop the inquiry, the Washington Post reported today.

Quoting "informed sources," the newspaper identified the contractor as Lester Matz, a Baltimore County consulting engineer. It did not identify the "close associate."

The Post said Matz reportedly told the intermediary that the continuing federal inquiry was bound to affect Agnew and that it should be stopped. It said he did not, however, threaten to supply information about Agnew to federal investigators if the probe continued.

Agnew was asked during his news conference Wednesday whether "anyone either directly or indirectly threatened to drag you into this unless you helped to kill the Baltimore County investigation."

Agnew answered: "I am not going to respond to that question at this time because it is premature for me to make such judgements. If you say with a direct contact to me, I would say no. I don't want to make any assertions in a matter this sensitive that I am absolutely not sure are accurate, and I am not going to foreclose the possibility that such things may have happened. Neither am I going to assert at this moment that they did."

"Did anyone ask you to kill the investigation in Baltimore County?" Agnew was asked.

"No, no one asked me to do it," he replied.

Parcel Drivers Win Pay Boost

BURLINGAME (UPI) — Fifteen hundred United Parcel Service drivers in Northern and Central California have ratified a new 33-month contract.

The Western Conference of Teamsters announced Wednesday 24 locals approved the pact, which calls for 95 cents an hour in pay hikes during the nearly three years it will be in force.

The pay hikes include 35 cents retroactive to July 1 and 30 cents each on July 1, 1974, and July 1, 1975, plus an 8 to 11 cents cost-of-living clause pegged to federal inflation figures. The drivers also get an additional holiday, increased company pension contributions and improved health and insurance benefits.

Army Recruiting Plan In Touble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army has failed to reach its recruiting goals in all six months since the draft ended.

The Pentagon said Wednesday the Army filled only 76 per cent of its recruiting goal in July.

And 35 per cent of those who did enlist were black, almost three times the black proportion of the population.

Officials said the proportion of recruits with low intelligence scores rose to 31 per cent last month, the highest figure in the four years for which records were immediatly available. This is almost double the Army's goal of taking no more than 18 per cent of low scorers in tests.

Rusk Is Good After Surgery

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UPI) — A Mayo Clinic spokesman said Wednesday former Secretary of State Dean Rusk was in satisfactory post-operative condition at Rochester Methodist Hospital.

Mayo Clinic surgeons performed vascular surgery on Rusk Wednesday for the excision of a moderately sized abdominal aortic aneurysm.

The spokesman said the operation was a normal one and there were no complications. He said Rusk, now a professor at the University of Georgia, probably will be hospitalized for 10 days to two weeks.

Bodies Unearthed In Grisly Murder Case

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jail trustees gouging through three lime soaked graves Wednesday night unearthed the bodies of eight young men apparently the victim of a "perverted, sadistic clown" who sexually molested them and buried them in a boat shed during the last two years.

Police said they expected to find more bodies in the muggy boat shed today.

Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, led police to the scene Wednesday after he said he shot and killed Dean Corll, 33, at the man's suburban Pasadena, Tex., home to prevent him from sexually assaulting and killing him and two companions. Corll is suspected of the mass killings.

Henley said the four had a party and sniffed acrylics out of a bag.

"He woke us up and was tying us up and handcuffing us," Henley told reporters while sitting handcuffed in a patrol car near where the inmates were digging up the remains. "He said he was going to kill us all, but first he was going to have his fun.

"I talked to him and told him I would do the killing if he would let me up and let me go."

Henley said he was released and soon grabbed Corll's .22-caliber pistol and shot him. He called police and told them of Corll's alleged sexual attacks and burial ground.

"At first it was just this guy's word," Pasadena detective David Mullican said. "Then we started out and found eight bodies.

"A guy like this is a perverted, sadistic clown. Evidently he tried to cover up the activity by burying them. We're going to check into his Pasadena back yard too."

One of the bodies is believed to be that of a boy missing since 1971. He was 13 years old when he disappeared. A bicycle, matching the one owned by the missing boy, was found leaning against the boat shed, where drydocked boats were kept by owners who didn't plan to use them for several months.

Police believed the victims were murdered in Pasadena, on Houston's southeast side, and the bodies carried to the boat shed on the southwest side, a distance of 15 miles.

India's Economy 'Passing Phase'

NEW DELHI (UPI) —Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today broke her long silence on India's faltering economy and said, "it is a passing phase."

"There is no cause for panic," Mrs. Gandhi told a military rally. "We are going through a difficult period, but it is a passing phase.

"The country is in the midst of a big struggle and its future depends on our success in this struggle," Mrs. Gandhi said.

Douglas Planning A Trip Into China

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, who urged recognition of Red China more than 20 years ago, will visit Peking. Douglas planned to come here today from his home in Goose Prairie, 50 miles away, and then fly to Hong Kong.

Mrs. Douglas, who will accompany him, said they will enter the People's Republic of China shortly after their arrival at Hong Kong.

Murder Charge In Sex Scandal

MADRID (UPI) — Colin Levy, the London taxi driver who was involved in a British sex scandal, has been charged with trying to kill his wife.

A British embassy spokesman said Levy was charged Tuesday. He was arrested in mid-July after allegedly trying to run down his wife, Norma Levy, in a car.

His wife allegedly earlier had relations with a British government official who resigned after the matter was disclosed.

Women Gaining Jobs As Campus Officials

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women are making small but significant inroads into the administrative operations of state and land-grant universities.

The National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULC) says 864 women held major administrative positions at these institutions during the 1972-73 school year.

Cotati Park Panel Seeks More Power

A fight for greater independence was launched at the Cotati Parks and Recreation Commission meeting Wednesday night.

Commission Chairman Lee Gray said members will seek an ordinance amendment giving them more authority.

Currently the commission may spend no money nor undertake any project without first getting permission from the city council. Mrs. Gray said projects have been slowed unnecessarily by regulations in the ordinance which created the commission last year. "It seems we should be able to have a dead tree removed without going to the city council first," she said.

Councilman Annette Lombardi attended the commission meeting and said she would urge her fellow councilmen to make the needed ordinance changes.

The commission also agreed to renew its attempts to establish a swimming pool fund. The council previously rejected the idea, saying no donations should be gathered until plans have been made for a pool.

Mrs. Gray said the commission received a report that a 35 by 50 foot pool could be built for between $17,000 and $20,000 depending on how much labor is donated. It could be located in the 2.5-acre city park in the Holiday Park section.

Carrying Gas Perilous Practice

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California State Automobile Association has warned against the "very dangerous practice" of carrying extra gas in cars to avoid running out of fuel.

The association said gas carried other than in a car's fuel tank can expand and overflow, particularly in warm weather, creating fumes. As a result, a spark or lighted cigarette could cause an explosion.

Administration Decides On A Voluntary Oil Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration rejected today for the "foreseeable future" a mandatory allocation program for petroleum and petroleum products, choosing instead to try to make the present voluntary program more effective.

John A. Love, director of the White House Energy Policy Office, did release a draft of a mandatory allocation program for oil products and invited comments from interested parties concerning future consideration.

"We are not now planning to implement the mandatory program at any specific time in the foreseeable future," Love said. He said he believes the mandatory program has "significant flaws both philosophically and practically."

He added, "it runs the very great risk of reducing, not increasing, the available supply of fuels."

Love said however, "We are publishing this week in the Federal Register a draft mandatory allocation program for petroleum and petroleum products .... We are attempting to develop the best program in recognition that circumstances in future may require such a program."

Love also:

Predicted that winter supplies of home heating oil would be sufficient to avoid serious shortages next winter unless there is severely cold weather.

Praised the petroleum industry's performance in stepping up gasoline production to avert severe, nationwide shortages this summer.

Said both federal and state environmental regulations might be adjusted to allow increased use of coal and more readily available oil with high sulfur content as means of alleviating shortages.

Noted supplies of propane, used particularly for drying of some farm products and for rural and mobile home heating, are short and this presents a particularly difficult problem.

Love said he had given careful study to the current voluntary fuel allocation program. "I do not believe it has solved all of our problems," he said. "But I am impressed by the fact that it has done significant good and has generally met the needs of the American people."

The voluntary program adopted May 10 has shortcomings, Love said, but said he was not convinced they could be "corrected by adopting a mandatory fuel allocation system." He expressed hope that with revisions in the voluntary system, "we will have greater success."

Love said the administration was "extremely wary of the ramifications and potential risks of a mandatory petroleum allocation system." The former Colorado governor said it was not felt that "the current supply situation or other industry problems warrant use of such a system as a remedy at this time."

There had been widespread reports that the administration was about to order a government allocation program. Love said a great number of options had been examined and the program now in existence "represents the most feasible and practical type which we have been able to develop to date."

Love acknowledged that the voluntary fuel allocation system has fallen short of solving all problems, but eaid he was impressed with the performance of the petroleum industry in stepping up output to unprecedented levels.

He said this summer's gasoline supply "has turned out to be more adequate than most imagined" last spring. "The industry had made a major and successful effort to meet our growing demands."

He also said the outlook for winter heating oil supplies was much brighter than previously anticipated.

"We are not now planning to implement the mandatory program at any specific time in the foreseeable future," he said.

Love said he believes a mandatory program has "significant flaws both philosophically and practically."

"It runs the very great risk of reducing, not increasing the available supply of fuels," he said.

Monument Valley, which straddles the boundary between Arizona and Utah, is reported by National Automobile Club to have been the setting for many Western movies.

IN THE OFFICE, New York City advertising agency research coordinator Irene Frey works in cool comfort with her navel showing. The naked look has moved from beaches and pools to streets and offices in many of the hotter cities this summer, according to a UPI poll. Miss Frey wears a brief top, hipster pants and open sandals to beat the heat.

JUST A COUPLE OF RENEGADES

Characters from the Marin Shakespeare Festival's production of "Alice in Wunderland" (from left) the Griffin, Ralph Steadman, and the Mock Turtle, Paul Ventura, stopped at the Marin YMCA Day Camp in San Rafael Wednesday to talk about themselves. The Griffin explained he is half eagle, half lion, while the Mock Turtle is a fake because he is half pilot. It's all explained when you see the show, they told Marin children yesterday at the YMCA and at their other stops at summer schools, parks and shopping centers.

The Naked Look Moving Into The Office In Hot Weather

By GAY PAULEY

The naked look has moved from the beaches and poolsides to the streets and in many parts of the country into offices.

Backs are bared with halters, tummies are bared with brief tops above short shorts, hipster pants or long skirts. And the traditional bra has gone into limbo for many.

One girl watcher informed me that in a block and one-half walk on New York's 42nd Street during lunch hour the other day he counted 12 belly buttons on display. That's outdoor airconditioning for you!

A UPI survey nationally indicates that this summer when the heat is on, the girls take it off, right down to the basics. And although most business offices report "relatively few" extremes in dress, all those young things hardly covered at all work somewhere.

At MS, the feminist magazine, liberation in dress puts most of the female staff in pants and T-shirts or halter dresses. "No bare midriffs, though," spokeswoman Karen Lippert said. "We have three men on our staff and they're not showing belly buttons either."

At traditionally more conservative companies, dresses and pantsuits are the style scene, although no formal policy against halters and the like exists.

Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, the big brokerage house which employs thousands of girls, said, "All we ask is that dress be in good taste for both female and male employes."

Ken McIlveen, of the personnel department at Metropolitan Life which employs nearly 10,000 women in the greater New York area alone, said, "We notice more informality this summer, but not as extreme as on the streets."

UPI'S WASHINGTON, D.C., bureau says, "The navel is very much in evidence this summer. Bare midriffs... halters (braless from all the evidence)... sheer materials sustain the interest of girl watchers. But the bareness appears pretty much confined to the tourists (especially the younger girls) and the local women on their off hours.

"At work, the Washington locals remain on the conservative side, particularly in government offices which seem to psychologically inhibit them without any express dress code."

St. Louis reported a generally conservative summer. A spokesman for General American Life Insurance said, "We do not think bare midriffs or halter tops are appropriate for the office." The company sent memorandums to supervisors asking employes not to wear such apparel because several already had from time to time.

The cities with generally warm climates year-round reported more of the microminis than any other fashion for office and street. And, at the beaches and pools, the tiniest of bikinis, in places such as San Diego and Miami.

Los Angeles reported backless dresses, short shorts and midriffs hitting the streets but largely staying out of offices. Pants, though, are office favorites.

ALBANY, N.Y., women aren't wearing the naked look at work. But a photographer who covered the Can-Am road race at Watkins Glen, N.Y., said, "There were a lot of girls in long pants there. They were long on bottoms... but awfully short on top. There were a lot of bare midriffs and halter tops. There must have been 40,000 girls there and three bras among them."

Pittsburgh reported the "belly button makes the scene big downtown, especially among the younger girls wearing anything from blue jeans to hot pants. Mostly they seem to be shoppers, students and downtown visitors."

In Kansas City, Mo., the halter seems the favorite among the younger women. As Rob Lubert, 20, a clerk at the Grain Exchange Jeans store put it, "Girls are wearing halters more because they have more sexual freedom."

In Louisville, a young attorney who didn't want his name used said he was a dedicated girl watcher and the whole trend "has been salutary...it's certainly calculated to inspire—it makes everyone smile and feel good."

Recently a girl employed in the Kentucky Department of Economic Security in Louisville was sent home for wearing a see-through blouse and no bra. Now, the employes are trying to put together a dress code to please everyone.

CHICAGO REPORTED skirt lengths going up as the temperatures rose. Bare midriffs are showing up at offices. The no-bra look is in.

Mel Banks, the personnel manager at Equitable Life Assurance which has more than 400 girls employed in Chicago, said that "as long as they are neat and presentable we don't care what they wear."

On Chicago's Michigan Avenue, the Uptown Federal Savings bank features a lemonade stand staffed with several well-endowed girls in halters and shorts. The UPI girl watcher there said the stand, which dispenses lemonade for two cents a glass, "has turned lemonade drinking into a spectator sport."

Classic Car Fete At Pebble Beach

By MOLLY MARIN

The 23rd Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance will get underway Sunday on the lawn at Del Monte Lodge in Pebble Beach, with proceeds going to Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael.

Among the judges chosen to select the most elegant car from the field at large for the Gwenn Graham Memorial Trophy are Fred Ludekens of Belvedere, well known commercial artist, along with photographer Ansel Adams, Gus Arriola the "Gordo" cartoonist, and others from the Carmel-Monterey area.

A dinner dance will be held at Del Monte Lodge the evening before the Concours.

CONGRESSMAN and Mrs. William S. Mailliard and their three daughters are spending the month of August in Marin while Congress is in recess. They will spend the time in Belvedere and at Stinson Beach.

Congressman Mailliard visited China for two weeks as a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

COL. AND Mrs. David B. Vail of Mill Valley will give a reception at the Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base on Aug. 18 honoring the recently married Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Richardson of Reno, Nev.

The bride, the former Patricia Louie Vail is the Vails' daughter. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Richardson of Reno. They were married July 8 in Reno.

Patricia is a graduate of Tamalpais High School and the College of Marin. She is employed at the Lucas Engineering Co. in Reno. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. John Meyers of Mill Valley and the sister of Jonatha V. Gilfillan of Reno, and David, Steven and Michael Vail, all of Mill Valley.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Reno High School, served in the Marine Corps. He is employed at the Reno Lumber Co. in Reno. The newlyweds are living in Reno.

AUG. 12 WAS supposed to be Gilbert Klein's wedding day, but since the wedding was called off several months ago, he and his best man agreed they would have a party anyway. But the trouble was that the best man would be in Ithaca, N.Y., and Klein's other friends are scattered across the U.S. and in Europe. So Klein decided to issue invitations to all to celebrate wherever they are Sunday when it is 1 p.m. in San Rafael, his home.

He has sent out some 200 invitations to family and friends, including one in Greece, to celebrate however they wish and to take photos of their celebration and send them to him for a memory album.

Klein himself says he hasn't decided exactly where in Marin he will have his party, but a friend is baking him a non-wedding cake. He says that it is up to his friends wherever they are to invite others to the celebration.

The party "host," a psychology student at Sonoma State College, said that he is eager to reminisce about the party with the other celebrants when he sees them.

BECKY OWENS of Girlstown, USA in Whiteface, Texas., was guest of honor when members of Xi Rho Kappa Chapter attended the Beta Sigma Phi Northern California Council fall brunch Sunday in Sonora.

Becky is the "adopted" daughter of Xi Rho Kappa members, and she will visit in the Marin members' homes for two weeks before she returns to Texas to enter her senior year of high school.

ON THE AGENDA

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Writing Readers Unhappy Over Necessity To Edit Letters

HELEN AND SUE:

Each time I've sent you comments, you've rewritten my letters, leaving out important items.

I take a lot of time and concentration on my letters, and I feel they should be printed as is, only omitting names and cuss words (which I don't use anyway). — NEWSPAPER PEN PAL

DEAR PEN PAL:

We rewrote your present letter too: chopped the wordage down by about half, which is usually the reason for "editing" reader-comments.

Cuss words we don't mind, even well-known names we often print, but space? That's vital! Almost every letter we use must be shortened, and if this bothers you, P.P., join the club! Even Ernest Hemingway was cut, and HE didn't like it either! — HELEN

PEN PAL:

If ALL your letters made RAP, you must have good thoughts and express them well — for we can print only two or three selections out of hundreds that come to us daily.

Next time, send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope and what we can't publish, we'll discuss with you personally. Okay? — SUE

NOTE TO READERS:

While we shorten your COMMENTS for space reasons, your QUESTIONS sometimes get The Bottel Treatment to protect writers (or those written about) from recognition. Often our correspondents ask for these changes "so my folks. . .boyfriend. . .girlfriend. . .teacher. . .whatever. . .won't know it's me, but I'll get the message." Even when they don't, we play it safe. The following letter explains why:

RAP:

I was furious at my girlfriend and I wrote you a very damaging letter about her. To tell the truth, I wanted her to recognize herself.

Now, three weeks later, we have talked it all out and I know I was wrong. We're really together! Please, can you keep my letter out of the paper? It would ruin everything. — NO LONGER "MAD AND HURTING"

N.L.M.H.:

We can't stop the presses now — in fact, by the time you read this, your letter will already have reached print — but only YOU will know who wrote it about whom. Age, specific events, location, even the signature to a minor degree, have been changed to protect "the furious." — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I am one of those children living with parents who are now divorced but still staying in the same house. Forget it! You are right, Helen — it won't work.

I can't count how many 3 a.m. fist fights I've broken up, or how many times I've tried to calm my two hysterical sisters.

The only reasons my parents continue living together is that the house is owned in both their names and neither can afford to buy the other out, nor will they give up what is half theirs. They're hoping to sell, but then we girls will be out on the street. We are viewed as burdens because we're the only reason our parents must live together.

When we ask for anything, Mom says, "Ask your fahter." He says, "Ask your mother." They seldom speak except to scream. We bear the brunt of their anger. I'm afraid my youngest sister is going to have a nervous breakdown. I'm so scared about what people can do to each other that I don't ever want children.

Tell "Tod" who wants to live in the same house with his divorced wife, that he'll share a lot more hatred than responsibilities. And his kids are the ones who will suffer! —LIVING THROUGH IT, BARELY

Jennifer Winfrey Is Wed In Garden Rite

At a garden wedding in Mill Valley, Mrs. Ray Winfrey of Mill Valley and Dr. Gerald C. Freeman of Greenbrae were married at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Jennifer Coslett Winfrey, a widow, is the daughter of Air Marshal Sir Norman and Lady Coslett of London, who attended the ceremony. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Freedman of Omaha, Neb.

Philippa Coslett of London, the bride's sister, was the maid of honor, and Mrs. Allan Joseph of Mill Valley, the bridegroom's sister, was the matron of honor. Allan Joseph was best man for his brother-in-law. The wedding was held at the Joseph home.

The bride was educated at St. Paul's Girl School in London and the University of London.

Dr. Freedman, a physician, practices in Mill Valley. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and the University of Nebraska College of Medicine at Lincoln, Neb.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii the couple will live in Mill Valley

Reasons For Headaches Are Hard To Determine

Headache is man's most common complaint, and its diagnosis can be most challenging to the physician, according to Dr. Arnold P. Friedman, a world renowned specialist on headaches.

Diagnosis, the physician explains, depends on an analysis of clinical data derived from a careful and systematic history of the patient, a general examination emphasizing the head and nervous system, a psychologic evaluation and other studies that may be indicated for the individual patient.

Bedroom Colors Should Be Soft

Decorate the bedroom in soft, restful colors. Subdued shades of blue, green or gray are the most soothing.

A bright red wall may add a striking decorator touch, but it will glare like a strong spotlight on your tired eyes and mind, so avoid it.

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Schooling, especially for children living in industrialized nations, can last too long.

This is especially true for those young people who go first to nursery school, then through high school, directly on to college, and from there into graduate school.

Unless the student and his family make a deliberate effort to widen experience, one can spend a quarter of a century in a learning attitude.

Such academic schooling is largely a getting experience. But what about the joys of giving, of sharing, of serving other people or a worthwhile cause? What about testing in practical experience what one is learning in the abstract? What about the responsibility that comes from having to cooperate with another to get a job done?

CHILDREN IN elementary school are held back or promoted on the basis of their individual efforts. If the boy sitting next to you in school does not do his homework or learn his lessons correctly, you are not held responsible. Not so, if you and another boy had a fence to paint or a garden to weed or windows to wash.

You are responsible, on a job, not only for holding up your own end of the work assignment, but also for helping your partner to hold up his end.

Youngsters in high school also carry their own individual responsibilities. In hundreds of secondary schools, each student is compared with every other; there is a ranking of the class. And if there are 25 students in a graduating class, number one is in no way held responsible for the failure of number 25.

When a majority of students lived on farms, there was an opportunity for every youngster to spend some time each day in giving as well as getting. Not only were there opportunities to help one another in completing tasks, but also there were animals totally dependent on a youngster's "giving" for their survival.

This opportunity to share appears to be lacking for urban and suburban youth. Certainly, there are no farm chores to be done; no two-man crosscut saws to be shared; no easy way for youngsters to learn what it means to care for an animal that might, in turn, perform a service.

Many parents have thought to solve the problem by sending urban children off to summer camps. But most summer camps just reinforce the "getting" experiences of schooling. A camper goes to crafts and learns to make a belt; he goes to swimming and learns lifesaving; to campcraft and learns how to make a campfire.

HOMES PROVIDE fewer incentives to share chores now. Families with able young boys and girls pay to have cellars cleaned, floors waxed, grass mown, hedges clipped, cars washed or clothes ironed while mother drives the youngsters from school to piano lessons to dancing lessons to the roller-skating rink and finally to the library.

And there's the mother of seven children who takes them to a bowling alley to play while she does seven loads of wash at the nearby laundromat.

City and suburban parents might consider making a determined effort, especially with teen-age children, to see that some time is spent each day "giving" and working for and with others. Jobs could be thought up that require cooperation — not more competition and reward for individual effort at the expense of one's neighbors.

Those mothers who now give time to working out car pools might devote equal — if not more —time to designing work assignments. For example, a group of families could organize their children into a cleaning team.

One week they might be assigned as a team to a thorough cleaning job for a family with a need; the next week they might work for a family that can reimburse them for their services; the following week they might complete some civic project (as volunteers); and the next week provide cleaning services "at cost" to an inner-city family.

Baby's Crying Has A Meaning

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Fourth of a series describing things commonly upsetting to the parents of normal babies, developed by the Office of Child Development, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.)

A baby's cry is his way of telling you that he is in some way not satisfied or comfortable. Your job is to find out why and if possible, to do something about it. Hunger is the most common cause, loneliness is probably the next most common cause, especially after the first few months. Actual pain from an open diaper pin or colic is much less common.

The baby's own temperament makes a big difference; some will let out a roaring cry at the first sign of hunger or discomfort, others will become quietly restless and not actually cry for some time. Some will cry whenever the diaper is wet or soiled, others will ignore the diaper until it causes enough irritation to cause actual pain. Some will object to baths, to being placed in bed, to having the lights put out or to other sudden changes. Excessive clothing or clothing that is not warm enough will cause discomfort and crying.

But there is always a cause, and you should usually be able to figure out what the cause is and to do something about it. This does not mean that you can't let a hungry or wet child wait for several minutes while you finish what you are doing. But it does mean that no child should be left to cry for any prolonged period of time without serious attempts to find out what is wrong and to correct it.

Many babies do have a time each day when they are just fussy or crying without any reason that you can discover. After you have checked for a cause of crying, you can safely ignore these fussy periods.

MOST CHILDREN want attention and handling. If a baby becomes quiet and content when picked up, he was probably just lonely. A few minutes of fondling and play, and then perhaps leaving him in the room with you where he can see you, is all that he needs. If he is actually hungry or in pain he will soon cry again, even if you are holding him or playing with him. Don't worry about "spoiling" him. Giving him the attention he needs during his first year will help him build the trust he will need to learn more "grown-up" behavior later on.

Many infants rest better if they are firmly wrapped, or swaddled, in a blanket or wrapper.

Some babies have attacks of crying nearly every evening, usually between 6 and 10 p.m. During an attack, his face suddenly becomes red, he frowns, draws his legs up and screams loudly, a cry quite different from his cry of hunger or loneliness. The crying continues from two to 20 minutes, even though he is picked up and comforted. The attack may end suddenly or soft crying may last a few minutes after the hard crying stops. Just as he is about to fall asleep, another attack may occur. Gas may rumble in his stomach and he may pass gas out of his rectum.

No one knows what causes such attacks. They often come at the same time every day. At other times of the day he is happy, alert, eats well and gains weight. During an attack, holding him across your knees on his stomach often will give some comfort. There is little you can do except comfort the baby until the attack stops.

BE SURE HE isn't just hungry, wet or lonely and that his clothing is comfortable. Most important, remember that colic does not interfere with his general health and growth and that he will grow out of it by the time he is 12 to 16 weeks.

Colicky babies do annoy their mothers and fathers and anybody living in the household. Remind everyone that it is not the baby's fault, it is not your fault, and he'll get over it. If the colic becomes a real problem for him or the family, it is worth a special trip or call to the doctor, who may be able to prescribe a medicine to make the baby rest more comfortably.

VERONICA LEE ORR
To be married

Engagement Of Veronica Orr Told

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas William Orr of San Rafael have announced the engagement of their daughter, Veronica Lee (Vonnie) Orr, to Mark Joseph Mitchell of Torrance.

Vonnie is the sister of Thomas, Edward, Donald and Joseph Orr and the granddaughter of Earl Orr of National City. Mrs. Frank Orr of Spring Valley is her great-grandmother. She is a graduate of San Rafael High School and attends the University of San Francisco. The future bride is employed by J. C. Penney Co. in Corte Madera.

Mark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack S. Mitchell of Torrance. He is the brother of Mrs. John Porter of Paradise, James Mitchell of Hamilton Air Force Base and Lawrence Mitchell of Fort Hood, Tex. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hendon of Chico and S. S. Moran of Hawthorne. He was graduated from Torrance High School and attended El Camino College in Torrance. The future bridegroom is in the Army, stationed at Fort Ord.

Lecture Is Set On Needlework

Sylvia Campbell will give a lecture and demonstration Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. for residents of the Tamalpais Retirement Residence in their auditorium in Greenbrae.

Mrs. Campbell, who has a credential in the field of needle arts, has been teaching in Marin for 12 years at College of Marin, Novato High School and Sir Francis Drake High School.

She is also a certified judge for the California State Fair and Exposition in the field of needlework and home economics.

Vater-Bunch Vows Said In Novato

The outdoor chapel at St. Francis Episcopal Church in Novato was the setting Saturday for the marriage of Susan Vater of Novato and John Bunch of San Luis Obispo.

A reception in the garden of the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vater, in Novato followed the ceremony. The couple is on a wedding trip along the Oregon coast and will live in San Luis Obispo.

Maid of honor for her sister was Ann Vater, and Michele Azevedo of Santa Rosa was the bridesmaid.

The bridegroom's brother, Jose Ortiz of San Francisco, was the best man, and Ron Pugh of San Luis Obispo ushered.

Susan is a graduate of San Marin High School, and John was graduated from Plainview High School in Plainview, N.Y. Both are seniors at California State Polytechnic University.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Ortiz of Plainview.

Tom Vater of Novato is the bride's brother. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. C. H. Vater of Novato and Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Cravens of Olympia, Wash.

Bedroom Bright, Keep Out Light

Coordinate draperies, carpeting and bedspreads with your wall colors so that your entire decorating scheme flows together into an unobtrusive, tranquil effect.

Lined, closely woven draperies will help to keep out the brightness of daylight or street lamps when you are resting or sleeping. But don't use heavy fabrics; strive for the light, airy effect.

You may also want to consider using opaque window shades or venetian blinds to insulate against outside disturbances.

Heavy Furnishings Oppress Bedroom

Furnish your bedroom with care. Shun heavy, dark furniture, if possible, and do not clutter the room with too many pieces.

Heavy furniture, especially in the bedroom, can be oppressive. And cluttered and crowded conditions are not conducive to that gentle feeling of repose which you are seeking.

Women's Lib Alters Men's Garb

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Joyce Brothers says that women's lib eration has struck such a blow for equality of sexes that a man now wears clothes that promise love and pleasure instead of prosperity and status.

But one thing hasn't changed, she says, and that is the three cycles of men's clothing:

In his early years, until he is free to choose someone to marry, he wears "sex clothes" designed to attract the female of the species.

Once marriage sets in, usually during the first 15 years of wedlock, the man goes for comfort since his sex clothes have already got him what he wanted.

Then, at the end of 15 years, there sets in what is erroneously referred to as the Seven Year Itch and he reverts to sex clothes to prove that he is still attractive to women — that is, women other than his wife.

Children's Line Is Fashion First

A fashion first was established this year at the 61st National Press Week in New York with the showing of the prestigious children's wear line: Piccolino and Chin Chin knits.

Piccolino showed pint-sized versions of everything adults wear. The idea: girls like nothing better than to look like Mommie and boys like to wear clothes that make them look like Dad.

Children's Pants Minus Cuffs Now

Pants continue to dominate the array of children's wear for fall and early winter, with narrowed pants legs minus the popular cuffs of last year, reports Women's Wear Daily.

Price increases of 10 to 20 per cent were predicted by manufacturers because of higher piece goods prices, the apparel trade daily reported.

Art Defense Must Be On Leading Right Card To Partner

Part of the art of defending well is to lead the right suit, but another important part is to lead the right card. That will make it easier for your partner to know what is going on.

LOW CLUB

West opened the deuce of clubs dummy played low and East won with the king. East now correctly returned a spade. If West had the king of spades, only a prompt spade lead by East would produce a trick in the suit.

East led the deuce of spades, and West won with the ace. West knew that he would eventually get a trump trick but one another trick was needed to defeat the contract. Did his partner have the king of spades or the ace of diamonds?

The clincher was the fact that East had returned the deuce of spades. In this situation, a player should lead a low card, such as a deuce, only if he has a high enough card (jack or better) to support a return of the suit.

HAND COLLAPSES

West therefore returned the jack of spades and the hand collapsed.

South won with the king of spades, cashed the ace of hearts and led out two rounds of clubs to get rid of the ten of diamonds. Then he gave up a trump trick and could claim the rest.

LOW SPADE

East should return the nine of spades to indicate that he cannot stand a return lead in the suit. (This would not indicate spade shortness, for then South would have a very long spade suit which he had never bid.)

West would take his ace of spades and abandon the suit. A switch to diamonds would be marked and this would defeat the contract.

Moss To Drive Air-Bag Auto

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., will drive a car equipped with an air bag safety device during the two-week congressional recess, according to the Allstate Insurance Co.

Moss will be driving the car to gain first hand knowledge of how the safety equipment works, Allstate said Wednesday.

The insurance company said nearly 2,000 cars have been equipped with airbags for testing purposes.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

ZANY ZODIAC: Thanks to our TV crystal ball, we can watch the stars rise and fall in the great constellations of ABC, CBS and NBC. Using their birthdays, we've listed them under signs of the Zodiac. Here are the last three. All 12 names will be revealed tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are always there. Expect to be the center of attention every evening but give others a chance to tell their stories, too. You've been called the man of the Twentieth Century. And that's the way it is. Name of star No. 10

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Radical ideas and opinions tend to disturb you. You flash your eyes, squirm and grow impatient. You talk, write and dress like a scholar. Just remember that life can be beautiful even if name-calling often puts you on the firing line. Name of star No. 11

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You left a happy-go-lucky TV hubby to go it alone in the Big City as a single. It put you in a colder climate. But everybody in the office loves you, especially when you flash that pretty smile. Your boss is all growl, no bite. Name of star No. 12

INDEPENDENT-JOURNAL WINNERS: First to identify James Baldwin as the mystery celebrity was Candis Cooper of Greenbrae. She wins a "Family Tree" first prize. ART REVIEW

Ruth Asawa's Creations Soar

By ADA GARFINKEL

SAN FRANCISCO — Creating major sculptural commissions such as the fountains for the Fox Plaza, Ghirardelli and the Hyatt House-Union Squares, and other projects across the country, are but part of the output of San Francisco sculptress Ruth Asawa.

In Miss Asawa's retrospective exhibit, currently at the San Francisco Museum of Art, are 121 items on loan from various collections. They range from her unique woven-wire sculptures to bronze castings of the baker's clay panels similar to those used in the Hyatt House fountain.

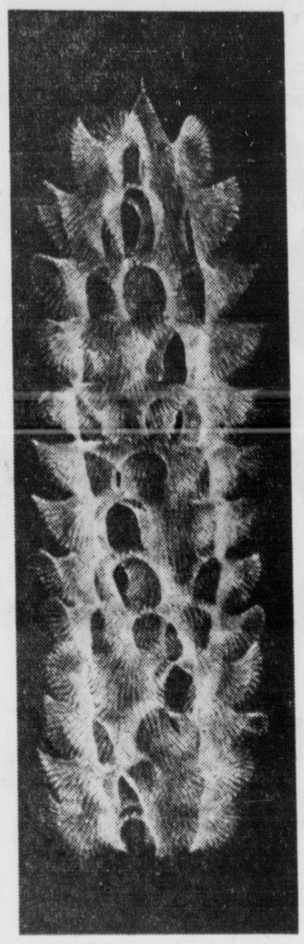
In addition, there are delicate watercolors (her original intent was to be a painter), a group of life masks modeled of friends, standing figure castings, tensile paper-folds, and her unusual wicker-chair drawings whose plasticity extends one's own range of vision.

Shortly after completing her college training, Miss Asawa created an international reputation with her rhythmically interpenetrating and elongated woven wire sculptures. A number of them hang lightly and kinetically in the large South Gallery, their sinuous, overlapping contours and airy transparency are delightful.

Continually exploring her material and inner creative sources, the artist, in turning to the greater rigidity of galvanized wire rods, has produced an exciting variety of mobiles, stabiles, and wall hangings. Not surprisingly, with her Oriental heritage, they have the spikiness of Bonsai. Tiny plastic-resin coating of the tips are light-and-color reflecting like drops of dew. Electroplating or bronze-casting of several have added a new textural and mass identity.

Miss Asawa's bronze castings of her clay-dough relief panels are filled with mythical and personal memorabilia. They weave a humorous, part real-part fanciful legend and have led the artist directly to another very important aspect of her life.

It is almost uncanny that this petite, 47-year-old artist — in private life the wife of an architect and the mother of six children — should find time to be so prolifically creative. But there is more. Ruth Asawa is also civic-minded.



ASAWA RETROSPECTIVE — Light as air and delicate as a breeze, this transparent hanging sculpture measures 84 by 24 inches. Woven from metal wire, this art form is by San Francisco sculptress Ruth Asawa, who also did the Ghirardelli Square and Hyatt-House-Union Square fountains. It is in her exhibit at the San Francisco Museum of Art through Aug. 19.

As a five-year member of the San Francisco Art Commission, Miss Asawa has worked actively to extend art experience and involvement to numerous school children.

Having concocted a baker's clay-dough recipe as an inexpensive medium for her own children's usage at Christmas time, she has worked with teachers and students in a number of public schools to guide their enthusiastic response and the production of a number of impressive relief-murals. These are also on view during Miss Asawa's exhibit through Aug. 19.

Viewing hours at the museum are from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday.

SACRAMENTO — The State School Allocations Board has approved $3.2 million for additions to two Southern Sonoma schools.

A grant totaling $3,245,982 was approved Monday for the Petaluma High School District.

George W. Castleberry, assistant superintendent, said $1,755,209 was earmarked for the first addition to Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School, Petaluma, along with $1,490,773 for the third addition to Rancho Cotate High School, Rohnert Park.

Ali Akbar Khan will be featured playing the sarod in a benefit concert for the Ali Akbar College of Music on Aug. 25 at 8 p.m. at the college of San Rafael.

Ali Akbar Khan is the founder and head of the college and he will be joined in the concert by Alan Watts, philosopher-lecturer and teacher; flautist G. S. Sachdev; Chitresh Das, Kathak dancer, and tabla drummer Zakir Hussain. All are teachers at the college.

Bills Seek Open Talks On Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee today approved legislation to tear away the shroud of secrecy covering state budget conference committees and opening the sessions to public scrutiny.

The two measures by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, and Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael, were spawned by widespread dissatisfaction over the recently enacted budget which contained major revisions never subjected to public hearings, including $42 million for a new state Capitol.

The Gregorio measure (SCR72), coauthored by 24 other senators, would require the budget conference committee of three senators and three assemblymen to meet in public but not necessarily receive public testimony.

The traditional conference committee on the budget is where the actual fiscal blueprint for the coming year is drawn up. It is intended to resolve the differing versions of the budgets passed by the Assembly and Senate.

The Gregorio bill would apply to both houses. It was approved on a 4-1 vote of the Rules Committee and sent to the floor.

The Behr measure (SR58), a rule change applying only to the Senate, would prohibit a Senate member of the budget conference committee from attending any secret session. It was approved 3-2.

Appearing as witnesses supporting the two measures were veteran senators and leaders of both parties, including Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, Sen. John Harmer, R-Glendale, Sen. Fred Marler Jr., R-Redding, and Sen. Walter Stiern, D-Bakersfield.

School Schedules Its Registration

Registration for new students at Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School, Petaluma, will be held from Aug. 20 to Aug. 30.

No new students will be registered the first week of classes, Sept. 4-7, but must wait until Sept. 11 if not registered in advance.

Returning students and students entering from Kenilworth Junior High School may pick up their new class schedules on Aug. 23, 24 or 27.

Sierra Club Still Has Trip Openings

The Marin branch of the Sierra Club still has a few openings for its trip to the Redwood National Park area Aug. 17-19.

Deadline for reservations for the bus camping trip is Sunday, according to Gilbert Deane, club chairman who said reservations may be made through him at 17 Upper Fremont Road, San Rafael.

Russia Throws Out A Scientist

Medvedev was shorn of his citizenship for "actions discrediting the high title of citizen of the USSR," the news agency said.

Earlier in London the Soviet embassy announced Medvedev's passport had been withdrawn. The action means he will be unable to return to the Soviet Union.

MUSIC REVIEW

Lenox Quartet Opens The Inverness Festival

By R. LEE CARLSON

The Lenox Quartet's concert Wednesday night at College of Marin, Fine Arts Building, would have pleased Mozart. It was a superb program and a splendid first evening of the 1973 Inverness Festival. The large audience was enthusiastic and became more and more attentive as the evening progressed.

The Quartet in D Minor, K. 387, and the Quartet in C Major, K. 465, are the first and sixth of a group of quartets dedicated to Haydn. They were written between 1782 and 1785.

From a letter Mozart's father wrote to Mozart's sister, Feb. 16, 1785, we learn that Haydn, after hearing a performance of the last three quartets, is reported to have said: "Before God and as an honest man I tell you that your son is the greatest composer known to me either in person or by name. He has taste and, what is more, the most profound knowledge of composition."

The listener, perhaps, experiences more accessible pleasures with K. 465 and K. 516; however, very exciting was the quality of the Lenox playing of K. 387. The clarity of phrasing was very fine and the rubatos particularly well chosen; they sounded comfortable and natural. The second movement was played with marvelous dynamic control; the balance of sound moved from level to level with absolute ease.

The vitality of Peter Marsh's sound in the third movement solo passages was special and Toby Appel, violist, similarly gave us remarkable sound in the final movement. This latter movement, so full of expressive content, was enhanced by a great clarity of long melodic lines colored by carefully planned layers of individual sound.

The first movement of K. 465 commences with a rhythmic pattern of interest. Mozart offers the cello a rather prominent role, and the sound which Donald McCall offered was pure, clear and with a warmth which was moving. The second movement, operatic in nature, filled the hall with an abundance of melody with great tenderness. The third movement expresses a joy not unlike the spirit of the piano concerto, K. 453.

Sandor Salgo, director of the Inverness Festival, assisted the Lenox Quartet to conclude the program with the Quintet in G Minor, K. 516. Mozart invariably doubled the viola instead of the cello as Boccherini had done. Of the last four quintets, K. 516 is often considered the greatest. It was written in 1887, four years before the composer's death. The work is from beginning to end a musical dialogue of thoughts, feelings and emotions.

The Lenox Quartet played this work with great understanding. The dialogue was always clear; there was a constant rapport, an elegant texture and the third movement expressed a gentleness which was of a truly spiritual quality.

Reed School Budget Means Tax Rate Hike

A 1973-74 budget of $3,339,824 which may necessitate a 14-cent hike in the district's tax rate, has been approved by Reed School District trustees.

The budget is up $147,944 from last year's.

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello said that the tax rate boost, to $3.74 per $100 assessed valuation, is still only an estimate since the final rate will not be set for several days. Last year's rate was $3.605.

Giovanniello said the increase was allowed under Senate Bill 90 because the district's average daily attendance is expected to rise by almost 60 to 1,922 students. He said the jump in attendance is due to the district's new summer school program.

The board added several items to its preliminary budget including: a $3,500 reading evaluation program at Granada School; $1,700 for repainting Belvedere School, and $12,500 to improve the heating system at Reedland Woods School.

Teachers had earlier received a 4.37 per cent salary hike in the 1973-74 budget while classified employees were granted a 3.5 per cent increase.

Business Mgr. Charles L. Condrotte will also have his salary increased by $1,000, to $18,500.

Expenditures include: $1,368,000 for teacher salaries; $40,400 for classified salaries; $50,000 for capital outlay; $789,927 for bond payment and reserves and $260,000 for fixed charges including retirement fund contributions, benefits, workman's compensation and legal expenses.

Campaign Financing Bill Wins A Round

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill providing state financing of California campaigns for statewide office, congress or the legislature has advanced to the Assembly floor.

The measure (AB363) by Assemblyman Henry A. Waxman, D-Los Angeles, cleared the Assembly Ways and Means Committee Wednesday on a minimum 11-5 vote. But Waxman said there was little chance of it winning approval from the full Assembly.

Water Board Sets Budget For Point Reyes Work

The North Marin County Water District board has adopted a $104,998 budget for its Point Reyes Improvement District including a $30,285 operating budget and $74,714 for capital improvements budget, according to auditor S. L. Morris.

The spending plan, approved Tuesday, will require a tax rate of 75.5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. Of that, 28.5 cents will go for operations and the rest, 47 cents, for improvements.

Directors also sold $250,000 in Point Reyes Improvement District water bonds to the federal Farmers Home Administration with a 5 per cent interest rate over 40 years. Voters authorized the bonds Nov. 3, 1970.

The bonds will finance a new tank supply line and new pipe lines in downtown Point Reyes Station and the mesa area.

The improvement district was formed to serve about 300 customers in the Point Reyes-Inverness Park area when the water district took over operation of private water systems in the area.

North Marin County Water Board Also:

BUDGETS — Adopted a $10,592 budget for a sewer improvement district at the Oceana Marin development near Dillon Beach and a $2,974 budget for 1973-74 for the Olema Water Improvement District.

BID — Rejected the low bid of J. P. O'Hair and Co. of Santa Rosa, to supply pipeline, saying the $15,058 bid was too high.

ELECTION — Received notice that election of two directors will be held Nov. 6. The terms of George A. Amaroli and Frank V. Baccaglio expire.

TOUR — Announced that the board will tour water facilities in Sonoma County Saturday starting from the district office at 8:30 a.m. and including an afternoon visit to the Warm Springs dam site.

MEETING — The next regular meeting will be at 8 p.m., Aug. 21 at the district office in Novato.

Capital Qualifies Because Of Use

CHICAGO (UPI) — When South Dakotans chose Pierre for their capital city in 1889, they couldn't have selected a more experienced site.

Pierre, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, had for 400 years prior to 1800 been the capital of the Arikara Indian Nation.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 9, 1973 19

IS IT SAFE? — Officer Myron MacNeil of the California Highway Patrol places an inspection sticker on the front of a ten-speed bike owned by Matthew O'Byrne of Sleepy Hollow, as part of the patrol's new bicycle safety education program.

TESTED LIKE DRIVERS

By PAUL CANE

Some of the nation's most irresponsible drivers have never been behind the wheel of an automobile.

They ride bicycles.

And these reckless drivers are killing and injuring themselves in ever increasing numbers, according to officer Myron MacNeil of the California Highway Patrol office in Corte Madera.

He said recently compiled statistics show that bicycle fatalities increased nearly 50 per cent over last year in the second quarter of 1973. (In Marin, one person has been killed in a bike accident in the past 18 months, and 82 have been injured.)

To inform youngsters of the dangers and responsibilities they accept when they climb into the seat of their bicycles, the California Highway Patrol has begun a pilot program of "rider education" for school-age cyclists in Marin and a few other counties.

MacNeil said officers are now visiting schools, clubs, scout troops and any other organizations that may interest young bicyclists, to present a comprehensive bike safety program.

The educational program includes instruction in bicycling laws, a mechanical safety check and a "road test" for riders.

Each bicycle is first given a stem-to-stern equipment inspection, from front headlights to rear reflector. If the bicycle is properly equipped, a highway patrol inspection sticker (similar to the common auto inspection sticker) is placed on the vehicle as proof it is not faulty.

If a cycle has inadequate or faulty equipment, a note is sent to the youngster's parents, requesting that the deficiency be corrected.

Although the request is not legally binding, MacNeil said youngsters have shown great enthusiasm for having correctly equipped bikes. "The kids love to get those little stickers," he said with a laugh.

Next comes an operator's examination. Each bike owner maneuvers through a prepared course marked off with rubber cones, and is rated on his ability to control the vehicle through turns and speed changes. Similar to the Department of Motor Vehicles auto driver exam, the bike test is an enjoyable way to test a rider's skill, according to the highway patrolman.

"Kids keep coming up to me, saying, 'Gee, can I go through the course again?' " MacNeil said. "The course is fun for the kids and it gives us a chance to see if they know the proper signals, and if they can handle the bike properly."

He said the bike safety talk is often an eye-opener for many young riders.

"A lot don't know we can issue citations to them just like we do to car drivers. Also, many don't know they must ride on the right side of the road, and that they have to stop for stop signs, just like cars."

A large percentage of the approximately 10,000 injury-accidents involving bike riders in California each year result from carelessness, according to MacNeil, who said many cyclists feel they can dart through intersections, or from behind parked cars, with no regard for approaching autos. "That's just asking for trouble."

If the pilot program is successful in Marin, the rider education program may be put into effect statewide.

MacNeil said that more bikes than cars have been sold recently, indicating the demand for two-wheeled transportation and the need for teaching unlicensed riders the rules of the road.

The highway patrolman is eager to educate as many young riders as humanly possible. "My goal is to reach every one of them," he said.

Judge Hits Drug Case On Warrant

By GEORGE NEVIN

Charges against three persons suspected of being drug traffickers inevitably must be dismissed because of a defective search warrant, a Marin judge said Wednesday.

In the meantime, said Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman, the Marin district attorney's office is spending a lot of the taxpayers' money to prosecute a lost cause.

Unless new evidence is used to justify the search and arrest of the three in a Ross raid July 19, "eventually the whole thing is going to get thrown out of court," said Smallman.

The case is the second in a month in which a search warrant which led to the seizure of a large amount of drugs has been quashed by a Marin judge.

David R. Baty in July dismissed charges against two San Anselmo men becaue of an improper warrant. Officers in that case occupied the men's house for four hours before obtaining the warrant.

Drugs seized in the Ross raid, included marijuana, LSD, depressants and amphetamine and the materials used to make it. Police estimated its street value at $2 million.

In a bizarre twist to the Ross case, a Mill Valley man, Raymond Anthony Hossbach, 25, was released last week when Smallman ruled the affidavit which led to the issuance of the warrant was improper.

Hossbach was rearrested and the district attorney's office promptly filed a new charge — possession of an illegal depressant — which was identical to the old charge.

State Supreme Court decisions have held that such rearrests are valid, and the district attorney's office routinely is granted a new hearing before a different judge — a practice known as "judge shopping."

In Hossbach's case, a hearing on a motion to suppress the evidence — the same motion Smallman granted — will be held Tuesday in Municipal Court.

There's nothing to prevent the district attorney's office from seeking yet a third hearing if the second judge quashes the warrant and frees Hossbach, as Smallman did.

But, Smallman warned, Hossbach is entitled to file a civil suit asking that the arrests stop and requesting damages as well.

Also charged as a result of the raid are William Richard Paris, 29, of Ross, and Virginia MacGregor, 19, of Sausalito.

They have been indicted by the Marin County Grand Jury and are set to go to trial in superior court the week of Sept. 17.

Unless the arrest of the trio can be justified on some basis other than the warrant, Smallman said, he doesn't see how it can stand up.

The judge said he ruled on two points when he dismissed the charges against Hossbach:

1. The affidavit on which the warrant was based was prepared improperly. Instead of presenting facts to justify the warrant, it merely said "see attached," referring to a separate sheet — a technical but fatal flaw.

2. The Ross policeman who signed the affidavit never established the reliability of the informant who noticed marijuana in Paris's house and told police.

Hossbach raised several other points which Smallman never got around to ruling on. The first two were enough, the judge said.

Smallman said it was with deep regret that he dismissed the charge against Hossbach because he is very worried about drug traffic in Marin.

He said he has received hate mail on the subject — an ironic point, he said, because he personally believes the evidence should be admissible but legally had no choice.

By insisting on waging a losing battle, the district attorney's office is just wasting money, the judge said.

Much Opposition To Clean Air Plan

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — A federal government plan to restrict use of cars and motorcycles in the Bay Area had few friends in a marathon hearing Wednesday.

Lined up against the Environmental Protection Agency plan were state and regional smog officials, mayors, car dealers, educational institutions, businessmen and motorcyclists. Of more than 30 persons who testified at the 10-hour hearing in the Federal Building, only eight generally supported the plan, most of them spokesmen for conservation organizations.

More witnesses were among the 200 persons who jammed the Ceremonial Courtroom when the session started in the morning, but more than half were gone when state and local officials finished testifying late in the afternoon.

Hearing officer Charles Eckerman, assistant regional counsel for the EPA, rejected pleas from the public that it be heard first. By evening, when he called many citizens on the roster of speakers, most were gone.

Eckerman continued the hearing to 8:30 a.m. today. He noted written comments on the plan will be accepted until Aug. 31 at EPA headquarters, 100 California Street.

The proposed plan, due for adoption by Oct. 15, cuts motorists' mileage by 20 per cent by 1977, cuts off two-thirds of gas sales during peak smog periods, limits the number of all types of motorcycles to the number registered in 1973, and bans use of two-stroke motorcycles during daylight hours from May through October.

It also calls for making commuting by car far more expensive and inconvenient by improving transit and cutting back public parking by 20 per cent. The plan gives EPA a veto over all expansion or construction of parking.

The largest single contingent of opposing witnesses was motorcycle fans. Their view was summed up by attorney David E. Neal of Corte Madera, who commutes to his San Francisco office by motorcycle. He objected it was unfair to ban cycles abruptly when car manufacturers had been given so many years to clean up their pollution.

Cycles use far less gasoline, and tight restrictions on their use would prevent car owners from switching to cycles to save gas, he added.

Other cyclists disputed EPA data showing two-stroke cycles emit up to 31 times more pollution than the limit for 1975 cars. One, Manfred Baez of San Francisco, branded the EPA plan "un-American, undemocratic, unscientific and unrealistic."

Similar sentiments came from the state's district director of transportation, Thomas R. Lammers, who labeled the plan a "panic crash program." To pick up persons forced out of their cars by the plan, he said, 20,000 new buses would be needed in the Bay Area. (An EPA official noted later total production of buses in the nation last year was 4,000 coaches.)

Another state official, Allen B. Lemmon of the Air Resources Board, added warnings that limiting gas sales "would lead to such problems as black marketing, extensive out-of-basin purchases and fire hazards resulting from illegal gasoline storage." He suggested Congress amend the Clean Air Act — under which the EPA was required to draw its plan — "to provide more flexibility."

Congressional weakening of the act also was urged by the California State Automobile Association. Virgil P. Anderson, manager of the association's government affairs department, warned the plan "could result in social and economic chaos."

A A spokesman for the National Automobile Dealers Association, James B. Woulfe of Albany, said the plan is so drastic its intent is "to remove the automobile from our daily way of life. The result is obvious — economic chaos and the deathblow to freedom of mobility in this country and a shattering impact on our lifestyle."

He and other opponents of the plan objected especially that public transportation could not be improved fast enough to meet travel demands by 1977 if the plan were imposed.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto and Oakland Mayor John H. Reading objected that curtailing parking would ruin urban downtowns. Alioto added it would worsen access to San Francisco Airport and Candlestick Park.

A spokesman for both the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District and Metropolitan Transportation Commission said federal air quality standards would be met in the region in 1983 anyway because of new car smog controls.

The EPA, however, repeatedly has stressed it has no choice but to impose the deadlines of the Clean Air Act passed by Congress. The agency's attempt to delay the deadlines was rejected in a court challenge by environmentalists.

Spokesmen for the University of California and state college system asked that educational institutions be exempted from the requirement that public parking be cut 20 per cent. Many of them are poorly served by transit, and students must drive, they said.

Defending the plan were San Francisco Tomorrow, Friends of the Earth, Loma Prieta Chapter of the Sierra Club, League of Women Voters of the Bay Area, San Francisco Bicycle Coalition nd a few citizens.

Thomas Standing of the bicycle coalition declared "we have to choose one or the other: to breathe or to drive. Our lungs cannot adjust to ever-increasing pollution, but we can adjust to less dependence on the automobile."

Robert Kearns, a San Francisco banquet waiter, called pollution "an invasion of privacy and individual health."

Connie Parrish of Mill Valley, California representative of Friends of the Earth, warned "pressure is mounting to subvert, revise, postpone enforcement or to throw out the Clean Air Act altogether. All of this turmoil," she said, "is caused by the fact that we are finally tackling the primary cause of air pollution — the private automobile."

Water Push Scheduled In Tiburon

The Tiburon Fire Protection District board has agreed to join the development arm of Southern Pacific Railroad in asking for an increased water supply to downtown Tiburon.

According to Wellman H. Topham, board secretary, the panel decided to write to the Marin Municipal Water District about the water supply after hearing a report from David Dawson, representing Sequoia Pacific.

Sequoia Pacific is considering development in Tiburon on railroad property which would coincide with the Tiburon downtown plan adopted by the city three years ago.

According to Topham, Dawson told the board that for the plan to work the city's water supply has to increase.

Topham said Sequoia Pacific is requesting that a 16-inch main be run into the downtown area. He said that the fire board has long considered the downtown water supply inadequate for fire fighting purposes.

Topham said that he also announced last night that he will not seek re-election this fall when his term and those of two other board members expire.

Tiburon Will Tackle Plan For Downtown

Tiburon's 3-year-old downtown plan will be reviewed again by the city planning commission tonight at 8 o'clock at city hall.

The meeting was originally scheduled for Monday but was postponed because of lack of a quorum.

Richard S. Arjo, director of community development, said the commission will consider whether the plan is still feasible or needs changing.

The plan would turn the downtown into a village center with a balanced range of business and residential uses, according to Arjo. It also calls for downtown access to the waterfront and use of open space.

Tiburon is currently forming a redevelopment agency which could encourage a developer to come in and build in accord with the downtown plan.

Also on the agenda are proposed housing and and circulation elements of the city's general plan.

Police Cars To Be Auctioned Off

The City of Novato will auction off three police cars at 10 a.m. Aug. 18 at the city hall parking lot.

Two 1971 Dodge Polara sedans and a 1971 Chevrolet Biscayne sedan will be offered for sale. A minimum bid of $250 is required.

The cars, all retired from service, can be inspected at the parking lot between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Aug. 16 and 17 and until 10 a.m. Aug. 18.

Farnkopf Quits As Hub Design Panelist

James Farnkopf resigned Wednesday night from the San Anselmo Design Review Committee, citing conflicts with work responsibilities as the reason.

Farnkopf is manager of water treatment for the Marin Municipal Water District, where he has been employed for 22 years. The water board meets the same days of the month as the design review committee.

The committee Wednesday approved design for an addition to a downtown San Anselmo sporting goods store, The Seasons.

According to Louise Brehm, secretary, the ski and sport supply shop received approval for an annex at the same height as the present 40 Greenfield Avenue building.

Watergate Panel Sets Tape Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate Committee decided to file suit today in an attempt to force President Nixon to turn over tape recordings of his White House conversations on Watergate.

The committee's deputy chief counsel, Rufus L. Edmisten, said the suit, seeking a "declaratory judgment" that Nixon turn over the tapes, would be filed some time in the afternoon in U.S. District Court.

Committee sources said the suit would follow the argument used by the special Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox, who has said in his suit that Nixon's argument that the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers protects the tapes is not valid.

Cox said executive privilege in regard to the tapes has effectively been waived by the White House since "virtually all the participants in the conversations have already testified in one forum or another about these conversations.

"Thus, whatever the merits of a claim of executive privilege might otherwise have been, there is no legitimate ground for now withholding the direct and contemporaneous evidence of those discussions," Cox said.

Chief committee counsel Sam Dash will represent the Senate Watergate Committee in court. The senators have recessed for a vacation after hearing 38 witnesses in 37 days. There are still six or seven witnesses to testify before the first part of the committee's mandate to look into the 1972 campaign activies is finished.

The second phase is pursuing the related themes of political espionage and campaign financing. Among the specific questions facing the seven senators are whether:

—To hold hearings as soon as possible into the "dirty tricks' and financing, or wait until October;

—To hold hearings on those two subjects as a full committee or to split into two subcommittees;

—To allow television coverage of the latter two phases.

Report On Bombings— A Mistake

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said today false reports on U.S. bombing in Indochina were made as far back as 1966. Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements said it was all a mistake.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, head of the Joint Chiefs, told the Senate Armed Services Committee a dual reporting system —one highly classified showing actual missions and another not as classified showing the strikes elsewhere —had been kept since the United States began bombing the Ho Chi Minh trail in 1966.

The committee has been holding hearings on secret U.S. bombing in Cambodia and why most members of Congress had not known about it for nearly three years.

Clements said the committee was apparently given the inaccurate report of strikes in Vietnam when the missions were actually flown in Cambodia, which the United States had said was neutral territory.

Supreme Court Justice William Douglas issued a statement today, criticizing his fellow justices for blocking an order he issued last Saturday to stop the bombing.

Clements said the committee was given the report several weeks ago without the knowledge of the Joint Chiefs and "this was a mistake."

The order was wiped out by Justice Thurgood Marshall, who said he had consulted all seven other members of the court before he acted.

"A Gallup poll type of inquiry of widely scattered justices is, I think, a subversion of the regime under which I thought we lived," Douglas said.

Douglas said the justices who were out of Washington, D.C., could not have possibly studied his opinion in the case.

"Whatever may be said on the merits, I am thoroughly convinced that the telephonic disposition of this grave and crucial constitutional issue is not permissible," he said.

HAILED BY ENVIRONMENTALISTS

Senate Passes Bill Controlling Growth, But It Took A Fight

By ROBERT CAHN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — "It is one gigantic federal zoning plan," charge opponents of the National Land Use Policy Act which recently passed the Senate.

"This act will allow states to provide the kind of blueprint which will spell quality life, good environment, and sound economic growth," says the bill's leading proponent, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

While the controversy over national land-use-policy legislation continues, environmentalists are more or less delightedly hailing the overwhelming Senate passage (63-20) of this strong and workable land-use act.

At the same time they regret the loss of the Jackson Amendment for sanctions to give the bill an enforcement "stick" along with its "carrot" of $1 billion in federal planning assistance funds over eight years. And they are turning their attention to the House, seeking to encourage strengthening of a companion bill still being drafted by Rep. Morris K. Udall's environment subcommittee of the Interior Committee.

The Senate bill offers the states funds with which to inventory land and natural resources and to enact a plan over a five-year period to regulate several categories of land which are of more than local concern: environmentally critical locations such as beaches or flood plains; citing of key facilities such as major highway interchanges and airports; large-scale development such as industrial parks and major urban subdivisions; and public facilities or utilities of regional benefit such as waste disposal or sewage systems.

An added requirement for state land-use plans asks that each proposed project would not exceed the capacity of existing water, power, sewage, and waste-disposal systems, would not cause unreasonable soil erosion, would not be located in unsuitable areas, and would not place an unreasonable burden on state or local governments for public services.

Sen. Paul A. Fannin (R, Ariz.) introduced an amendment to kill the provision, but Senator Jackson produced the votes to defeat the amendment, 64-2.

The land sales project has been authored by Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D, Wisc.). It is opposed by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), and lobbyists from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Home Builders, and the National Association of Realtors.

Debate over the Land Sales Amendment was mild compared with the Senate-floor verbal tangles over a Jackson amendment for "sanctions" affecting other federal programs.

The amendment would have held back, over three successive years, 7, 14, and then 21 per cent of a state's alloted highway, airport, and land and water conservation funds for those states which failed to adopt an acceptable land-use planning and implementation plan by five years after the enactment of the law.

Although a similar measure adopted in committee last year had been removed from the bill in a floor amendment passed by overwhelming voice vote, Senator Jackson used all of his considerable clout to add an "action forcing" sanctions amendment to the bill.

As it turned out in the 52-44 vote defeating sanctions, the Public Works Committee made the difference, with nine members voting against sanctions, and only three "ayes."

A Problem: Water Not Gas Is Wanted

Striking gas when drilling for water may sound like a bonanza, but for a Bolinas property owner it proved a misfortune.

Martin Magid asked directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District last night to annex his property, saying that it was the only way he could bring water to his land on the north side of Mesa Road, just beyond the district boundary.

He and a nearby land owner had employed Weeks Drilling and Pump Co. of Sebastopol to drill water wells, he said, but when natural gas began to bubble up, the operation was stopped for reasons of safety.

Board members told Magid they were reluctant to annex only one property, and advised him to join an annexation movement sponsored by Peter Harris of the Sharon Real Estate Co. for land owners in the same general area. All directors said they favored a large annexation.

A form letter from Harris, handed around the meeting, said the company is advising all property owners between the RCA land and the utility district boundary to apply for annexation as the only realistic solution to the water problem.

The letter quoted the drilling company as saying further drilling for water was not recommended.

Mindful of the energy crisis, Magid said he had contacted the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in hopes he had a salable product. PG&E representatives informed him, however, that gas existed in such small quantities that it would not be worthwhile to develop it.

Work Under Way On Water Dam For Bolinas

Work on repairing the Arroyo Honda Dam, which provides water for Bolinas, began yesterday and should be completed in approximately 30 days, directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District were told last night.

William Shoff, head maintenance man, said that during work on the dam and the access road, both heavily damaged in last year's storms, the district will obtain water from Pine Gulch Creek.

Director Paul D. Kayfetz said that state health inspectors had granted permission for the creeks to be used as a water supply on an emergency basis, with permission for chlorination. Previously, health officers had forbidden its use on grounds of a high coliform count.

In a related matter, the board approved an engineering fee of $6,500 to the firm of Bala and Strandgaard for work on the project.

Bolinas Public Utility Board also:

SEWAGE PLANT — Heard from Kayfetz that the state attorney general's office agreed with his argument that the district does not need any Marin County permits, except a building permit, in order to start work on its sewage project. Kayfetz said the plan had been approved by the North Central Coast Regional Conservation Commission on Aug. 2, and the district needs only final state approval of its grant applicaion in order to call for bids.

CLOSED SESSION — Voted to grant a 5 per cent cost-of-living increase to staff members retroactive to July 15, after a 45-minute closed session. The board also accepted terms and conditions relating to working hours, overtime, vacations and sick leave.

BUILDING PERMITS — Approved plans for a bedroom, bathroom, and utility room for Malcolm Ponder and a remodeling plan for Don Slack. The board has required that all building permits receive approval as a means of controlling extended water use, but last night agreed that all approvals would be subject to a condition that a project on any property would be for only single-family use.

QUARANTINE — Agreed to spend $230 for two large signs to be placed on Bolinas Road, warning visitors that Bolinas Beaches are under quarantine for bathers from both the state and county health departments.

ROADS — Heard from Minor Wilson that the county public works department will donate 1,000 cubic yards of gravel for road repair.

Mobile Homes Park Rejected

David D. Young's application for the development on North McDowell Boulevard at Corona Road was denied by the commission Tuesday night. Young has filed an appeal of the decision to the city council.

Senior Planner Frank B. Gray said the commission also rejected Young's application to rezone the land, saying it should remain light industrial since potential development is still likely.

Price Jump Statement No Surprise

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent Wednesday made the unsurprising prediction that prices will go up before they come down.

"It is likely there will be an increase in costs" under the new aministration economic plan, he told reporters. Prices will be "determined in large part by demand" under the Phase 4 program.

"Beef will be coming in full volume by Sept. 12 (when the current freeze on its cost is lifted)," he said. "Whether the consumer pays more or less for beef Sept. 12 depends on one hand on supplies and demand on the other."

Meanwhile, the nation's meat producers continued to hold back cattle that otherwise would have been rushed to market. In Texas, at least 1,000 butchers have been forced to work less hours or give up their jobs entirely in recent months, union spokesmen said.

The price of wheat climbed to record highs and bakers screamed. Farmers, however, were happy when the price of wheat for delivery in September reached $4.43-½ a bushel in Minneapolis. On the Chicago Board of Trade, wheat for September delivery was priced at $4.24 a bushel.

In New York, where the cost of bread went up by one to four cents, the city's food buyer said he is studying the possibility of getting beef "on the hoof".

Purchase Commissioner Marvin Gersten's comment came after the third straight week that no supplier offered to handle the city's meat business. He said the last time the city bought its meat directly from producers and contracted for was its slaughter and processing was during World War II.

In other developments:

Harvey Nathan, a butcher shop owner, asked a federal judge for a preliminary injunction to force the Cost of Living Council to lift the price ceiling on meat. Nathan, of Shillington, Pa., said the price freeze is making him lose about $6,000 a week.

Meat sellers in Windsor, Ont., just over the border from Michigan, reported U.S. shoppers crossing into Canada to buy beef in larger numbers than have been seen since the meatless days of World War II. "I know about 80 per cent of my customers have been Americans this week," said one butcher.

Return To Roughing It Suits Wife

ELKINS, W. Va. (AP) — Joan Davis has trout in her bathtub and horses in her kitchen and couldn't be happier.

She said, "I was very upset with the world in general, and decided that I needed a change of pace and that this would be a good way to do it . . I'm feeling a little better about things now."

The tepee, 16 feet in diameter and about 18 feet high, sits along a picturesque stream that serves as bathing area and refrigerator.

Two outdoor stone fireplaces are used for cooking, and the family horses graze in the same area. Mrs. Davis and her children — Katy, 18; Evan, 16; Natty, 15; and Hunter Jr., 13 — sleep in cots separated from each other by suspended sheets.

Her husband, Hunter, a professor of English literature at Slippery Rock State College, frequently joins his family at the tepee but is less enthralled about their summer idyll.

"Like New York City," he says. "It's a great place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there."

But others who have visited the remote area — the nearest neighbor is more than a mile away — have departed with reluctance.

"Most people are envious," Mrs. Davis said. "They want to do it, too."

Foxes, grouse, deer, turkeys and pigs wander around the tepee, and though there are bears in the forest, Mrs. Davis said her family has been in no danger at any time in their two months in the woods.

Days are spent backpacking and hiking, preparing meals and gathering firewood, exploring a nearby ghost town, swimming in the Cheat River or riding the family horses on aimless jaunts.

At night, aided by the light from kerosene lanterns and sparkler fireworks, Davis family members discover how surprisingly little they know of each other.

"Our house is fairly large," Mrs. Davis said. 'Everybody has his own room. We don't really talk to each other . . . Now, when everybody depends on each other for certain things, I think we're a lot closer."

Balloonist's Trip Ruined By Storms

ST. JOHNS, Nfld. (UPI) — Balloonist Robert Sparks, forced to ditch in the ocean when he encountered severe thunderstorms in an attempt to be the first man to fly the Atlantic, was rescued by a Canadian Coast Guard vessel today about 30 miles off the coast of Newfoundland. His balloon kept going.

Sparks, who began his dream voyage at daybreak Wednesday in Bar Harbor, Maine, was forced to descend early today after the thunderstorms created strong updrafts and downdrafts threatening to dump him in the ocean.

A spokesman for the Canadian Coast Guard said Sparks was reported "well," aboard the rescue vessel Sir Humphrey Gilbert.

He said the gondola in which Sparks had spent the morning was also recovered.

Home Finance Proposal Gains

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill aimed at helping low and moderate income families buy their own homes has been approved by the Assembly Housing and Urban Affairs Committee.

The bill (SB14) by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, was sent to the Ways and Means Committee Wednesday on a 4-0 vote.

The measure would establish a housing and community development agency which could issue up to $100 million in revenue bonds to help provide homes at prices low-and moderate-income persons could afford. The bonds would finance low-interest loans to developers of such housing.

Today is Thursday, August 9, the 221st day of 1973, with 144 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

British author and naturalist Izaak Walton was born August 9, 1593.

Also on this day in history:

In 1831, the first train in the United States to be drawn by a steam locomotive made a run between Albany and Schenectady, New York.

In 1945, more than half of the Japanese city of Nagasaki was destroyed when the United States dropped its second atomic bomb.

In 1970, fifty-four U.S. citizens were among 99 persons killed when an airliner crashed in Peru.

In 1972, the death toll from hurricane Agnes was officially set at 118.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Boulder Falls But Misses Town Below

There were no injuries, however, since the 135-foot-high rock stopped short of the first buildings of the small industrial town of 4,000 inhabitants.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Grief, And The Symptoms That Go With It, Is Healed By Time

Grief is a normal reaction after the death of a loved one. It helps cut the emotional ties that bind. Since death is final and nothing will bring back the deceased, the mourning period usually is temporary. There are tears and sobbing and the survivors are preoccupied with the image of the person who is gone, feeling guilty about certain aspects of their relationship, and hostile about other phases.

Mourning also causes many physical effects such as hollow or empty feelings in the chest, shortness of breath, sighing, fatigability, loss of appetite, and insomnia. The eyes might feel dry and itchy, the nose congested, and the grieving person often develops a dull headache and backache. At first, there may be disbelief in what has taken place. This may be followed by a numbness; then the shock that follows the realization that "this is it."

TIME IS a great healer and these feelings tend to wane as the weeks pass. The bereaved may break down occasionally when certain events bring back a special memory. Now and then the person sees someone in a crowd who reminds him of the departed person or he may hear a similar voice. They wish to tell him something, but suddenly they realize they cannot.

Widows or widowers who had a good marriage and were close may be preoccupied with their memories for a long time. Their grief may persist to such an extent that life is completely disrupted. Self-pity becomes a problem and more so because the man or woman cannot adjust. Since the individual no longer gets gratification from the love object, he must rely on inner resources. Unless this is done, a depressions sets in and this, in time, masquerrades as fatigue, apathy, nervous tension, headache, back pain, and many other bizarre symptoms.

IN FACT, this pattern may become so well established the individual no longer associates it with grief over his loved one. Treatment is not difficult when the physician realizes the role that grief is playing. The next step is to find out why the individual has not been able to adjust to his loss. This may stem from fear of loneliness, or feelings of guilt or hostility.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

BLOOD FIGURES

D. T. writes: Recently I was going to donate a pint of blood. The nurse pricked my finger for a sample. After the test she called out to the doctor, "fourteen, two." What do these figures mean?

REPLY

You may have been number 1402 for that day, week, or month. Or, your hemoglobin is 14.2 grams, which is normal.

DRINKS, SLEEPS

A reader writes: Is my husband an alcoholic? He is 59 and all he does is drink and sleep all day. He takes two shots in the afternoon and sleeps four or five hours. After supper, he sleeps again, then goes out about 10 p.m. for another two or three shots and sleeps 10 hours. What's wront with him?

REPLY

He is a somnolent alcoholic. Your husband needs medical help because his sleep pattern is more bizarre than his drinking habits. Fatigue is one of the symptoms of cirrhosis. I assume he retired too early in life or perhaps is at the tail end of his alcoholism. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on alcoholism.

BEE STINGS

F. T. B. writes: On two occasions our 8 year old was stung by a bee and had to be taken to the doctor for shots. Our neighbors told us that a third sting is fatal. What would you say?

REPLY

Your neighbors really know how to hurt a guy! There is no danger so long as the boy is not sensitive to bee venom. If he is allergic and develops reactions, your physician may suggest shots for desensitization or supply you with medications to use in case a severe reaction takes place.

IODINE AND THE THYROID

A. G. writes: Does iodine make the thyroid gland work faster?

REPLY

No—it makes it work more efficiently.

WAVES FOR DIABETICS

R. B. writes: I was just told that I've got diabetes. Can I continue to have permanent waves?

REPLY

Yes, but get your advice on diabetes from your physician and not from the patrons of the beauty salons.

SITSOMNIA

REPLY

Sitsomnia. It is natural when sitting brings on relaxation.

Uganda Boss Has Advice

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — President Idi Amin sent his "sincere and brotherly advice" to Cambodian President Lon Nol today, telling him to get the American troops out of his country since President Nixon was too busy with his own personal problems to know what they were doing.

Amin, in one of an apparently unending series of cables to world government heads, told Lon Nol that American action was not in the best interest of Cambodia and expressed doubt an American mistake bombing early this week was really a mistake.

Amin, whose cable was broadcast by Kampala Radio, said he was sending Nixon for a copy.

"The American action supposedly in assistance of your country against your brothers and sisters is not in the best interests of your country and should be stopped and American troops removed immediately for the good of the country and the world," Amin said.

"I further advise you to negotiate a reconciliation with Prince Sihanouk quickly in a spirt of understanding, love, trust and brotherhood," Amin said.

He said his cable was prompted by the mistake American bombing of a progovernment Cambodian village, which he implied was no mistake.

"The Americans have been fighting in Cambodia long enough to know the area so well as to make accidental bombing impossible," his cable said."The killing of your people by foreign troops is a typical example of the sincere fears I held and still hold," Amin said.

"President Nixon has presently many personal problems, such as the Watergate episode, $10 million allegedly used on his personal house and the possibility his vice president may face criminal charges," Amin's cable said.

Review Of Nixon's Taxes Requested

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's tax agency requested a review today of the property taxes being paid on President Nixon's Western White House.

The State Board of Equalization voted 4-0 to formally request Orange County officials to reappriase the value of the property at San Clemente in view of the controversy over federally financed improvements there.

Kidnap Solution—A Safety Valve?

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The government announced Wednesday that it has solved 27 kidnap cases and seized $4.5 million in ransom money, but some U.S. businessmen were reported preparing to leave Argentina for safety's sake.

Police also reported another kidnaping—Ramon Levin, a director of a textile company.

An interior ministry statement said that 27 cases of kidnaping and extortion had been "cleared up with 82 suspects identified" and $4.5 million in ransom money recovered in the 10 days since provisional President Raul A. Lastiri ordered a crackdown on kidnapings.

The ministry did not say how many of the identified suspects had been arrested.

Despite Lastiri's campaign, sources in the American business community said the foreign executives of one company were ordered to pack for transfers, the president of another company moved into a hotel to escape threats and is preparing to leave, and the president of one of the largest foreign companies in Buenos Aires will be transferred—all because of an abduction wave that has claimed more than 100 victims this year.

The sources asked that the names of the firms involved not be used for fear of making them targets of further threats.

One American executive told UPI Wednesday he had gone on a 10-day "holiday" after he "received too many telephone threats" of kidnaping and after a man attempted to get into his house under false pretexts.

The executive said more than 20 other foreign businessmen had taken similiar short leaves of absence or vacations because they felt that they were in danger.

Police in Cordoba, 400 miles northwest of Buenos Aires, are investigating five current kidnapings—including those of a young mother and her 10-year-old son. Buenos Aires police are investigating two other abduction cases.

Seven foreign businessmen have been kidnaped this year. A record $3 million ransom was paid by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. for the safe return of its president, John R. Thompson.

Ford Motor Argentina "donated" $1 million worth of supplies to needy causes after urban guerrillas killed an employe and threatened further violence. The Kodak Corp. paid $1.5 million in ransom for its technical director, Antony Da Cruz.

Nixon Readying Watergate Talk

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon made headway today in preparation for a televised address on the Watergate scandal, probably early next week.

The arrival of Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, at Camp David, the President's mountaintop retreat, indicated Nixon was dictating a preliminary draft of the long-promised address.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said no decision had been made on the timing of Nixon's expected speech.

Lawsuit Filed On Champagne Cork

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Businessman Ralph P. King had removed the foil and wire net on a champagne bottle when the cork suddenly "exploded," he charged.

King, of San Francisco, said in a federal court suit that he suffered an injury to his right eye "which will lead to future problems of traumatic cataracts" and asked for $103,759 damages.

He sued Lejon Champagne Cellars, Columbia Distributing Co. of Portland, and Dennis W. Wilson, operator of Shopeteria Grocery Store, where King's hosts had purchased the bottle of bubbly.

Bar Asks A Check About Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Bar Association (ABA) has called on state bar groups to investigate, and possibly discipline, lawyers involved in the Watergate affair.

Ending its 96th annual convention Wednesday, the association's Assembly and its House of Delegates each adopted a resolution calling for "prompt and vigorous disciplinary investigations and appropriate action" by state bars against attorneys who may have violated ethical standards in connection with Watergate.

AFTER LOSS

A's Skipper Blasts Ump

DETROIT (AP) — Tuesday it was Sal Bando of Oakland who complained about umpiring.

Wednesday night A's manager Dick Williams took a pot shot of his own after his team was frustrated in a bid to regain first place in the American League West with a 3-2 loss to the Detroit Tigers.

First Williams praised the pitching of Tiger starter Woodie Fryman. Then he added a couple words about plate umpire Jim Odom.

"It looked like he was picking spots the first part of the game and then later he roared back," Williams said of Fryman. "He kept us off balance. But I think he got help from the umpire."

Williams paused. Then he added with emphasis: "I know he got help from the umpire. He's a bad umpire. Yesterday the umpire was bad for both sides. Today we got squeezed quite a bit."

Bando, who was ejected from the second game of Tuesday's doubleheader by Larry McCoy, afterwards called McCoy "the worst ball and strike umpire in the American League."

Whether or not Oakland was "squeezed" by the umpire Wednesday, one thing is certain — they were squeezed by Detroit. A perfect squeeze bunt by Bill Freehan greeted reliever Rollie Fingers in the eighth inning and drove home Al Kaline with what proved to be the winning run.

Freehan missed a squeeze bunt against Fingers in the AL Playoffs last year and the runner was cut down at the plate in a 2-1 loss by Detroit.

Fryman has pitched well three straight starts and apparently has come out of his three-month slump. He struck out 10 Athletics and gave up only three singles the first four innings.

A triple by Deron Johnson and a wild pitch gave the A's a run in the ninth. Then Fryman gave up a single to Jesus Alou and a walk to Billy Conigliaro before John Hiller picked up his 26th save by getting pinch hitter Mike Andrews to end the game with a fly out.

It preserved Fryman's fourth triumph against seven losses and kept Detroit atop the East by one-half game over Baltimore, one game over New York, and 1½ over Boston. All won Wednesday.

Meanwhile, American League President Joe Cronin ruled Wednesday that he would not have upheld a protest by the Detroit Tigers that Oakland manager Dick Williams failed to specifically indicate his designated hitter in a Tuesday night game.

Manager Billy Martin of the Tigers filed the protest in the first inning of the second game of a doubleheader Tuesday after Williams listed 10 men in his lineup, but gave no positions for any of the 10.

"There is no valid protest," Cronin said through a spokesman. "There is nothing in the playing rules that says a manager has to list his players by position. He must list players by batting order, and this was done. Williams complied with the rules."

WALTON'S GRIPPING STORY

Minnesota outfielder Danny Walton apparently believes in the theory that you can know your opponent better by putting yourself in his shoes, or in this case, her girdle. Walton enlivened a husband-wife softball game yesterday at the Twins' stadium in Bloomington, Minn., by showing up in a girdle. He also found himself thrown out because of illegal attire.

McCOVEY

Giants' Vet Still Learns

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Willie McCovey is 35, an age considered by most people to be old, but the San Francisco Giants slugger says "I'm not that old that I can't learn something every day."

Of course, McCovey is referring to baseball, a game not all that complicated to the average person but one Willie says has nuances probably lost on the casual observer.

Take Wednesday's game against the Montreal Expos, which the Giants won 2-1 on a two-run homer by McCovey. It was his 20th of the season and sent rookie righthander Steve Rogers down to his first big league loss.

"I watched him closely right from the start of the game," said McCovey, "and I noticed he did a good job of hiding the ball on the righthanders but wasn't as deceptive to a lefthander. I didn't get a chance to swing my first time up because he never gave me a pitch I could hit, so I walked."

Then, in McCovey's second at-bat, after Bobby Bonds led off the fourth with a single, Willie said he made up his mind "if the kid threw me a strike I was going to hit it out."

That's exactly what happened. Rogers threw a curve belt high and McCovey deposited it over the centerfield fence, a blow of about 420 feet.

The night before, the Expos' Steve Renko stopped the Giants on three hits but had a difficult time with McCovey, who hit a homer and had two other shots caught in front of the fence.

"He's awesome," said Renko. "I know some people say he is tapering off but I don't think so. If anything, I think he is improving with age."

Told Renko's comment, McCovey smiled.

"I think when you have been around this game as long as I have," he said, "you have to keep on learning just to stay even. I agree with the man, I think I'm a smarter player now than I was before. If I wasn't I don't think I could keep on playing."

Ron Bryant was the beneficiary of McCovey's latest homer as he picked up his 16th victory, tops in the N.L. Bryant went 6 2-3 innings and was removed when he loaded the bases in the seventh with two walks after a double by Rogers. Elias Sosa came on at that point to strike out Bob Bailey and then wrapped up the game without incident for his 10th save.

The only run Bryant gave up was John Boccabella's sixth homer in the fifth. The Expos reached him for five hits but Ron also walked five.

Bondurant School Added By Sears Point Raceway

Track Slated For Reopening On Sept. 15

Sears Point International Raceway has an added feature today. The track, which plans to reopen Sept. 15, has added Bob Bondurant to its stable.

Bondurant, retired international road racer and now an instructor, will move his school of high performance from Ontario Motor Speedway to Sears Point around Sept. 1. Bondurant, a noted driver on the sports car road-racing circuits of the United States and Europe in the 1960s, brings his program to a track which was shut down since May of 1970, according to co-owner Hugh Harn of Belvedere.

Bondurant said: "The move will improve the school's growth potential because the hilly terrain of Sears Point presents a challenge to drivers and we'll be able to offer a more thorough and complete training program."

Sears Point co-owner Park Archer of Napa considers Bondurant's project the "premier driving school in the United States."

Besides adding Bondurant, track owners Archer and Harn are finalizing plans to reopen the track on the projected Sept. 15 date.

The duo plans to present the last race of the Sports Car Club of America's Gold Rush Series. The SCCA is organizing the event for all 22 classes.

Harn stated qualifying will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday (Sept. 15) and races will run the following day at noon.

Facilities will include a one-quarter mile oval and motorcross for motorbikes. Drag and dirt track racing coupled with road circuit events will also be presented on 750 acres. the complex is located at the junction of highways 37 and 121 in southern Sonoma County.

However, before the track reopens, certain projects must be completed, mainly the sewage system.

Archer said today, "The water and sewer system is not finished. And once it is done, Sonoma County (the Board of Supervisors) will give us the go-ahead."

Sooner Edict May Force Some Changes

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — The two-year suspension slapped on Oklahoma University by the Big Eight Conference will force every school in the conference to alter their athletic budgets and will also reduce the income of other football powerhouses such as Texas.

But football coach Barry Switzer, who assumed the helm at Oklahoma following the 1972 season, said the suspension may prevent his team from going to a bowl game or appearing on television for two years but will not keep it out of the running for the national championship.

"We hope the team that represents the Big Eight in the bowls is second best—that they have a loss on record to OU," Switzer said.

Chuck Fairbanks, Oklahoma's coach last year and now the head coach of the New England Patriots of the National Football League, had no comment.

"Coach Fairbanks will wait until he has heard the details first-hand," a Patriots spokesman said Wednesday. "He's going to call a few people in Oklahoma within the next couple of days. When he gets what he wants, then he'll make a statement."

The Big Eight placed Oklahoma, the No. 2 ranked team in the nation last year, on probation for recruiting violations and barred it for two years from any bowl games or television appearances for which it has not signed contracts. The conference also stripped the Sooners of their 1972 conference title.

This means Oklahoma's

RAIDERS SET FOR COWBOYS

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — Cliff Branch and Fred Biletnikoff were Bob Hayes and Otto Stowe, respectively, Wednesday as the Oakland Raiders defense drilled against Dallas Cowboys pass patterns.

Dallas visits the Raiders, Saturday night in the Oakland Coliseum.

The Raiders started going more to a zone defense three seasons ago and Shinnick is leading tbe conversion to even a higher percentage of zone defense coverage for the Raiders this season. It represents quite a radical shift for the Raiders, who were considered pioneers in the bump-and-run style of man-to-man defense.

Sharon Triumphs In Singles, Doubles

CINCINNATI — Sharon Walsh of San Rafael Wednesday triumphed in singles and in doubles in the Western Professional Tennis Championships here.

Miss Walsh won her second-round singles match from Linda Tuero of Metairie, La., 6-3, 6-4, and she and Patti Hogan of La Jolla combined to defeat Leslie Charles and Lindsay Beavans of Great Britain, 6-2, 6-1, in a first-round doubles match.

49ers' Tucker, Six Others Cut

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — Veteran fullback Bill Tucker was among the latest seven players cut by the San Francisco 49ers. No more axings are expected before Saturday night's preseason game against the New York Jets in Tampa, Fla.

Other cuts announced Wednesday included ex-University of Pacific running back Alan Namanny; linebacker John Mitchell, the number seven pick from Alabama; defensive end Rich thrower from Miami U; Jim Benien, Oklahoma State kicker; Harry Howard, Ohio State cornerback, and Fred Reese, Sam Houston State running back.

Tucker was with the 49ers for four years before being traded to Chicago in 1971. He suffered a knee injury, went to San Diego, and the 49ers picked him up as a free agent.

Golfer Blalock Wins In Court

NEW YORK (AP) — Golfer Jane Blalock scored what may be the biggest victory of her career Wednesday, and she didn't even have to use a golf club.

When a circuit court disallowed an Ladies Professional Golf Association appeal of a decision against its lawsuit last year, Mill Blalock took one step closer to an astronomical amount of money.

She filed an anti-trust action against the Ladies Professional Golfer's Association and five individual members of the Association's executive board after her suspension for alleged cheating last year. Asking for $5 million in damages, Miss Blalock contended that the LPGA suspension violated the anti-trust laws and constituted a group boycott, because the five board members were in direct competition with her and profitted by her absence from the tour.

Lawyer John Russell, who represents the Portsmouth, N.H. golfer said, "It seems certain that our side has prevailed on the basic question whether the LPGA's suspension of Miss Blalock was lawful."

She was suspended on May 31, 1972 for allegedly mis-marking her ball on the putting surface. After missing one tournament, Miss Blalock's lawyers secured a restraining order which allowed her to rejoin the tour.

Escrow Softballers Romp To 31-0 Win

There was a football score in the softball league last night, as undefeated Escrow romped to a 31-0 victory over the Bombers behind the three-hit pitching of Mike Lopas in a San Rafael Recreation Department adult league game at Albert Field.

In other action, Tom Husk hurled a shutout as No Name drubbed Las Gallinas Golf, 12-0, and MJCC upset previously unbeaten D&R Volkswagen, 6-5.

SWIMMING POOLS TO HOSPITAL

Connor Has Very Busy Summer

By LEW CODDINGTON

It's been a busy summer for Mike Connor, who has been running at full stride from swimming pools to playing fields to outpatient clinics with barely enough time in between to pause.

Connor currently is in Southern California to prepare for the 22nd annual Shrine North-South All-Star Football Game, which will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The game, California's most prestigious, matches a team of outstanding graduated seniors from the Northern half of the state against the South's best, with proceeds benefiting the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children.

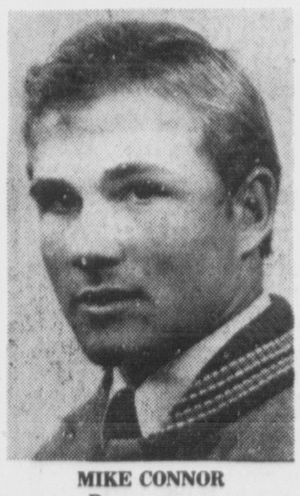
The slogan of the game is "strong legs run that weak legs may walk," but Connor was hobbling last week with an infected toe until minor surgery corrected the problem. "He had to practice in one football shoe and one tennis shoe," explained his mother, Polly.

The former Redwood High School star is the 13th Marinite to be selected for the game and the second in two years. Scott Duncan of San Rafael gave a good account of himself last year as a defensive back in a secondary which was otherwise shredded by South quarterback Vince Ferragamo (now at the University of California) in a record-breaking 42-0 bombardment.

The South will have a strong aerial attack again this year, headed by high school All-America quarterback Randy Garcia of Wilson High in Los Angeles — an item of interest to Connor, who probably will be used as a defensive back.

Mrs. Connor, who talked by telephone with Mike last week, said North co-coach Ed Burns of Polytechnic High in San Francisco, who handles the defense, was playing Mike at free safety and was considering starting him. Burns was unavailable for comment.

If Connor were to start, it would represent a rapid rise in his status, since originally he wasn't even on the team. He was picked as an alternate and invited to camp when Ruppert Jones of Berkeley High signed a professional baseball contract and became ineligible.



MIKE CONNOR
Busy summer

Connor was all-Marin County Athletic League junior and senior years as a defensive back, and all-league as a running back as a junior, when he set an MCAL record by scoring five touchdowns in a game.

He also starred in basketball and baseball, making all-league his senior year in the former sport and playing guard, forward and center during his career though standing only 6-foot-2. He weighs 195 pounds.

He spent much of this summer on baseball fields, playing for the Italian Athletic Club's team which romped to the South division championship of the Joe DiMaggio League.

Connor sustained a 28-stitch cut on his forehead July 22 when he collided with catcher Marty Frey following a run-down on the third-base line, but his mother reported the injury no longer bothers him.

When he was not playing, Connor umpired for Little League, Senior Division and Babe Ruth games in the Kentfield-Greenbrae area. He lives in Greenbrae.

He also worked mornings as a swim instructor and afternoons as a lifeguard at the Paul Daly Swim School in Larkspur.

In the evenings, he did not collapse from exhaustion, but rather went out three times a week and ran several hilly miles a ridge in Greenbrae, as preparation for the Shrine game. He also lifted weights in afternoons when not working.

The preparations were doubly useful, since Connor has two football games coming up — the Shrine clash, and the Ross Valley Kiwanis Club's annual Marin North-South game next Saturday at San Rafael High.

After that game, he and his sister and some other family members will fly to Hawaii for a combination vacation and geological expedition. Cathy is a senior geology major at Stanford University, where Mike will enroll this fall on a football scholarship.

Connor left Marin July 30 to report to the North camp at Long Beach State University, where co-coaches Burns and Benny Pierce of Saratoga are examining the talent.

The North has lost eight of the last 10 games, with one tie, and trails in the series, 5-13-3.

Tickets for the clash cost $5, $3.50 and $2 and may be purchased at the Shrine office in Los Angeles, 655 West Jefferson

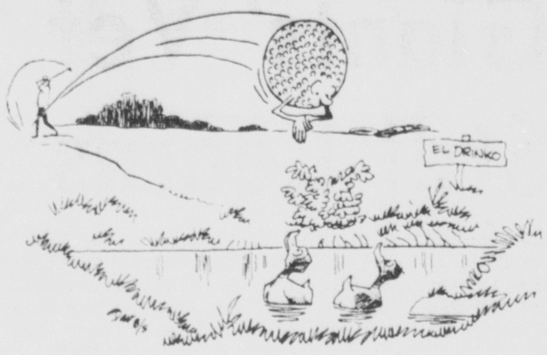
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Away, Blamed Hook

By LEE TREVINO

The duck hook, also called the snap hook and other snappish names, in my book is the golfer's Public Enemy No. 1. That's when the ball shoots out about 50 or 100 yards, then dives for trouble.

It's caused by a number of things. The victim may be closing the clubface at the top of the swing, or playing the ball too far back toward the right foot. Or it means you're not shifting your weight to the right foot on the backswing.

Tension may be the culprit in any of these. To combat a duck hook, slide your left thumb down the shaft as far as you can. This tightens up the three back fingers, putting pressure on the bottom of the forearm.

The result will be your hands riding higher on the club. The left hand will be so strong that the right hand can't turn over, shutting the club face at impact. That's when the headaches start.

Redskins' Allen Says Best Years Over 30

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Allen takes a lot of needling about running an old folks home, all of which makes him laugh and ask what's so bad about that?

"I think the best years of an athlete's life are those over 30," says the Washington Redskins' coach.

"Providing he takes care of himself," quickly adds the ice-cream eating Allen. "I want to make one thing clear. I remember having one fellow in our camp who wasn't much more than 22 and he was old, mentally and physically. Age is a relative thing." ....

Lucien Laurin, Secretariat's trainer, has a standard answer for those who want to know what happened to his Triple Crown winner against Hobeau Farm's Onion at Saratoga last Saturday.

"It's hard to keep a horse edge," Laurin says.

Secretariat was making his first start in more than a month, and under conditions like that, as any baseball pitcher knows, you never have your best stuff.....

I'm amused by some of Pete Rozelle's critics, the ones who say he's making a scapegoat of Lance Rentzel.

What do they suggest Rozelle make out of him, NFL Player of the Month?.....

Jerry Koosman, the Mets' lefty, happened to run into Hank Aaron in a restaurant not long ago. They got to talking and Koosman told Aaron he had been approached by a newsman who wanted to know how he'd pitch to the Atlanta slugger if he came up against him with a chance for his 715th home run.

"I told him I'd pitch you the same way I always did," Koosman said to Aaron.

"That's exactly the way I'd want you to," Aaron assured Koosman.....

Every professional football team should have its own individual personality, says Buffalo's O.J. Simpson.

"The New York Jets' personality is passing and Miami's is running, but we didn't have any particular personality until Lou Saban came along," says Simpson.

"He's going to change all that. For years I've been complaining I'm not getting the ball enough. Last year I carried 292 times. Lou already has told me, 'Be ready to carry 350 this year.' How do I feel about that? I love it!".....

Jack Nicklaus enjoys playing golf—up to a point. He'd never give up everything else merely to be out on the tour all the time as some other pros are.

"If I gave up everything else, I'd go crazy just playing golf," he says. "Maybe some people don't realize it, but I really play golf only half the year." .....

Being the commissioner of any sport has its drawbacks, too. You can't root for anybody. Not publicly anyway.

Walter Kennedy, the basketball commissioner, tells about the time he and his wife, Marion, were in Philadelphia watching a final playoff contest between the Celtics and 76ers.

The game was a cliff-hanger. With only two seconds remaining and the 76ers trailing by two, they took time out. The sellout crowd went wild, and Kennedy's wife was reacting to the general excitement but her husband was simply sitting there, impassively, with his arms folded.

Time in again.... The ball is thrown in to Hal Greer in midcourt. He wheels, shoots and while the ball is in the air, the game ends. His shot goes through the hoop without touching the rim, the score is tied and the place goes wild.

Walter Kennedy resembles the Sphinx. He sits there quietly, never changing expression, never moving a muscle while his wife jumps up and down.

"Mrs. Kennedy, I feel sorry for you," says the lady next to her. "If your husband sits there so completely unemotional at a time like this, there's gotta be something terribly wrong with him."

Crowds have averaged 43,840 for the 22 games, but last year's attendance of 32,957 was the lowest since the inaugural 26,688 in 1952. This year the game was moved to a Sunday afternoon after having previously been played on weekday nights.

Marin players who participated previously are Tamalpais guard Dick Rush, 1952; San Rafael end Mike Watters and Tam guard Willie Hector, 1957; Drake quarterback Dick DeBisschop, 1958; San Rafael end Ron Snidow and Novato quarterback Jack Sparrow, 1959; San Rafael tackle Kent Francisco and Tam guard Bob Hector, 1960; Redwood quarterback Jim Troppmann, 1963; Drake end Jerry Sprout, 1967; Drake halfback Don Alvarado, 1968; and Duncan.

Jurgensen Plays Versus NFL Broncos

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Sonny Jurgensen is expected to play for the first time since he injured his Achilles tendon early last season when the Washington Redskins meet the Denver Broncos Friday night in a National Football League pre-season game.

Jurgensen, a 39-year-old quarterback now in his 17th professional season, can be expected to play a quarter against the Broncos, who will be making their pre-season debut.

The Broncos have an all-star look about them this season, at least on an inexperienced level. Denver has four players on the roster who participated in the College All-Star game and two of them, running back Otis Armstrong and guard Paul Howard, are expected to see plenty of action against Washington. The other two all-stars on the Broncos' roster are defensive end John Grant and safety Charles Hinton.

The Redskins, having lost their opening pre-season game to Detroit last weekend plus the services of backup quarterback Sam Wyche who suffered a fractured cheekbone, will probably take this one more seriously than the Broncos, who will be anxious to test their rookies. Washington coach George Allen believes in winning every game, including pre-season contests.

The Denver-Washington contest is the only one on tap for Friday night, but there are seven games scheduled for Saturday night, three more for Sunday night and another for Monday night.

On Saturday night Green Bay is at Buffalo, Baltimore at Atlanta, Chicago at Houston, Philadelphia at Cincinnati, New Orleans at Miami, St. Louis at San Diego, Dallas at Oakland and Pittsburgh at Minnesota.

The New York Giants will be at New England, the New York Jets meet San Francisco at Tampa, Fla. and Cleveland is at Los Angeles on Sunday night. Detroit visits Kansas City on Monday night.

Smith Scores 29 As Tar Cagers Win

Len Smith scored 29 points Wednesday night as the Tars rolled to a 76-46 victory over the Flying Tigers in a Drake Summer League adult division basketball game.

In other games, Blue Crystal edged Olympic Club, 61-57, and McGillicuddy Construction topped San Rafael Travel, 64-54.

UN-BEAR-ABLE HEAT

Jack Nicklaus, the famed Golden Bear of golf, mopped his sweaty brow during a practice round in 90-degree heat Wednesday, and could expect more of the same today when the Professional Golfers Association championship was to open at Canterbury Golf Course in Cleveland. Nicklaus, born not far away in Columbus, Ohio, will be looking for his third PGA title. (UPI Telephoto)

British Promoter Plans A Rival Tennis Circuit

Combined AP & UPI

LONDON — A British tennis promoter announced a $1.5 million plan Wednesday to set up a world-wide Grand Prix tennis circuit as a rival to America's World Team Tennis (WTT) group.

Geoff Mullis, a spokesman for the Commercial Union Insurance group, said a plan for 15, $100,000 tournaments, including the "big four" of Sydney, Paris, Wimbledon and Forest Hills had been proposed to the International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF).

"This plan has the backing of the association of tennis professionals, but it has not yet been discussed by the ILTF," said Mullis. "We understand that John Newcombe has been offered $75,000 a year to sign for WTT and we have got to show that players can earn this without overplaying themselves."

The tournaments would be spread over Europe, North America, Australia and Asia and would have an overall bonus pool to attract top players.

More Tennis

ALAMO — Now that the United States has disposed of Chile in Davis Cup tennis matches, officials at the Round Hill Club here are getting ready for the U.S.-Romania matches Aug. 18-20.

Barry MacKay, former Davis Cup player who is promoting the event, credited the 76-game set in the U.S.-Chile doubles for a surge of interest which has seen 500 box seats and 2000 bleacher seats already sold for all three days.

MacKay of Ross says that there probably will be some expansion of the 6000-seat facility to handle more fans.

Perry Makes A Confession: He Threw Spitball In Past

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Does he, or doesn't he? The perennial question is whether Gaylord Perry throws spitballs.

He has—but doesn't anymore according to an article by the Cleveland Press.

Perry, the controversial star of the Cleveland Indians pitching staff and last year's American League Cy Young award winner, admits it himself in a soon-to-be-released book, "Me and the Spitter—The Day I took The Plunge."

Not only spitters—but "the mudball, the emery ball, the K-Y ball, the vaseline ball and the sweatball, just to name a few."

But he hasn't thrown one since the rules were changed five years ago, which prohibits a pitcher from touching his mouth while on the mound, Perry claims in the tongue-in-cheek book co-authored by Press baseball writer Bob Sudyk.

The controversy all began May 31, 1964, when Perry came in to relieve for the San Francisco Giants in the 13th inning of the second game of a doubleheader against the New York Mets at Shea Stadium, he writes.

Two innings later Jim Hickman reached second base with one out and "catcher Tom Haller trotted out to me, very slowly, wearing that 'we're in trouble' look," Perry recalls.

"We both knew what he was talking about," Perry said.

"Haller squatted behind the plate. Hickman was on second and Chris Cannizzaro at bat. Haller didn't give me a sign. We both knew what was coming," according to the account.

"I licked my fingers, juicy-like as I could, faked a wipe and let her go as hard as I could for just above the knees. She dipped into the dirt like a shot quail.

Perry was the winner in the 23rd inning after 10 innings of relief.

"The next pitch dipped about eight inches too low. Then Cannizzaro fouled my third super-sinker off the foot of the umpire," Perry writes.

"I reloaded and fired off another that was wide of the strike zone. Apparently I overloaded. The ball came back from Haller still wet. Could I get one more pitch out of the same load?

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Deceptive Mark Of Mets' Hurler

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Seldom have records been more deceptive than in the case of Jon Matlack.

The talented lefthander of the New York Mets has been on the losing side of 14 games this season and figures to wind up as one of the top losers in the National League, but rival players would be the first to admit that Matlack is one of the most imposing young pitchers in the league.

Matlack certainly has had his share of hard luck this year. Besides being on a team that scores very few runs he suffered a hairline fracture of his skull earlier this season when struck in the head by a line drive, and the injury severely hampered his development.

In recent weeks, however, Matlack has regained the form that made him the Rookie of the Year in the National League last season. Last month he tossed a one-hitter as he beat the Atlanta Braves and Wednesday night he posted a two-hitter while pitching the Mets to a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Matlack, posting his ninth victory of the year, turned in his 10th complete game as he struck out nine and walked two. The only hits he allowed were a leadoff single by Willie Davis in the first and a leadoff single by Manny Mota in the fourth.

"My fastball has really moved great in the last two games," said Matlack, who beat St. Louis 7-3 in his last outing while striking out 11. "I try to tell myself if I can keep my walks down to two or three per game, and if I can get a couple of runs I can win. There's definitely room for improvement, though. Gaining experience is the big thing. I need to improve my control a little bit and refine my changeup. I still got a lot to learn."

Jerry Grote drove in the only run of the game with a second-dinning single as the Mets beat Andy Messersmith. The loss cut the Dodgers' lead in the NL West to three games over Cincinnati.

In other NL games, Cincinnati edged Chicago 4-3, Atlanta downed St. Louis 4-1, Pittsburgh topped Houston 4-3, San Diego blanked Philadelphia 3-0 and San Francisco nipped Montreal 2-1.

New York beat Texas 3-2, Boston defeated Kansas City 9-4, Baltimore downed Minnesota 6-1, Cleveland routed Chicago 13-1, Milwaukee whipped California 8-2 and Detroit edged Oakland 3-2 in American League games.

The Reds scored all their runs in the fourth inning to defeat the Cubs and hand Ferguson Jenkins his 11th loss in 21 decisions. A two-run triple by Tony Perez and another triple by Bobby Tolan highlighted the rally. Fred Norman went 7 1-3 innings to gain credit for his ninth victory in 11 decisions for the Reds since being acquired from San Diego on June 13. His overall record is 10-9.

Mike Lum and Dusty Baker homered during a four-run fifth inning to power the Braves to victory over the Cardinals. Hank Aaron chipped in with a triple during the four-run fifth. Ron Schueler and Phil Niekro combined on a five-hitter for the Braves, with Niekro making his first appearance since his no-hitter last Sunday.

Jim Rooker and Bob Johnson combined on a six-hitter as the Pirates downed the Astros and moved into second place in the NL East. Rooker allowed five hits in six innings of work and Johnson gave up only one hit over the last three. Richie Zisk's run-scoring single capped a three-run sixth inning that gave the Pirates the triumph.

Bill Greif tossed his third two-hitter of the year and outdueled Steve Carlton in leading the Padres to victory over the Phillies. Fred Kendall accounted for all the Padres' runs with a three-run homer in the fourth inning. The only hits off Greif were a broken bat single by Greg Luzinski to open the fifth and a two-out single by Willie Montanez in the seventh.

Orlando Cepeda tied a major league record with four doubles Wednesday night, driving in six runs and propelling the Boston Red Sox to victory.

Cepeda became one of 30 major league players to hit four doubles in a nine-inning game, the last being Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs on April 9, 1969. The last American League player to accomplish the feat was Billy Bruton of Detroit on May 19, 1963.

Oklahoma Verdict May Force Change

games with Texas and Nebraska will be televised this season but the Sooners will not appear on televised games in 1974 or 1975 regular seasons.

Iowa State athletic director Lou McCullough said his school alone will lose $200,000 because of the suspension since all Big Eight members share in bowl receipts and television revenues. He said he is in the process of revising the school's athletic budget and Iowa State will either have to make up the money from another source or cut the budget.

It is presumed the other six conference schools will lose as much as Iowa State due to Oklahoma's suspension.

And Texas could lose television revenues also if the Longhorns do not get another television date in 1974 and 1975 to make up for the Oklahoma-Texas clash that is usually televised.

"I know I'm a fighter, a competitor and a winner and I know the people around me are," Switzer said Wednesday. "Our goal is to win the (conference) championship and the national title."

Switzer said he talked to last year's freshman quarterback Kerry Jackson on the telephone Wednesday. Six of the 10 football violations cited by the Big Eight were related to Jackson, who was ruled ineligible this season.

His Galveston, Tex., high school records had been altered when he went to OU, leading to a forfeiture of all games in which he played.

"He was concerned and still did not understand why," Switzer said. He said Jackson's mental attitude was one of his chief concerns, but he felt the 19-year-old was young enough to take it.

Switzer said a telegram he received Wednesday showed how the team is responding to the penalties. It was from players Steve Davis, Scott Hill, Tim Welch and Grant Davis.

"It said they came to OU to play for a champion. They can't change that. We accept the challenge," he said.

Oklahoma President Dr. Paul F. Sharp said the rules violations did not characterize OU's athletic program.

"We are deeply sorry that actions of a few have adversely affected so many. We voluntarily subscribe to NCAA and a conference rules and regulations, and it is our responsibility to see that OU programs are conducted in accordance with them."

Sharp said OU is certain Switzer was not involved in any violations.

DiMaggio Crown To Holiday

Holiday Magic rallied from a 2-0 deficit to score a 5-3 victory over Travers-Perry Wednesday evening and in the championship of the North division of the Marin Joe DiMaggio baseball league.

Holiday Magic (12-5) struck twice in the fourth inning on a run-scoring single by John Sims and an RBI double by Craig Saunders, and won the game with a three-run uprising in the fifth. Tim Madera knocked in one run with a single, Mark Kline drove home another with a sacrifice fly, and the third scored on an error.

Holiday Magic and South division champion Italian Athletic Club (16-1) earned the right to play in the regional tournament in Eureka next Friday through Sunday, the winner of that to advance to the state tournament in Stockton the following week.

Wednesday's games concluded the league season, except for the Rohnert Park-Sebastopol clash rescheduled for today. Other postponed games which do not affect the standings will not be played.

A's Finley In Good Condition

CHICAGO (UPI) — Oakland Athletics and California Seals owner Charles O. Finley, 54, was reported in good condition today at the Passavant Pavilion of Chicago's Northwestern Hospital.

"He's undergoing some tests," Finley's secretary said. Finley was reported to have been taken to the hospital Tuesday night for observation after sustaining chest pains. Doctors at the hospital said his condition was good and would not comment further. The Chicago Tribune said preliminary indications were there were no cardiac complications.

Finley, a wealthy Midwestern insurance man, has maintained an office in Chicago for several years.

NHL Players Fair Game, Says Judge

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Federal Judge A. Leon Higginbotham ruled Wednesday the World Hockey Association (WHA) could sign National Hockey League players whose pre-1972 contracts expire at the end of next month.

WHA attorneys said the ruling frees the WHA from NHL suits stemming from player raids.

Higginbotham's ruling was the latest in a complicated legal battle between the WHA and the NHL.

Last November, Higginbotham barred the NHL from enforcing the reserve clause, saying it violated certain antitrust laws.

The suits by NHL teams against the fledgling WHA were consolidated here. They included the Chicago Blach Hawks' suit against the Winnipeg Jets for the raiding of superstar Bobby Hull, and the Boston Bruins versus the Philadelphia Blazers over the league-jumping of Derek Sanderson.

Ironically, Sanderson and the Blazers didn't hit it off. The Blazers bought Sanderson off and he returned to the Bruins. The financially troubled Blazers franchise was sold at the end of last season to a group of Vancouver businessmen.

Higginbotham said in his ruling he was hopeful the NHL-WHA feud could be settled with a trial, perhaps later this year.

The judge held that players with 1972 contracts expiring this year were not covered by the ruling.

"To appreciate the full significance of Judge Higginbotham's order it must be remembered that the NHL has, since March 1972, recognized two forms of contract for signing players. Prior to that date the contract employed was and is known as the '1970 Form.' The new contract was and is known as the '1972 Form' which contains a clause providing for arbitration of the players salary upon renewal of his contract.

"Judge Higginbotham's order enjoins the NHL from enforcing its 1970 Form contracts which expire in September 1973 (there are 21 NHL contracts plus 13 minor league contracts). The Judge refused the request for an injunction with respect to 1972 Form contracts (there are 66 NHL contracts plus 93 minor league contracts).

"The basis of the Judge's order was that the WHA had failed to demonstrate the necessary facts to support its motion for an injunction with respect to NHL players signed to 1972 Form contracts."

"THIS IS THE MOST REASONABLE PLACE I'VE EVER BOUGHT TIRES!!"

I hear this statement everyday. You can give 2 meanings to reasonable. 1. that our prices on our merchandise are good value for the quality involved 2. I could also mean we are reasonable or sensible in our dealings with people on tires, or as I would put it

NO NONSENSE!!
I keep repeating in my ads: CAIN'S TIRE PRICES ARE LOWER! This sounds like the same old, same old - but it isn't it's a fact.
• Our volume is big, easy 2 million this year.
• We are totally independent, in other words, we don't have to sell you a Goodyear or a Sears tire cause that's all we sell - we sell many brands of tires, we will give you a choice plus our recommendation.
• Our Independence and our ability to pay, bring us a lot of good buys on tires, buys that other tire dealers aren't exposed to.
• Our overhead is low: we have good people, whom we pay well - but our location & facilities are far from what I'd like them to be, but I do not have a big beautiful Taj Mahal I'm asking you the customer to pay for, cause the customer is the only guy that can pay the rent.

TO SUM UP:
We are reasonable because - we buy cheaper than our competition, and it costs us less to operate. That doesn't even take into account our volume.
I want your tire business, my prices - my product and my attitude deserves your business - come see us and see if you don't agree - with the people who have said "You're the most reasonable people I've ever dealt with." — Pat McAlonan

IF YOU READ THIS AD - SAVE IT. MOST OF THE MERCHANDISE, ARE REGULAR STOCK ITEMS AT OUR REGULAR LOWER PRICES - SO SAVE THE AD IT MAY HELP YOU WITH YOUR FUTURE TIRE SHOPPING.

Warning On Future Market Instability

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have held common stocks for many years through numerous bull and bear markets. I must admit that the sharp swings in what I had always thought were stable blue chips have me alarmed about the market. Do you think this type of action will continue? — C.T.

A. Unless there are some fundamental changes in the structure of the stock market I am afraid the phenomenon you describe will not only continue but will become more common. Share price changes of 20 per cent or more in one trading session, which occur with increasing frequency, are indicative of serious instability and lack of public support within the market structure.

The "why" of this instability is the increasing institutionalization of the market and the liquidity problems which have accompanied this growth. Institutions, which accounted for 31 per cent of Big Board volume only a decade ago, contribute about 80 per cent of volume today. This has led to a concentration of daily transactions by a relatively small number of professional money managers. Within this specialized group there tends to be less diversity of opinion. Thus when one sells, many sell and vice versa, whereas with broader public participation, as in the recent past, there are usually buyers available to match the sellers.

The burden placed on the specialist system by this changing market structure has underscored the inadequacy of this method of transaction. The specialist system is antiquated not only in terms of poor price performance, reflecting the lack of competition, but also in terms of insufficient capital to absorb the large blocks traded by institutions.

Convincing investors like you that the stock market is sound is one of the objectives cited by the S.E.C. in its request to Congress for greater power to intervene and supervise the industry. Since public participation is a vital factor in a healthy marketplace, recent recognition of this by the industry is a reassuring sign that better service may be in the offing for the small investor.

U.S. In Hong Kong

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States continued to be the largest foreign investor in Hong Kong's industry through 1972, according to latest figures of the Hong Kong Trade Development Council.

Stocks Close Mixed After Modest Rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed mixed today; following a modest rally featuring some blue-chip and glamor buying. Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was slow.

Analysts noted both early selling and the mid-day bargain spree lacked conviction, coming on light trading.

Some observers said the market was encouraged a bit by the dollar's strong performance, and the concurrent decline in gold prices on foreign markets. They added the trading tone remained cautious against the background of higher interest rates and inflation.

Ara Services lost some ground during the day on the Big Board. The company declined to comment on indictments brought by a federal grand jury in Atlanta charging price fixing of beverages sold from vending machines.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By WAT TAKESHITA

Salvatore's Haircutting And Curling Co. Will Analyze Hair

A new hair salon that analyzes hair with the microscope and the microgram scale (to measure tensile strength and moisture content) will open this month in Kentfield a half block from the Kentfield Fire House.

Salvatore's Haircutting and Curling Co., which has two shops in San Francisco, will open its Marin branch at 928-B Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, where Country Beauty Salon is now located.

The new salon is owned by Salvatore Busalacchi of Sausalito, who has been operating his San Francisco shops for five years.

"We feature scientific hair analysis, just like going to the doctor for a checkup," said Busalacchi. "We eliminate guesswork; instead of guessing, we pinpoint hair conditioning."

Salvatore's offers complete hair cutting and styling for both men and women. The shop will be open Monday through Saturday. On the first Sunday of each month, Salvatore's will give away free haircuts to mentally retarded children in foster homes.

SHARON WERLE of Greenbrae, manager of Gibraltar Savings' Irving Street Savings office in San Francisco, has been elected an assistant vice president of the statewide association.

Before becoming Irving Street manager, Mrs. Werle was a savings supervisor in the downtown office on Montgomery Street. Born in Oregon, she was educated in Detroit and graduated from Wayne State University.

Werle Ruegg

FRANK C. RUEGG, 31, of Mill Valley has been named resident manager of Coldwell, Banker & Company's Montclair-Piedmont office, which is scheduled to open early this fall.

Ruegg has been with Coldwell Banker for two years in the firm's Marin County office. He previously spent two years as sales executive for the Sea Ranch Properties in Sonoma County. He attended College of Marin and San Francisco State University.

AUTOMATIC SEWING Machine and Vacuum Center is now in full operation at 909 Fourth Street in San Rafael (old location of Collectors Gallery and Loves' chinaware). The firm moved onto Fourth Street from its former site at 914 C Street.

Automatic Sewing Machine and Vacuum Center, which has been in business in San Rafael for about 15 years, features the Viking and Pfaff sewing machines and Eureka and Hoover vacuum cleaners, plus other lines. The shop also provides repair service, striving for one-day service.

UTILITY LINES in the La Plaza section in the heart of Cotati will go underground by October. Work will begin next Monday at the intersections of Old Redwood Highway, East Cotati Avenue and Sierra Street. The conversion is a joint effort by Pacific Gas and Electric Co., Pacific Telephone and Storer Television.

MARIN COUNTY LEGAL Directory for 1973 has just been published by the Marin County Court Reporter in association with the Marin County Bar Association. The 50-page booklet includes the names and photographs of Marin attorneys, listed in alphabetical order.

JAMES R. HUNT of Mill Valley has joined the San Rafael office of Dean Witter & Co. as an account executive, according to Shane H. Brady, vice president and manager. Hunt will handle investment accounts for investors in Marin.

Hunt graduated from California State University at San Francisco and served in the Green Berets for four years as a captain, including duty in Vietnam where he won an Air Medal, Bronze Star, three Gallantry Crosses and five Battle Stars.

We can do more for you than any other bank.

(even if you can't find the scissors)

You see, we have more services than other banks. Not that you'll use them all. You won't. But it's nice to know every banking need imaginable is covered. And under one roof. More likely, you'll be into things that make day-to-day living simpler. Like the services we describe below. Of course, of greatest importance is how we view the banking relationship. It colors everything we do.

Courteous personal service:

We feel banking is a person-to-person matter. So we value the human touch. With us, your needs are as individual as you are. That's why personal service has always been important at Bank of America.

New high savings rates:

We offer many different savings plans. And they pay you more than ever before in our history. Our new Certificate of Deposit pays a big 7% per annum for at least four years on a $1,000 minimum deposit. Our three new Investors Passbooks earn you 6½% annually for a two and one-half year account, 6% for one year, 5½% annual interest for 90 days. $500 minimum deposit. And our regular passbook savings account offers in-and-out flexibility.

Personal Choice Checking:

We have four checking plans to choose from. Each fits an individual need, whether you write few checks or many. And our beautiful scenic checks will add some color to your life.

Simplified monthly statement:

This statement simplifies balancing your checking account. We call it the Timesaver® Statement. It can even include a summary of your savings accounts and other information if you wish. You can tell at a glance where you stand.

Three ways to finance your car:

Only Bank of America gives you three different ways to finance your car. Ask your auto dealer about our Auto-Magic Financing, the rock-bottom monthly payment plan. Or about leasing.

Then there's our regular auto loan. We've made more of them than any other bank in California. See your dealer or local Bank of America.

Of course, we make loans for just about anything else you can think of, too.

Red Carpet Service:

Our own special system to serve you promptly, save you time. And nobody peers over your shoulder when you transact your business. Most of our offices have it.

Automatic Transfer Service:

Makes regular savings deposits or loan payments for you automatically, from your Bank of America checking account. Saves time, simplifies things. Especially helpful when you're ill or out of town.
